HOW THE LAD MET DEATH

THE KILLING OF FRED ISH IN THE M., K. & T. YARDS ON TUESDAY.

CIGARETTE CAUSED THE ACCIDENT

With Sack of Coal on Shoulder, He Stooped Over to Get Cigarette, Lost His Balance and Fell Under Wheels.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

Lee Moore, the 13-year-old son of Mrs. Alice Moore, living at 527 East Fifth street, and a student at the East Primary school, today explained the manner in which Fred Ish, the 14-year-old son of C. C. Ish, was killed by an M., K. & T. engine in the yards here yesterday forenoon.

Young Moore told a reporter for the Democrat-Sentinel that he attended school yesterday morning, but was excused before dismissal of the school. He started up town, so he says, and met the Ish boy gathering coal.

Moore also began to gather coal, and the two wandered up into the Katy yards, near the round house.

At the spot where the body of Ish was found, Moore says there was lying the stub end of a cigarette.

The Ish boy, who carried a sack half full of coal on his shoulder, espied the partially smoked cigarette, and stooped to pick it up.

As he did so the weight of the sack of coal was so much that it threw the boy to the ground and onto the track.

Just as the boy fell, so Moore says, the engine struck Fred and ran over him.

Moore was questioned very closely as to which way the engine was running, and positively stated that it was going west, the pilot first.

This statement is positively contradicted by G. P. Letts, foreman of the Katy round house, who questioned Hostler Yunker, who was in charge of the locomotive, immediately after the accident, and who stated that the engine was being run backward.

Mr. Letts further stated that never is an engine run with the pilot first when it is being taken from the sand house to the round house.

Coroner Miller was furnished with the name of the Moore boy, who is expected to give important evidence when the inquest is resumed tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The following jurors were selected to make inquiry into the death of Fred Ish, the 14-year-old son of Chris Ish, who was killed by a Katy switch engine Tuesday forenoon:

J. F. Elliott, Elmer H. Smith, Tip Arnold, William Jolly, Frank Hulland and Edward T. Donnohue.

The following witnesses were examined:

L. N. Yunker, hostler; Ile Fuller, hostler's helper; G. P. Letts, foreman of the Katy's locomotive department, and C. C. Ish, father of the dead boy.

At the conclusion of the evidence Mr. Ish requested Coroner Miller to adjourn the inquest until he could secure further information regarding the accident.

Prosecuting Attorney H. D. Dow, who was present at the inquest, also favored a further investigation and Coroner Miller adjourned the inquest until 3 p. m. tomorrow, when the jury will convene at his office, No. 418 South Ohio street.

The funeral of little Fred Ish was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the family residence, No. 521 East Third street. After the services the remains were taken to Mt. Herriman cemetery, north of the city, for burial.

Cannot See Saxton at Present.

Chief of Police Boullt received a letter from the Kansas City chief of police today, asking if it is possible for him to personally see Thomas Saxton, the negro, who is laid up at the city hospital with both feet amputated.

Saxton is thought to have murdered Patrolman Fuller at Kansas City last December, hence the eagerness of Chief Ahern to view the prisoner.

For the time being it will be impossible for any outsiders to enter Saxton's room.

"They Are After Him."

The police are searching for Charles Drake, a former night dishwasher at McGurren's restaurant, who is charged with stealing an overcoat.

Franco Retired From Politics.

Lisbon, Feb. 5.—There is no truth in the rumors that were current in Berlin yesterday that an attempt had been made upon the life of ex-Minister of War Franco, of Portugal.

He has officially announced his retirement from politics, but his followers will attempt to continue the party he organized.

Mrs. Johnson Operated Upon.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

L. E. Johnson, the Ohio street barber, wrote from Kansas City last night, stating that his wife was successfully operated upon there yesterday morning and that unless unforeseen complications arise she will recover.

THE ELKS' RECEPTION

Ladies' Night, as Usual, Was a Distinct Success.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

Last night was ladies' night at the Elks' club and in spite of weather conditions, which almost demanded that people remain indoors, there was a good attendance. A very delightful evening was spent, a musical and literary program, cards, dancing and refreshments all adding to the pleasure of the guests.

Judge D. E. Kennedy, in the absence of Exalted Ruler Combs, presided during the entertainment hour and the musical program, under the direction of Mrs. Steele, was a splendid one.

A brief address of welcome in behalf of the order was extended by George H. Scruton, which was followed by a piano solo by Miss Davis. of New York; vocal solos by Misses Carman, Farley and Lynn Gold and Mrs. J. M. Johannes and Mr. C. C. Lawson, closing with several musical specialties, both voice and instrumental by Mr. Barker.

Judge Kennedy was a graceful, witty and dignified presiding officer and made many friends among the ladies by his complimentary references to them and by the recitation of a beautiful composition regarding them, which he claimed was from the pen of Mr. Lawson.

It was a late hour when the guests departed, after one of the most enjoyable evenings of the season.

He is eloquent and forceful in delivery, has splen[illegible] imaginative faculties, a deep [illegible] knowledge and a choice com[illegible]f the English language, the [illegible]nriched with just a delightful [illegible] of his mother tongue. [illegible]his lecture he dwells on the [illegible] of the Christian home and [illegible]s decided blows at the root of [illegible]thing which endangers the sta[illegible] of that holy institution and [illegible]ing the nation in peril."

Six beautiful prizes that are to be awarded at the benefit euchre to be given by the Catholic ladies of the city at the Eagles' hall Friday night, for the benefit of the poor, were placed an exhibition this afternoon in the show windows at H. W. Meuschke's dry goods store. The sale of tickets to date is large, and the indications are that one of the largest crowds of the season will be at the euchre.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—A realistic representation of the shooting of Webster S. Guerin, according to the theory of the defense, was enacted in the court room today at the trial of Mrs. McDonald. SALOONS WIN AT WELLSVILLE

At Richmond, However, Local Option Had a Majority of 161—Audrain County is to Vote on February 14th.

Brookfield, Mo., Feb. 5.—Brookfield went 'wet" yesterday at the local option election by a majority of 104. The campaign had been waged vigorously by the Anti-Saloon league and the opponents of local option for several weeks. The city has not been "dry" for twenty years.

About one-half of the population of Brookfield comprises employes of the Burlington railroad and their families. The majority of the railroad men are said to have voted to retain the saloons, of which there are four.

Linn county, in which Brookfield is located, went "dry" six weeks ago.

Saloons Win at Wellsville.

Danville, Mo., Feb. 5.—The saloonkeepers yesterday won the contest between the churches and the saloons of Wellsville, which was heard by the county court at Danville.

As Wellsville is a town of less than 2,000 inhabitants it was necessary for the saloons to have petitions containing a majority of all the tax-paying citizens of the town.

Church members alleged that there were forty-two illegal petitions and asked that they be stricken off. After hearing the evidence and going over each name the court decided late yesterday afternoon, that the petitions were legal and granted the licenses.

The temperance element is preparing for a county contest.

Richmond Votes to Close.

Richmond. Mo., Feb. 5.—Richmond went dry at the local option election yesterday by a majority of 161 votes.

Mexico, Mo., Feb. 5.—The Anti-Saloon league of Audrain county yesterday presented a petition, consisting of 1,047 names, asking that a local option election be held in Audrain county, outside of Mexico. The court fixed March 14 as the day for this election.

Mayor Threatens to Resign.

Mattoon, Ill., Feb. 5.—If local option carries in Mattoon township at the coming spring election, Mayor Lewis L. Lehman will resign, according to a statement which he has just made public.

He declares that the loss of $20,000 a year revenue for fire protection, lights, and an increase of the police protection of the city would be out of the question.

Mayor Lehman is president of the First National bank of Mattoon and was elected last spring for a term of two years.

Reopened Saloon Case.

Kansas City, Feb. 5.—J. B. Journey, one of the attorneys for J. B. Rudert, appeared before the county court yesterday and filed a motion for the reopening of the Rudert saloon case which has been before that body twice in the last thirty days.

MARRIAGE IS ANNULLED

EVIDENCE IN CASE IS SUPPRESSED

Decree Is Not a Divorce, but Is an Order of Court Declaring That the Marriage Is Absolutely Null and Void.

London, Feb. 5.—Sir Birrel Barnes, president of the divorce court, today granted the Countess of Yarmouth who was Miss Alice Thaw, of Pittsburg, a decree nullifying her marriage to the Earl of Yarmouth.

All the papers in the case are being kept secret, and all information regarding the nature of the charges against the earl are carefully withheld. The statement is made, however, that the character of the medical evidence made a public hearing inadvisable.

The case was heard in private, and everyone not actually engaged in the trial was excluded from the court room during the hearing.

The case was practically undefended by the earl and lasted only a half hour. The countess was present, but the earl was not in court.

"UNCLE SAM" MUST PAY

For Hauling Mail From Postoffice to Missouri Pacific Depot.

The Missouri Pacific railway has taken advantage of the United States government, and is closing the east entrance to the company's baggage room in this city, whereby they will realize a profit of some $1,200 annually.

According to the contract between the government and railroads for carrying mails to and from the postoffice, the railroads are to pay for carrying the mail, provided the distance from the postoffice to the delivery point at the railroad station is a certain number of feet. If the distance exceeds that number of feet the government is to pay for carrying the mail.

At present the distance to the east door of the Missouri Pacific baggage room, where the mail is delivered, is five feet in favor of the government, conesquently the railroad has to pay for the hauling.

Now the Missouri Pacific is removing the doors and cementing the east wall, so that the mail will have to be hauled to the south entrance, making the distance longer and requiring the government to pay for the hauling.

Sleet Storm of Last Night Had Bad Effect on the Wires.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 5.—The sleet storm during last night, which turned to rain early today, seriously affected all telegraphic communications between Chicago and many outside cities, especially in the west.

MACHINE FROM SEDALIA

TEST BY POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT

Washington, Feb. 5.—F. H. Brinkerhoff, an inventor, of Sedalia, Mo., is here trying to persuade the postoffice department to favorably consider his stamp-vending machine.

He says this machine is almost human, and has decided human tendencies and inclinations, because it makes a profit of 1 cent on every transaction.

The machine, with twenty-five others, is now being inspected by a special committee appointed by the postmaster general.

It does fifty different things, such as selling postage stamps in any sum desired, making the proper change, weighing and counting money, discarding spurious or defective or foreign coins, and about everything else that could possibly arise in a business transaction of this nature.

If you want money changed, and do not desire to purchase stamps, this machine will gladly accommodate you, but is charges 1 cent for the favor, which it consistently deducts from the amount placed in the slot.

AN EXAMPLE OF CIVIC INDIFFERENCE.

A few days since this paper had occasion to refer to an open well on the lot fronting on Ohio street and immediately north of the home of Mr. D. H. Smith. Mention was also made of the disgustingly unkept condition of the premises. After the publication some one, without giving any name, phoned the Democrat-Sentinel that he, she or it owned the lot referred to, and stated that the well in question had been properly covered at one time, and that if this paper wanted flower beds made on that particular lot to go ahead and make them, but that he, she or it would clean the lot only whenever they required the use of the premises.

It is just such people as this lot owner that are a positive drag and hindrance to any community. They are perfectly willing to reap all the benefits accruing from living in a live town like Sedalia, but are not disposed themselves to expend a single penny or put themselves to the slightest trouble for the betterment of the town that they call home, and are totally lacking in civic pride. A good stiff fine by our police court for maintaining a nuisance might imbue them with a certain amount of respect for the rights of the public. The attention of Mayor Collins is respectfully called to the dangerous condition of this well and to the unsightly state of the entire premises.

THE LATEST MESSAGE.

The president's message, delivered to congress Friday, was but another evidence that Mr. Roosevelt is totally out of sympathy with the leaders of his party and that save in name only, while not a democrat, he is no more a republican than is Mr. Bryan.

Every subject discussed is from a democratic standpoint and every position taken is a democratic one. He makes no recommendation that has not been made by democratic platforms and urged by democratic orators from the stump and in the halls of congress for lo, these many years, and he furnishes proof of corruption of railroad officials and oil magnates, which had it been in the hands of the democratic party when it made the self same charges, might have materially changed the political map of the nation.

No wonder, then, that the republicans did not receive it with the praise usually accorded documents of like importance, and that the great men of the party have openly repudiated it as embodying neither their personal views or the policy of the organization.

As far as it goes, that is, on the several subjects touched upon, the most radical democrat could not desire a better platform or find a clearer statement of the doctrine of his party—equal rights to all, special privileges to none.

Of course, Mr. Roosevelt hasn't raced in the message his opinions ny other subjects, for on some he is still blinded and a fol- he old party feticisms. riff, for instance, he has nothing to say. Its injustice, its fostering of the trusts, its favoritism of class, all the thousands of evils it engenders, are passed over in silence, because on the tariff he is still a republican, as devoted to its preservation as even Uncle Joe Cannon.

Another evil on which he is discreetly silent is the question of corporation campaign contributions.

It can be taken for granted that he isn't in accord with democracy on that subject, for how can he be when it was through these same contributions that he is enabled to send any message to congress at all.

Even though he has changed his mind regarding them, and really and truly believes now that they are a means of corruption second to none, no one could expect him to so declare himself, after publicly consigning Judge Parker to the Ananias club for saying they were being made.

And then, too, President Roosevelt, like many another, would doubtless hesitate to condemn the bridge which carried him safely across the stream.

No, Mr. Roosevelt is not a republican, nor is he a democrat, but is as great a betwixt and between as ever came into the limelight.

Let us therefore praise him for that which is good, and endeavor to teach him his errors regarding those things of evil in which he still believes.

THAW TRIAL IS ENDED.

The result of the Thaw trial did not occasion much surprise, although the action of Judge Dowling in committing the defendant to the asylum for the criminal insane was not expected, especially as the jury did not in its verdict say that he is insane at the present time, their finding being only that at the time of the killing of Stanford White he was deranged.

It was to avoid the very thing that has now happened—his confinement in a madhouse—that the defense at the last trial fought so hard to defeat District Attorney Jerome's efforts to convince the specially appointed commission that Thaw was a lunatic, and succeeded by the prisoner's own testimony in getting a decision in his favor on the point at issue.

It is now a legal question as to whether, under the verdict, the presiding judge had the power to send him to the asylum. If the verdict had been that he was insane at the time the deed was committed and was still in that condition, then the judgment of the court could have been nothing than what it is, but as it stands, the higher courts may reverse Judge Dowling's act and give Thaw his freedom.

Anyway, the case is nearly closed, much to the public's satisfaction, and the principals in the tragedy may now, if they will, retire to the peaceful shades of private life.

To many who have read the bitter story of little Evelyn Nesbit, and who have very sincerely sympathized with her for what she has suffered through the brutality of men, and have said in their hearts, "Let him who is without sin among you cast the first stone," the wish comes that she may by future goodness wipe out the stains of the past, and that her storm-tossed life may turn into paths of virtue, gentleness and peace. Truly, she has been more sinned against than sinning.

THE CARE OF TREES.

Back in the seventies an old Englishman inaugurated a practice in Sedalia which has done incalculable harm. He proclaimed that he had special information, gained in the old country, in the care of trees, and every year went about the city trimming the trees by cutting the main branches off more or less short. Others seeing this method of gaining easy money have followed his example for years, and it follows that it no city of its size in the country are the shade trees so badly mutilated as in Sedalia.

The result of this practice is merely to reduce the breathing capacity of the trees, for the leaves perform the same function in assimilating the carbonic acid gas of the atmosphere that the lungs of a human being do in appropriating the oxygen. Hence this violation of nature in crippling the lungs of the trees merely brings about a natural result which is called in forestry "tree consumption."

Hundreds of trees which have been continually topped can be seen throughout the city with rotten interiors, largely exposed, and which from time to time sicken and die. Trees should only be trimmed so as to take away the lower limbs. In nature the browsing animals do this work in the forests. Moreover, the local custom of pruning trees in spring is a violation of common sense. In the spring the sap is going up from the roots, and cutting and lopping the branches then causes the tree to bleed and lose strength. All tree trimming should be done in the fall of the year, when the sap is retreating to the roots for the period of winter sleep and inaction. If the excuse is given that the tops of the trees are cut back because of too much shade, then the superfluous tree should be cut out entirely. Scientific forestry denominates this custom of wounding and murdering trees by slow death, so prevalent in Sedalia, as tree butchery.

If any one is interested enough to see how trees should be properly trimmed, very good examples can be seen in the yard of the late Dr. Ed Evans, on Broadway, on the public library lawn and on the state fair grounds. It is to be hoped that an intelligent public sentiment can at least lessen the wanton and senseless tree butchery in Sedalia.

PURITY AND PATRONAGE.

The president is not using his patronage in the interest of Taft. He says so himself. Anyone who says he is is a liar; he also says that himself. It is true that four men who had been supporting Foraker in Ohio flopped to Taft and were promptly nominated to be postmasters, but if any man says the president is using his paronage in Taft's interst he is an undesirable citizen, a poltroon and a traitor. Six federal office holders are on the New York county committee, and they supported Congressmen Parsons and Benett in postponing a resolution for the endorsement of Hughes; but if any man says the president is using the power of patronage against the Governor he is scurrilous, vain, vindictive, disloyal, and other things, too numerous to mention.

At present the president is only saying these things privately to people who can be depended on to leave them around in the vicinity of Newspaper Row. But the tide of presidential wrath is rising rapidly and it is intimated that if a few more persons repeat the story that patronage is being usedin the interest of Taft the dam will give way and a desolating flood of presidential vituperaton will burst forth and flow down the valley, overwhelming the miscreants.

By way of refutation, it is pointed out that a prominent federal official in Indiana is heartily supporting the Fairbanks boom. Why not? No one supposes Mr. Fairbanks can be nominated; Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa are going to have favorite sons in the field, and the more there are of them the easier it is for Taft to win. But Taft has got to have the Ohio delegation and Hughes must not have the New York delegation. That is plain enough. That is where the federal office holders are working for Taft.

An Indiana delegation for Fairbanks will aid very much in offsetting the influence of an Illinois delegation for Cannon. It wouldn't do to have the thing too unanimous, anyway.

AN OVERWHELMING VICTORY.

The road election held Saturday resulted, as all progressive citizens hoped it would, in a decided victory for the extension of the district. Indeed, from the returns it would seem that there are, after all, so few reactionists in Pettis county that they need not in the future be taken into consideration as of any moment in opposition to those movements toward better conditions that may arise.

Of course, owing to the extremely cold weather, the vote was not nearly up to what is usually cast in the county, but when out of 1,113 ballots only sixteen were against the proposition it demonstrates relatively the concensus of opinion and shows that the sentiment is overwhelmingly with the proposition.

Pettis county has a right to feel very proud of the result and to congratulate itself as being the leader in the movement that will eventually culminate in making Missouri's roads the best west of the Father of Waters.

POLITICAL IMPROPRIETY.

William R. Hearst in his letter to his western manager of the independence league, says:

"It seems to me that the new party movement should not be a new party movement for long. I mean by that, that if it is properly directed it will soon supplant one of the old parties."

Mr. Hearst is still president of the National Association of Democratic clubs, and yet is using all his energies and supporting in his papers the building up of his new party. His resignation as the head of the democratic clubs should at once be offered to the chairman of the democratic national committee. To do otherwise is an act of great political impropriety and lays him open to the charge of perfidy.

As the campaign for president is about to open we see the extraordinary spectacle of one of the chief organizations of the party in the hands of a man who is trying to supplant the democratic party and who may be a candidate opposing the democratic candidate.

THE TARIFF ISSUE ABROAD.

Prof. Burgess, the American lecturer at the Berlin university, has made Ambassador Tower furious by declaring in a lecture at which the kaiser was present that America's high protective tariff was superannuated and ought to be abolished.

When it is considered that Mr. Tower was president of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad, and managing director of the Minnesota Iron Co., which are controlled by the steel trust, his antipathy towards anything squinting of tariff reform is not extraordinary. The wonder is that the American people support an administration that selects such trust agents to represent this country in Gemany, or elsewhere.

POLITICS AND PANICS.

The republican politicians will forget and overlook the recent panic, if they can. The coming republican national convention will indorse Mr. Roosevelt and all his doings; it will indorse republican policies, and point with pride to the prosperity of the trusts and corporations as one of the most conspicuous merits of republican ascendency. But still the glaring fact will have to be explained by our republican frineds why the panic occurred under republican policies, with all departments of the government under their full contol for the past ten years. What assurance can the republican party offer that further panics will not follow if they are again entrusted with power? And with what face can they again declare that republican policies are "panic proof?"

The parade of the army of the unemployed is a pitiful thing when one looks at it in the right light. While the men who make up the line are in part common laborers who are usually out of work at this season of the year, yet there are large numbers of men who have families dependent on them, who honestly try to care for them in the proper manner. The average laborer, earning $2 per day, and in many cases less, and employed not more than half the time, is not able to get much ahead. Economists may theorize, visionaries may suggest, and business men may show with pencil and paper demonstrations of just how a man should live and save something for a rainy day, but the fact remains that to keep the current bills paid the average working man has to trust to finding somebody's discarded umbrella when the proverbial rainy day arrives and take his chance.

CAUGHT BABY AS IT FELL

EXCITED WOMAN HAD THROWN INFANT FROM THE THIRD STORY WINDOW.

BUILDING WAS IN FLAMES SUNDAY

Man Caught the Baby as It Dropped, but the Woman Struck the Hard Pavement and Was Badly Hurt.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 3.—Cut off from escape by the stairs in a fire at 406 Landis court yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Hilda Holmquest rushed to a fire escape three floors above the paved alley, with another woman's child in her arms and stood a momen dazed while flames shot up at her from the windows of the floor beneath. It seemed impossible for her to descend the ladder through the flames, and the excited crowd below cried to her to jump.

"Oh, take the baby," she said, "it is not mine!"

Then she threw the infant and jumped after it.

George M. Thomas, of 410 Wyandotte street, one of the crowd beneath, caught the baby by one arm and both feet and dodged Mrs. Holquest's falling body.

The child was unhurt. Mrs. Holmquesh struck the brick pavement and suffered a broken knee, a scalp wound and internal injuries. She may recover.

"Two minutes after Mrs. Holmquest jumped the truck and ladder company from No. 4 fire station arrived and rescued all the other people imprisoned by the fire on the top floors. They are: Mrs. Edward McNamara, wife of the police sergeant; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bushnell and Mr. and Mrs. Mellin.

In one closet of the McNamara flat was an even $1,000, minus the month's rent. The money had been drawn from bank a week before to buy a home. It was all in bills. Streams from the hose had drenched that closet and the money was not damaged, though most of the rest of the apartment was gutted. The firemen also brought out of the ruins $15 found in an overcoat pocket, and $43 and $8 found in boxes.

Mrs. August Josephson, mother of the baby that was dropped three stories, returned soon after the fire and found her child at her sister's, Mrs. H. O. Axene, 402 Landis court.

Mrs. Holmquest is 23 years old and came here a year ago from Providence, R. I. She has been married eight months and is the wife of Theodore Holmquest, employed as a porter at the Emery, Bird, Thayer Dry Goods company's.

KILLS PANTHER AT GALENA

Traveling Man Shot Animal, Which Was Hunted by Many.

Galena, Kas., Feb. 3.—A full grown panther, a beautiful specimen, has been killed in the timbered lands of Shoal creek, south of Galena, by a traveling man named Hill.

Cries of the panther had been frequently heard by farmers in that vicinity and numerous hunting parties had been organized without results.

When all the members of the last party stopped because of exhaustion, Hill continued the search alone, carrying a shotgun and revolver in his hands.

The peculiarly deceptive cries of the brute led Hill to believe the animal was far off, and in rounding a ledge of rock he was within six feet of the panther before he became aware of the danger. Hill fired instantly, the revolver ball piercing the panther's head.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 4.—There will be eleven local option elections in Missouri this month. The results may give in some instances, dry towns in wet counties or wet towns in dry counties.

These are the places which will vote this month: Richmond, February 4; Brookfield, February 4; Columbia, February 5; Boone county, outside Columbia, February 5; Warrensburg, February 6; Higginsville, February 7; Ray county, outside Richmond, February 7; Johnson county, outside Warrensburg, February 8; Livingston county, outside Chillicothe, February 13; Macon county, outside Macon, February 14; Pettis county, outside Sedalia, February 15.

A TRULY NARROW ESCAPE

ST. LOUIS SKATER HAD IT SUNDAY NEAR EDGEMONT, ILLINOIS

SAW MAN'S FORM UNDER THE ICE

Dr. Robert Le Cron, of St. Louis, Was Recovered by "Tom" Martin, Who Was Assisted by E. Lyons and Joseph Forshaw.

St. Louis, Feb. 3.—Diving into the freezing cold water and under the thin ice that covered Bluff lake, near Edgemont, Ill., Tom Martin, all-around athlete and captain of the Missouri Athletic club water polo team, yesterday risked his life to save his companion, Dr. Le Cron, who was caught unconscious beneath the frozen surface.

That he succeeded was partly due to immediate aid rendered by Joseph Forshaw an Athens athlete, and E. Lyons, another well known swimmer and skater.

The rescue makes the seventh life Martin has saved.

The party, seeking a larger skating surface than any of the St. Louis park ponds afforded, yesterday morning journeyed to Bluff lake, on the east side, just outside of East St. Louis. Here the members of the party donned their skates and started to sprint down the lake, which is several miles long.

Le Cron, himself a well known athlete in this city, prior to his visit to Paris to study dentistry, and one time a member of a local skating and hockey team, lead the party and was outstripping the others.

Three miles out LeCron started to cross the ice looking for a smoother surface, the others following some feet behind..

Half way across there came a warning crack, and the rear guard slowed up in time. Le Cron, dashing on, hit the thinner ice too late to stop. It gave beneath him and he pitched forward, striking his head on the ragged edges of the frozen surface.

The impetus he had acquired in skating carried him under the ice, through which his three companions could see his form. Martin at once went in after Le Crom and succeeded in pulling him from his perilous position. but in attempting to climb out on the ice it was found that the resistance it offered was too slight for support.

Martin and his companion then broke off the ice for about twenty feet back from the spot where Le Cron had fallen through, finding a firmer holding. Here a "chair loop" was formed by Joe Forshaw and Edgar Lyons, and Martin and Le Cron dragged from their uncomfortable position.

Le Cron had revived and Forshaw and Lyons immediately started the two water-soaked men to skating to save them from freezing to death. It was three miles to the New Home Hunting and Fishing club quarters, and the men were almost exhausted when this was reached at last. Here warmth, dry clothing and stimulants revived the men partially.

After they had apparently recovered they returned to St. Louis and adjourned to the Missouri Athletic club baths, where they were taken in charge by Swimming Instructor Robinson. After the arrival of the men at the club both were on the point of collapse. Rigorous treatment brought Martin around readily, but Le Cron was still weak last night. Aside from a few scratches on his head, he was outwardly uninjured. and went to his home unassisted.

SOROSIS HAS CLUB DAY

MRS. W. D. STEELE WAS IN CHARGE OF A TRULY DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM.

ONLY ORIGINAL MEMBER HERE NOW

(From Monday's Daily.)

Sorosis met at the Carnegie library building at 3 o'clock this afternoon. After the usual routine business, the president, Mrs. John Montgomery, called Mrs. W. D. Steele, chairman of the day, to the chair.

Plans for the study of the coming year were discussed, and many valuable suggestions were made, which will add greatly to the interest in the programs.

Mrs. Steele then told Sorosis that she had written to each of the seventeen honorary members, asking her to write a line to the club, telling of her present home and interests.

Twelve responses were received. These were from Mrs. J. C. Van Riper, St. Louis, Sorosis' first president; Mrs. F. H. Guenther, Rockford, Ill.; Mrs. Frank Shultz, Lancaster, Pa.; Mrs. T. P. McCluney, the honorary president, Warrensbug; Miss Laura Yeater, Warrensburg; Mrs. Nils Holm, Chicago; Mrs. W. A Rawles, Bloomington, Ind.; Mrs. Richard Morey, St. Louis; Mrs. Bransford Lewis, St. Louis; Mrs. Fred Simpson, Kansas City; Mrs. Thad Hatcher, Cleveland, O., and Mrs. Felix Kahn, Marsailles, France.

Some of the letters were simply greetings and regrets at not being able to be present in person, but some told at length of their new homes, their club affiliations, etc.

Particularly interesting was the letter from Mrs. Bransford Lewis, who told of the magnificent new $85,000 building being erected by the Wednesday club, and of the grand work being done by the Y. W. C. A. of St. Louis.

Mrs. Lewis, whom we all knew and loved as Miss Jennie Jaynes, is a member and worker in both of these organizations.

Mrs. Rawles, remembered here as Miss Hallie Post, is president of the oldest literary club in Bloomington, Ind.

Mrs. Thatcher was for years interested in the settlement work connected with the famous Hull House of Chicago.

Mrs. Felix Kahn's letter, coming from far off sunny France, described the famous conferences given by the "Faculte des Sciences" of Marsailles. She also told of the theaters and operas of the southern metropolis; the beautiful climate, with its sunshine and flowers. In fact, each and every letter was delightful and interesting to Sorosis. It made a fitting ending for the day.

Mrs. Steele is the only original member of Sorosis now on its rolls. The club was formed the fall of 1889 at the home of Mrs. J. C. Van Riper, who was its first president, and since that time has included in its rolls some of the brightest women of the city, and has always stood for everything that was uplifting and ennobling.

The present year is the brightest in its history. Its beloved president, Mrs. John Montgomery, by her tactful and loving manner, has developed the best in each of the members.

The new depatment of civics, with Mrs. C. C. Evans as the able chairman, promises to do good work. Sorosis is an organization of which Sedalia is justly proud.

A BIG STATE CONFERENCE

OF ALL THOSE WHO ARE OPPOSED TO SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

IT MAY BE HELD HERE NEXT MONTH

Brought Up at the Meeting of the Ministers' Alliance This Morning and a Committee Named to Report on Matter.

(Monday's Daily.)

A state conference of all the interests in Missouri that are opposed to the liquor traffic may be held in Sedalia next month, the date to be fixed later.

This was one of the matters considered at the regular weekly meeting of the Ministers' alliance this forenoon, and a committee consisting of Revs. J. M. Rudy, Clarke Baker and James Parsons was appointed to consider the question, a report on the advisability of the same to be made at next week's meeting of the alliance.

At today's session two distinguished visitors were present in the persons of Hon. S. E. Botsford, of Knox county, state senator for that district, and Hon. Charles E. Stokes, chairman of the state prohibition committee and editor of the Leader, an anti-liquor organ published in Kansas City.

These gentlemen are now campaigning in Pettis county in the interest of the local option election that is to be held in the county, outside of Sedalia, on February 15, as is also E. E. McClellan, of this city, and others.

Report was made that Mr. Botsford spoke at Houstonia and Hughesville Sunday; Mr. Stokes at Smithton and Providence; Mr. McClellan at Dresden and Lamonte. In each instance large and enthusiastic audiences were present.

The remarks of the visiting gentlemen occupied nearly all of the time of the alliance, but each and every member considered it well spent.

The Rev. S. M. Lesher, secretary of the alliance, asks the Democrat-Sentinel to state that any person desiring to communicate with the alliance on any subject can do so by a visit in person or by letter giving the name of the writer, but under no circumstances will anonymous communications be considered.

It is very important and in fact it is absolutely necessary to health that we give relief to the stomach promptly at the first signs of trouble—which are belching of gas, nausea, sour stomach, headache, irritability and nervousness. These are warnings that the stomach has been mistreated; it is doing too much work and it is demanding help from you. Take something once in a while; especially after meals; something like KODOL For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It will enable your stomach to do its work properly. Sold by Arlington Pharmacy.

MADE $7,000 PICKING POCKETS

A Business Card Many Times Saved Louis Wolf.

New York, Feb. 5.—Louis Wolf, the well to do Brooklyn manufacturer by day and pickpocket at night, made a complete confession yesterday.

Wolf declared that he made $7,000 a year by picking pockets on the cars during the rush hours of the evening, and that, whenever he was suspected he was always able to escape arrest by flashing his business card on policemen and his victims.

He acknowledged that he had been arrested in St. Louis for pocket picking.

No Smoke House Needed

The modern method of smoking meat by the application of our Liquid Smoke not only produces better results in every way, but does it at a minimum expense. One quart costing 75c will thoroughly "smoke" 250 pounds of meat and the whole process will not consume an hour's time.

The saving in the shrinking of the meat (often as high as 15 per cent smoke house way), will pay for the "Liquid Smoke" several times over.

If you have not used "Liquid Smoke" as yet, try it on some of your hams this year and notice the improvement.

PLUNGER WINS A MILLION

Took the Armour Side of the Wheat Market and Made Good.

New York, Feb. 5.—Brandt Walker is again in the limelight. This time the plunger has made a million in wheat.

For six weeks, it is learned, Mr. Walker had been selling wheat heavily short. He took the Armour side of the market as against James A. Patton, the Chicago plunger, who is a member of the firm of Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington, which is to give up its New York office and stop all trading in stocks and bonds as a result of Patton's activities.

Mr. Walker began selling wheat around $1.06 a bushel. He first sold 300,000 bushels, and has sold and bought o nthe breaks and again sold on the rallies, turning over time and again 500,000 to 1,000,000 bushels, and making his profits so rapidly that it is said on good authority that he has a net profit on his wheat deal of a little more than $,000,000.

"HEINY" LEIST'S CHANCE

An Opportunity to Buy the Oklahoma City Ball Club.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Feb. 5.—President Cooper of the local club of the Western Baseball association has practically agreed to dispose of his stock in the club and retire from the baseball business.

This resulted from efforts of the chairman of the commission backed by business men. It may mean that Charles McFarland, last year's manager, will be reinstated as manager of the nine for the coming season.

It is believed that S. C. Heyman will again take the presidency of the local club.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. SENATOR STONE'S MINES

EXPLAINS CONNECTION WITH ALASKAN GOLD-DREDGING COMPANY.

PAID CASH FOR ALL OF HIS STOCK

Disclaims Responsibility for Advertisements—Says They May Have Been Too Highly Colored, But He Does Not Know.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Relative to publication in Colliers' Weekly and in a St. Louis newspaper, which connect his name with an Alaskan mining scheme, Senator Stone, of Missouri, prepared and issued this statement Monday:

"I see my old friends, Colliers' Weekly and the Post-Dispatch, are after me again, hammer and tongs, because of my connection with an Alaskan gold-dredging enterprise. This is not the first time Colliers' has assailed me, as it has assailed most men in public life, and everybody knows the deep solicitude the Post-Dispatch has for me.

"About a year ago I did buy some of the stock of the dredging company referred to and some months later I bought some more. I purchased and paid cash for every share of stock I have. I have sufficient confidence in the enterprise to buy more of the stock whenever my financial circumstances may permit, but if I do I will pay for it in cash also at current prices. The amount of my investment would not be large if made by a man of wealth, but in the aggregate it represents a considerable sum to me.

"The enterprise is legitimate as a business proposition and I invested because I believed, as I still do, that, properly managed, the profits would be large. I looked into the business as carefully as I could, and because of my faith in its outcome, I hope and believe that the investment will in time produce a comfortable estate for myself and family.

"At one of their meetings the stockholders selected me as a director. At first I was disposed not to act in that capacity, for the principal reason that it would be inconvenient for me to give attention to the business, but on reflection I considered that I had a considerable sum invested, and as it promised to develop into a large business, I let my election as director stand, and this I did also because I thought it would be best to have a vote in the management of the business when it got fully under way. I have never received a cent in salary or for expenses as director and none is due me.

"With the matter of offering stock for sale to investors and with advertisements relating thereto I have had absolutely nothing to do. That has been wholly in the hands of the managing officers. One of these officers I have known practically all his life, as I knew his father before him. It was he who called my attention to the proposition, and as I have great faith in his judgment and integrity, I have in those preliminares relied upon him.

"Since the publication in Colliers' Weekly, I got and examined the circular advertisements referred to in that article. It may be that they contain statements too highly colored, although known results from placer mining by improved methods of dredging in other fields where the circumstances and conditions were less promising than those which experienced and capable engineers say exist on this property would seem to make their statements plausible in fact.

"However, if I had known of these advertisements before they were made, I would have insisted on greater conservatism in statement, for I would much rather err on the side of conservatism that otherwise. Nevertheless, these advertisements are only intended to call the attention of investors to the property that they might afterward examine into it and pass upon the proposition according to their own judgments, as I did.

"These gentlemen may be over-optimistic, although they insist to the contrary, but, although mistaken, I have no doubt of their belief in the verity of all they have written or spoken. The criticism which has been made in the publications referred to has not been against the legitimacy of the enterprise itself, nor of my right to invest my own money in its shares, but the criticism has been leveled against alleged exaggerations in one or two advertising circulars with which, as I have said, I had nothing to do and knew nothing about.

"Finally, I will say that the covert insinuation in the St. Louis paper that I was engaged in a scheme to swindle somebody out of a few paltry dollars, is unworthw of more than a passing notice. After living nearly half a century in Missouri, I do not believe that any man, not even an enemy, not even the Post-Dispatch, really supposes that I am capable of deliberately committing such a crime. I have never speculated in stocks or securities, but I have at different times invested some of my savings in cattle ranches and in mining and agricultural enterprises, and that is what I have done in this instance. As to this particular enterprise, there is one thing of which I am sure, and that is that the money paid into the company's treasury will be honestly expended, and the profits of the business, be they great or small, will be honestly distributed.

THE "REDS" CELEBRATED

THESE SHOULD ALL GET THE RUN

Chicago, Feb. 4.—"Never in the history of Chicago have the anarchists been more dangerous than they are at present," said Chief Shippey last night, after he received the secret police report of the anarchist meeting Sunday night in Illimi cafe to praise the assassins of King Carlos of Portugal.

There were 400 anarchists present at the meeting, and in spite of the effort to keep out spies, the police had a stenographer in hearing distance. It was the report of the police agent that caused the chief so much concern.

The speeces were so incendiay and the anarchists were so eager in their advocacy of assassination, that they recalled the dark days of the Haymarket tragedy, when the Chicago anarchists became so bold that they buried bombs in platoons of police at the behest of their leaders.

The principal speakers at the anarchist meeting Sunday night urged more assassinations. They had assembled at a call printed on red paper and tacked to telephone poles and old walls. Formerly there were four groups of anarchists in the city. These groups were broken up after the hanging of the four anarchists two decades ago. Now in their place appear the "United Anarchist Group of Chicago." Its membership embraces refugees fom Russia, Germany, Italy, Spain and Hungary.

The most violent of the speeches was delivered by E. McIntosh. He said:

"Who was McKinley? Was he any better than you or I or the king of Portugal? Was he not a king who was put there by a certain element to crush another weaker element? He got just what he deserved, the same as the king of Portugal, and some more in this country ought to get the same thing right now. I am with the mob. I would like to go cut right now with the mob behind me and kill every policeman on the streets and throw their bodies in the lake, like so many dead fish. I could go right now and rob every store and kill right and left.

"I am hungry. I have more respect for a robber than for any one of the unemployed, because the robber gets it, while the unemployed has not sense enough to get it. They have no sense at all. In Russia they are doing right. They kill policemen every day and they rob banks and leave receipts, saying the money will be used for the revolution. I fully sympathize with the queen of Portugal, and I am sorry she did not meet the fate of her despotic husband. My mother was a liar when she taught me to be honest and not to steal. The preacher was a liar when he told me to believe in God. They are all liars. The whole of society is a mass of liars."

The next speaker was a man named Bent. He was comparatively mild, but Dr. Price stirred up the anarchists present to a high pitch of enthusiasm. He said:

"We ought to take all of the so-called sworn policemen of this city down on Michigan avenue and arrest all the unemployed, who ride in carriages and moto cars. Then those arrested should be put on a rock pile and at night locked up in jail, as they are parasites. We will have to destroy the ruling capitalistic class, just as the Portuguese king was destroyed."

KILL KING AND A PRINCE

CARLOS, OF PORTUGAL, AND HIS ELDER SON WERE THE TWO VICTIMS.

ALSO WOUND THE INFANT MANUEL

Follows Decree Giving Cabinet Unlimited Power to Repress Revolutionary Movement That Threatened Throne.

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—Premier Franco has relinquished power and a new cabinet has been formed, with Admiral Ferriera De Armaral as its president in place of the late dictator, Franco. This step signalizes the practical withdrawal of Franco, who was responsible for the fateful uprising. Franco agreed to this measure as the only one calculated to pacify hostile public opinion at a time when only a spark is needed to inflame the whole country and hurl it headlong into a bloody revolution. It is nevertheless believed that Franco will still be the "man of power," although his official preragatives are at least shorn of any real authority. The opening session of the new council was held today. King Manuel appeared before his ministers and in a voice vibrant with emotion said:

"I am yet without experience either in science or in politics and I place myself entirely in your hands, needing and believing in your patriotism and wisdom."

Battleships Ordered to Lisbon.

Madrid, Feb. 3.—The Spanish government has ordered the cruiser Princeca De Asurias to proceed at once to Lisbon.

Story of the Assassination.

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—King Carlos, of Portugal and the Crown Prince Luis Phillippe were assassinated Saturday and the city is in a state of uproar. The king's second son, the Infant Manuel, was slightly wounded, but Queen Amelie, who strove to save the crown prince's life by throwing herself upon him, was unhurt.

A band of men waiting at the corner of the Praco de Commercio and the Rua de Arsenal suddenly sprang toward the open carriage in which the royal family were driving to the palace, and leveling carbines, which they had concealed, upon them, fired.

The king and crown prince, upon whom the attack was directed, were each shot three times, and they lived only long enough to be carried to the marine arsenal nearby, where they expired.

Almost at the first shot the king fell back on the cushions dying, and at the same moment the crown prince was seen to half rise and then sink back on the seat.

Queen Amelie jumped up and threw herself toward the crown prince, in an apparent effort to save his life at the cost of her own, but the prince already has received his death wound.

The royal family were returning from Villa Vicosa, where they had been sojourning, and were on their way from the railroad station to the palace. A strong guard was in attendance, because of the recent uprising in the city and the discovery of a plot to assassinate Premier France and overthrow the monarchy. But the band of murderers had selected the most advantageous spot for the commission of their crime, for they were concealed from the eyes of the party until the vehicle had come into the Praco de Commercio, a large square.

Before any of the guard were aware of what was happening, the assassins leaped to the carriage and instantly a fusillade of shots rang out. In a moment all was terrible confusion, the king and crown prince being shot down without the slightest chance to save themselves. Police guards sprang upon the regicides, the number of whom is somewhat uncertain, and killed two of them and captured one other, who is believed to have killed himself in prison. It is charged that one of the murderers was a Spaniard named Cordova.

The bodies of the king and crown prince were removed from the marine arsenal in two closed carriages to the royal palace, the Paco das Necessidades, the late residence of the king, and escorted by municipal guards, mounted.

The news of the assassination swept through the city like fire through dry grass, and half the populace is panic stricken, not knowing where the next blow may fall. There is the greatest dread for the future of the country, which seems on the verge of being plunged into the awful throes of a revolution, with all the attendant horrors and bloodshed. Throughout tho city consternation reigns, and all the houses and business places are barricaded.

An examination of the wounds of the king, who was already dead when he reached the arsenal, showed that three bullets had found their mark. One wound was situated at the nape of the neck, a second in the shoulder, and the third, which was a fatal wound, severed the carotid artery. The crown prince, who was still breathing, but who died almost immediately after admission to the arsenal, had suffered three wounds in the head and chest. Two bullets had struck Prince Manuel, one on the lower jaw, and the other in the arm.

It is understood that Queen Amelie will be regent during the minority of Prince Manuel, who is now in his 19th year.

A decree had just been gazetted today, giving the cabinet unlimited power to repress revolutionary agitation in Portugal. This decree is framed on the lines of the bill recently introduced in the Spanish cortes, but is is more sweeping in arbitrary. It empowers the cabinet to expel from the kingdom or exile to the colonies members of all associations that are deemed inimical to the state or that are conducting a campaign against public security; it suspends parliamentary immunity, and it compares all persons sentenced for political agitation to criminals and deprives them of their civil rghts, titles, decorations, etc. The decree is retroactive to January 21.

King Manuel Makes Appeal.

Lisbon. Feb. 3.—An abdominable outrage has oppressed with deepest bitterness my heart as a son and brother. I know that the nation shares my grief and abhors this horrible, dastardly crime, which is unprecedented in history. I am summoned by the constitution to preside over the destinies of the kingdom, and in the task I will employ all my efforts for the welfare of the country and to deserve the love of the Portuguese people. I swear to maintain the Catholic religion and the integrity of the kingdom and to observe and cause to be observed the political constitution of the nation.

I further declare that it pleases me to retain in office the present ministers.

Given at the palace, February 2, 1908.

DON MANUEL, II.

Franco to Crush Insurrection.

London, Feb. 3.—It is reported that the British Atlantic fleet now at Vigo has been ordered to Lisbon to watch events.

ANOTHER GOOD MEETING

Evangelist Williams Spoke Last Night on "Our Attorney."

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

The rain and ice did not cool the ardor of many who have been attending the revival at the First M. E church, as there was a good congregation at the service last night. The people seem to delight to hear the drummer preach and Mr. Montgomery sing.

At the close of the address the altar and front of the church was crowded by those who desired to put all into the hands of the crucified one.

Mr. Williams took for his subject, "Our Attorney."

Evangelist Wiliams certainly knows how to "deliver the goods" and all who heard him will want to hear him again. All others are invited to hear him tonight on "Trimming Up or Getting Ready." In the sermon Mr. Williams will tell five or ten minutes of their experience in the San Francisco quake and fire.

Mr. Williams' style of address is frank, straight from the shoulder and convincing, and it was with the most intense interest that his audience listened to every word of his lecture. He speaks with tremendous force and earnestness, and his audience scarcely realize the length of time he speaks.

His message shows a deep insight in the word of God. Striking originality and thrilling eloquence further his arrows which hit with tremendous force. He can smooth and mellow the heart until the listener can almost hear heavenly melodies, and he can sweep on clothed with thunder of battle, making the men quake with fear of impending doom.

Mrs. Williams led the meeting yesterday afternoon at 2:30. She gave an exposition of the 23d Psalm. The people are delighted to hear Mrs. Williams.

At 9 a. m. today Messrs. Williams and Montgomery by invitation attend South college and gave the students a sample of the Gospel and song.

He said he was licked out of school and licked in and missed a whole lot of lickings he ought to have had. Education is what you pull out of a person, not what you put in. So when a boy they first pulled A out of him, then they pulled a B out. They put c-a-t together and pulled a cat out of him. You don't get an education and, like the diploma, frame it in a day. When we find out we don't know, is when we are in the best state of mind to know.

They also spoke at Hill's Business college at 1:30 p. m. today. There is a possibility of Mr. Montgomery and Williams and their wives joining forces for their next fall and winter campaign. If they do, they will surely make the big four.

The subject tonight will be "The Last Invitation."

LICENSE IS PERPETUAL

THIS IS THE RULING ON AUTOMOBILES IN STATE OF MISSOURI.

THIS AFFECTS NUMBER IN SEDALIA

Secretary of State Swanger Relieves Those Who Would Pay Twice —Second License Only for a New Machine.

Jefferson City, Feb. 3.—An automobile license, issued under the state law, by Secretary of State Swanger, is good indifinitely, according to a ruling made by him.

That is to say, it is good so long as the licenses uses the machine on which the license is taken out. Should he procure a new machine, or one of another kind, it will be necessary to take out a new license.

This ruling was made because many applications have been made the past few days to the secretary of state for licenses by automobile owners who took out licenses a year ago when the law went into effect and who are under the impression that it was an annual license.

The legislature may have intended it to be an annual tax on the owners of bubble wagons, but if it did intend such a tax, the law is so worded that no other construction than the one placed upon it by the secretary can be construed from it.

This will make the accessions from this source to the "good roads fund" a very limited one. The law has brought from this source to the fund up to the present time something like $13,000, but in the future the amount will be much smaller, as license will only have to be procured when a new machine is put into commission.

GARTER GIFT BRINGS SCRAP

Student Friend Inquires About Present Made Girl.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 5.—A garter with a pretty silk ribbon and an engraved fraternity buckle was at the bottom of a vicious assault by Carl M. Clemens, of Snohomish, Wash., upon R. H. Dosh, a young Stewart lawyer.

Dosh and Mrs. Clemens were class mates at Simpson college, Indianola, Iowa, fifteen years ago, and one Christmas the boys decided to give their girl friends garters.

Dosh gave one to Mrs. Clemens. This was before Clemens met his present wife. Mrs. Clemens and Dosh have not met for years, neither have they corresponded, but Clemens has brooded over the garter and its fraternity buckle.

Clemens met Dosh at the capital and asked him, "How about that garter?" Nothing that Dosh could say would clear up the matter and so Clemens struck him.

NO USE FOR "BOYCOTTS"

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT HOLDS UNIONS ARE LIABLE TO FINE.

MONDAY'S RULING WAS UNANIMOUS

Chief Justice Fuller Says Ban on Factory Is Illegal—The Federation of Labor Is Likely to Suffer.

Washington, Feb. 4.—By far the most serious blow that has yet been delivered by the supreme court of the United States to organized labor was given yesterday, when the tribunal announced its decision that labor organizations are liable for damages for boycotts against manufacturers engaged in interstate commerce.

The decision was rendered in the case of Loewe & Co., hat manufacturers of Danbury, Conn., vs. Martin Lawlor and 200 other members of the United Hatters' union of that city.

The decision of the court was announced by Chief Justice Fuller and reversed the holding of the United States circuit court of appeals for the second circuit.

The opinion of the court was unanimous, and no dissenting view was presented. Chief Justice Fuller said:

"In our opinion the combination described in the declaration is a combination in restraint of trade or commerce in the several states, in the sense in which those words are used in the act, and the action can be maintained accordingly, and that conclusion rests on many judgments of this court, to the effect that the act prohibits any combination whatever to secure action which effectually obstructs the free flow of commerce between the states, or restricts in that regard the libety of business.

The combination chaged falls within the class of restraints of trade aimed to compel third parties and strangers involuntarily not to engage in the course of trade, except on conditions that the combination imposes.

"In this case the restraint alleged would operate to entirely destroy the defendant's business, and thereby include intra-state trade as well; that physical obstruction is not alleged as contemplated, and the defendants are not themselves engaged in intra-state trade.

"We think none of the objections are tenable, and that they are disposed of by pevious decisions of this court."

The suit was instituted by Loewe & Co. in the United States circuit court in Connecticut. The company, alleging damages by a boycott against their factory to the extent of $80,000, asked for a judgment of $240,000, in accordance with the terms of the Sherman act. Not only the members of the Hatters' union, but the American Federation of Labor, of which the latter organization is a subordinate organization, was included in the bill.

Attorneys who listened to the opinion expressed the belief that the decision means defeat for the American Federation of Labor in the fight the American Manufacturers' association has been making for the prohibition of the publication of the "We Don't Patronize list," in which are the names of nearly 100 manufacturers.

Judge Alton B. Parker is in Washington now looking after the defense of union labor in that case. The American Federation of Labor was made a party to the case decided yesterday, and is, therefore, liable for damages.

President Gompers, of that organization, when informed of the decision of the court, declined to make any comment "at this time."

Car Employes Get Bonus.

The Pullman Palace Car company Monday distributed $174,850 among 5770 employes of its car service department. The bonus amounts to one month's salary for every conductor and porter who continued on the pay roll of the company throughout 1907 and escaped demerits.

The maximum number of porters employed during the year was 4,400, and conductors 1689. Not all of these were eligible because they had not been in the employ of the company for a full year.

Others were unable to show a record free from adverse reports. It is the intention of the company to grant the bonus of one month's pay each year hereafter to such conductors and porters as make a clean record throughout the year.

Boiler Makers' Strike Ended.

President Gallivan, of the International Union of Boiler Makers, yesterday announced that the strike of boiler makers against the several railroads in Minnesota is declared off.

This announcement follows the vote which was taken last week to determine whether the strike should continue. Mr. Gallivan said that weather conditions have been against the men, as the roads have not needed the equipment that they would ordinarily have needed in a severe winter. The men have been on strike since September.

The railroad officials announced that they will take back such men as they need.

FIRST DAY IN MATTEAWAN ASYLUM

Breakfasts at "Knife-and-Fork Table" After Sleeping Soundly All Night—Patient Had a Large Roll of Money.

Mattewan, N. Y., Feb. 3.— Harry K. Thaw began Sunday the routine of simple life which the authorities of the State Hospital for the Criminal insane say will make his long stay in the Tombs prison in New York City seem like the height of gayety in comparison.

The new patient in the observation ward slept soundly Saturday night, the presence of the other fifty men in the dormitory not giving him the slightest concern. It was after the usual retiring hour when Thaw reached the hospital and he immediately went to bed. He had enjoyed the trip from New York with his counsel, as well as the dinner at the hotel in Fishkill Landing.

Although the two deputies who accompanied him were guests at the dinner, there was no suggestion of prison or asylum restriction during the repast, and Thaw found the occasion much to his liking. He arose Sunday morning at 6 o'clock and ate a hearty breakfast at the knife-and-fork table.

Only fifty-four men out of the more than 700 in the institution are allowed this privilege, the others being restricted to spoons.

Thaw seemed much refreshed from his long sleep and declared he needed the rest after the trying hours of Friday and Saturday while the jury was out and seemingly unable to agree upon a verdict.

About 500 men were in the main dining room when Thaw reached the breakfast table Sunday, and he was the center of attraction. The novelty of the noted patient's presence was not worn off by dinner time, and he was compelled again to eat under the scrutiny of many eyes.

No arrangement for specially prepared meals having yet been made for him, Thaw shared the hospital fare with all the others. His dinner included roast pork, potatoes, sauerkraut, bread, butter and coffee.

Thaw attended divine services in the hospital auditorium or theater, conducted by the Rev. Harry Sheldon, pastor of the Fishkill Landing Methodist Episcopal church. One hundred patients were present and Thaw expressed a desire to attend. Unless patients especially request it, they do not attend the Sunday religious services, which are conducted by ministers of various denominations.

During the day Thaw declared to one of the attendants that he probably would not be in the hospital more than one week. He said his lawyers would sue out a writ of habeas corpus in his behalf and he was sure he would be allowed his liberty as the result of a hearing in court or an inquiry before a commission.

Thaw's picture and measurements for the hospital record will be taken during the early part of the week. He already has given his age to the authorities as 37 years. During his stay in the observation ward, prior to his being assigned to some paticular division, or to private quarters, Thaw will be under the immediate supervision of Dr. A. T. Baker, one of the medical assistants to Superintendent Lamb. Dr. Baker said Sunday he would not allow Thaw to have liquor and tobacco unless his condition seemed to demand them for a time in medical moderation.

Thaw brought a large sum of money with him to the hospital, but finding that he would not be allowed its custody, handed it to a newspaper man who turned it over to his counsel. During the week provision will be made by the family for special meals and table delicacies for Thaw, the money being placed in the hands of the authorities.

At 5 o'clock last afternoon Dr. Britton D. Evans, of West Plains, N. J., and Dr. Smith Ely Jellife, of New York, alienists, arrived at the hospital. They were employed by the defense in the trials of Thaw, and while both evaded questions as to their presence here, it is said that they came at the instigation of Mrs. William Thaw to examine her son and to be prepared with evidence when the habeas corpus proceedings are brought up to liberate him.

"We just had a Sunday off," said Dr. Evans, who declared at the first trial that Thaw had a "brain storm," "so we came up to see Harry."

FORTY-EIGHT WITNESSES

In a Will Contest Case Decided by Judge Hoffman.

In the Pettis county circuit court, Tuesday afternoon, the case of David Lewis Stiles to break the will of his mother, Mrs. Stiles, and against Mrs. Jennie Lee Vaughn and other heirs, was decided in favor of the defendants.

The case was brought here on a change of venue from Henry county, and it was the second time it had been before the Pettis county court.

After the plaintiffs had introduced all their evidence, the defendants' attorneys submitted a demurrer to the evidence.

The jury was excused, and, after the motion had been argued by the attorneys, Judge Hoffman sustained the demurrer and upheld the will as made by Mrs. Stiles. The court's decision will probably end the case.

There were forty-eight witnesses sworn and the accruel costs will amount to between $400 and $500. There was much interest taken on both sides, and fully a hundred people from Henry, Johnson and Pettis counties attended the trial.

A LEAP YEAR MARRIAGE

Woman Who Owns Farm Found Affinity in Poor House.

Aurora, Mo., Feb. 3.—Perhaps the most unique leap-year marriage recorded so far is that of Miss Johanna Thieme, of Howell county, who found her affinity at the poor farm near West Plains, and twenty-five minutes after she had first met him they were man and wife.

William Mitchell, a young man, sought the refuge of the county charity institution, little thinking good luck was to come to him. Miss Thieme visited the farm and at fifteen minutes of 7 met Mitchell and at seven minutes of 7 proposed to him.

Chary of the offer, he did not accept quickly, and a coaxing process was resorted to, resulting in Mitchell accepting the offer at ten minutes after 7. Rev. D. L. Stottlemeyer performed the nuptial ceremony.

Mrs. Mitchell says she is the owner of a good farm.

DIED ON A "KATY" TRAIN

The End to James Hendren, of Overton, Mo., Saturday Night.

A telephone message from the city marshal of Windsor, Mo., to the police here yesterday afternoon said that a man thought to be a resident of Kansas City died on a Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train Saturday night, says Monday's Kansas City Times. On the back of a card found in the man's pocket the name Edward Broyles 21 Spring street, Kansas City, was written.

"His name is James Hendren and he's my cousin by marriage," Edward Broyles said last night. "His home is in Overton, Mo., where his father and family reside."

THE VERDICT MEANB A WEDDING

A Romance in Which Harry Rashall and Miss Minnie Poporosky, Only Seventeen Years Old, Figure as Principals.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 3.—Harry Rashall, 21 years old, a brother-in-law of Benjamin Pollock, of 810 Troost avenue, was to have married Miss Minnie Poporosky, 17 years old, in St. Louis last June.

He was then yard clerk for the Iron Mountain railroad in East St. Louis, Ill. A week before the wedding day, while crossing a switch in the yards, an Iron Mountain engine struck him and his left leg and left arm were cut off.

For weeks he lay in a hospital and each day his finacee took him flowers. Then he left the hospital and came to Kansas City to live with his brother-in-law.

While a suit, brought by his attorneys, Walsh & Morrison, against the railroad company, was on trial in the circuit court last week, Miss Poporosky sat by his side watching the faces of the jurors and listening to the testimony. She was, herself, a witness in the trial.

After deliberating thirty-five minutes Saturday afternoon the jury returned a verdict of $35,000 in favor of Rashall. It was one of the biggest verdicts ever returned by a jury in the circuit court for personal injuries. The young man grasped the young woman's hand and tears came into their eyes.

"You will be married now?" they were asked.

"Yes," they replied, "but we will have to wait until the case is appealed to the supreme court and decided there."

A SPEAKER GREW ANGRY

"TO HELL WITH KANSAS CITY, KANSAS," HE SHOUTED AT COLUMBIA.

JUDGE STEWART WAS SULPHUROUS

Irate Because Big Part of Crowd Did Not Want to Hear Him Talk —Fierce Language Is Indulged In.

"To hell with Kansas City, Kansas! It's Columbia we're interested in."

These were the opening words of Judge John A. Stewart last night at the close of the meeting of advocates of high license, in the course of which Vernon T. Rose and Boyle G. Clark, in telling addresses, had showed up the prohibition farce in Kansas City, Kas., with its joints, its vacant houses and the all-round rottenness of the system by which it is falsely asserted that Kansas prohibits the sale of liquor, says the Columbia Tribune of Tuesday.

On account of the fact that the meeting was known to be a meeting of the advocates of high license, and that a number of local optionists had gathered in the front of the house and hissed and otherwise interrupted Mr. Rose and Mr. Clark in their speeches, a large portion of the audience got up to leave when Judge Stewart got up to speak. This enraged the judge and he yelled, waving his arms frantically:

"Run! you dirty cowards, run! Cowards! Cowards! Cowards! You won't stay to listen to a man who has spent $50,000 in building up your city. It's an outrage! A shame not to be treated fairly."

In view of the hissing and frequent interruptions of the speakers for high license and the further fact that during all the meetings of the local optionists no high license advocate had ever interrupted in any way, but had given respectful hearing, the judge's charge of unfairness struck the fair-minded people in the audience as amusing.

Immediately after Judge Stewart had consigned the Kansas town to a sulphurous doom, some equally excited "dry" on one side of the house added:

"To hell with the chief of police of Kansas City, Kansas, too!"

"Columbia will be here when Kansas City, Kansas, is in hell!" rejoined Judge Stewart.

Then pandemonium reigned. The "drys" vehemently demanded a hearing and Judge Stewart swung his arms like the wind mills that Don Quixote fought so valiantly and his clamorings for "fair play" put to shame the sonorous bellowings of the proverbial bull of Basham.

The "wets" who remained inside were equally as boisterous and the scene that followed for a few seconds was disgraceful and resembled more a city ward political riot than a public meeting in staid and dignified Columbia. Those "wets" who had gotten outside thought from the uproar inside that a fight was in progress and came back to see the fun. Judge Stewart then began speaking, among the cheers of the "drys" and the hoots of the "wets."

He stated that $3.15 on the $100 valuation was not much of tax on property like Columbia property and that the debt of $160,000 for the water works and electric light plant did not amount to much. "I'll give $200,000 for it," he said, and with a motion toward his vest pocket, added "and I'll pay $20,000 of it tonight."

The judge then said that $6 in taxes added to properties worth $7,000 the deficit in revenue could be paid. He also referred to the loss there would be from the legislature shutting off appropriations and said it would mean more to Columbia than saloon licenses.

Judge Charles J. Walker and Rev. N. A. Hart followed Judge Stewart in speeches strongly advocating the adoption of prohibition.

GOES BACK TO THE NAVY

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Luther Reinart, the confessed deserter from the United States navy, was arrested for the second time by Officer Card in Southeast Sedalia at 7 o'clock last night. He was taken to the city calaboose and lodged behind the bars.

Tomorrow either Chief of Police Boullt or one of his men will leave for Norfolk, Va., to return Reinart to the navy.

A letter was received by Chief Boullt yesterday, asking that Reinart be rearrested and returned to the navy. All expenses are to be paid for returning the deserter and also a reward of $20 for his apprehension.

Reinart enlisted in the navy at Oklahoma City on March 20, 1907, and deserted the battleship Missouri on November 29, 1907. He was arrested several weeks ago by Officer Card, but later was released, as the naval authorities appeared not to desire his return.

While awaiting word from Washington, Reinart broke jail and escaped, but was later recaptured.

WARM RELIGIOUS FIGHT

AUTHORS OF ANONYMOUS LETTER DARE M. H. LEWIS, OF CLARENCE.

SERVICES ATTRACTED BIG CROWDS

Cause of Threat, It Is Supposed, Is Excitement Incident to L. J. King's Holiness Meetings in Clarence, Mo.

Clarence, Mo., Feb. 5.—An anonymous letter, threatening possible death to himself and family, has been received by M. H. Lewis, assistant cashier of the Clarence Savings bank, as one result of the trouble over the holiness meetings now being held here by Rev. L. J. King.

The letter states that, unless Mr. Lewis "changes his views," his house will be dynamited. The King holiness meetings are causing much excitement, as much now as before the preacher was attacked and beaten by a mob as he was leaving the building where he preached one evening some three weeks ago.

It is suspected that the same people who composed the mob were responsible for the anonymous letter to Mr. Lewis, but as there has never been any inkling given as to who were in the mob there is nothing for Mr. Lewis of the city officials to work upon in an effort to locate the author of the letter. Mr. Lewis refuses to turn the letter over to the postal authorities, saying that he prefers to let the matter drop without allowing it to cause any more trouble.

Mr. Lewis is president of the town board and was acting mayor of Clarence when Mayor Dimmitt was in St. Louis recently. During the time Mayor Dimmitt was out of the city, King, who had left Clarence after being mobbed, returned and resumed his meetings. Through the holiness congregation he requested the acting mayor to detail policemen at the Bible seminary, where the meetings are held, and Mr. Lewis did as requested, deputizing special officers for the purpose.

When Mayor Dimmitt returned home he is said to have regarded the expenditure of the city's money for the special guard as unwise, and to have ordered the men relieved from their work. It is supposed that the author of the mysterious letter thinks Mr. Lewis is in sympathy with King, and has taken this means to win him to the opposition. No other reason can be conjectured for the sending of the letter, as Mr. Lewis is not known to have any enemies, and his business and official life are above blame.

King's meetings are attracting large crowds every evening. Sunday afternoon he held a large meeting, and every night the auditorium where he speaks is crowded. He is said to be especially harsh in his criticism of the Catholic and Methodist denominations and his lecture Monday night was on the nuns.

The services are being held in the Bible seminary in the western part of town. The building was formerly the property of the M. E. church, South, and was then known as the Macon district high school, but for several years it was not a success financially and was sold to the holiness congregation. The latter organization opened the Bible seminary and placed Rev. Kimbrough in charge.

Kimbrough was with King when the latter was beaten by the mob several weeks ago, and the fact that the local man was at first mistaken for King gave rise to the theory that the mob was composed of people who do not live in Clarence, else they would have known Kimbrough from King instantly.

HAD A TEN ROUND FIGHT

UNHOLZ HITS DANE ALMOST AT WILL, SCORING A CLEAN KNOCKDOWN.

THE RESULT WAS NEVER IN DOUBT

Battler Takes Fearful Punishment in Every Session—Peculiar Guard of Opponent Puzzles the Former Champion.

Los Angeles, Feb. 5.—Rudolph Unholz had the better of Battling Nelson in a ten-round go before the Pacific Athletic club here last night.

Under the city ordinances no decision could be given, but there was no doubt of the result.

The Boer had all of the best of every round in the matter of blows exchanged. He punished Nelson considerably and had him bleeding freely at the nose and mouth almost from the start. He knocked the Battler down in the first round with a lightning left to the point of the jaw.

Unholz seemed to be a puzzle to Nelson. The latter was constantly on the aggressive, but his efforts availed him little.

He led repeatedly, but Unholz, fighting him with his left shoulder held high to protect his head and chin, escaped punishment almost altogether.

EVIDENCE VERY STRONG

The Pennsylvania Capital Boodling Case Reaches Important Stage.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 5.—All doubts as to the attitude of Architect Joseph M. Huston toward his co-defendants in the capitol conspiracy trial were dispelled today by the testimony of his assistant, Stanford B. Lewis, who gave damaging evidence against the defendants.

Lewis gave testimony which showed that while the original form of certificates used by Huston were the same as those used by all architects, the form was so changed by direction of Snyder as to specifically include weights and measurements.

The prosecution claims that the change in the form of the certificates was made so that the responsibility for checking up the furnishings would be shifted to the architect instead of being on Snyder and Shumaker, the other defendants.

FLORIDA'S FAIR OPENS

BE MANY VISITORS FROM THE NORTH

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 5.—With great throngs of interested spectators crowding the grounds, the Florida State fair was formally inaugurated today and will remain open throughout the month.

As the only state fair to be held in the United States during the winter, is will be visited by many thousands of tourists who flock to this section to escape the frigid weather of the north and west.

Many prominent men are expected to attend the fair during the month and to deliver addresses, among them William Jennings Bryan, Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Governor Joseph Folk, of Missouri, and others.

Among the novel features at the fair is the famous airship Eagle, which won the prize and diamond medal at a great international contest in Chicago. This airship which will make daily flights in and around Tampa, also made a wonderful record in the recent race from St. Louis to the Atlantic coast, being prevented from winning over foreign balloons by an accident.

The horse racing will be infinitely better than that at former fairs, as evinced by the fact that 300 runners will be brought from New Orleans, the racing center of the south. Tampa has been admitted into membership of the National Racing association, which is a guarantee that every race will be absolutely "straight," and that the meeting will be conducted in a most up-to-date manner.

One of the finest features of the fair will be the horse show, which will be on a much finer scale than that of last November. Cash premiums will be given in each class shown, and the finest saddle, harness and draught horses in the state will be exhibited.

A feature of the fair which will undoubtedly attract great attention among the agriculturists, horticulturists and fruit growers of the state will be daily lectures to be given by experts from the national department of agriculture at Washington.

Beginning with the inaugural exercises on the grounds today, there will be something doing every day at the big fair until the gates close on February 29.

NO GAMBLING ON RACES

GOV. HUGHES, OF NEW YORK, HAS THE RIGHT IDEA IN THE PREMISES.

TO MAKE EVIL NO LONGER POSSIBLE

New York, Feb. 3.—Governor Chas. E. Hughes made a trenchant plea for the abolition of race track gambling in a speech delivered Sunday at the Majestic theater, in Brooklyn, in a mass meeting of the "citizens' anti-race track gambling campaign.'

Joseph H. Choate presided over the meeting, which was largely attended by representative citizens. A resolution strongly supporting Governor Hughes' position and requesting the legislative committee to report out three bills already drawn to end race track gambling was passed.

The governor was given an ovation when he commenced his speech. He said in part:

"Now, there is a great deal that might be said with regard to the demoralization incident to race track gambling. What we want to encourage in this country is the disposition to work, to give an equivalent and to expect and get an equivalent for every honest effort, and the curse is the constant desire to get something for nothing; and with man or boy, if that microbe gets into the system, there is going to be a bad case of moral disorder.

"Now, it is American to want to work, to make the most of yourself, and a boy who learns to follow the racing sheets and the man who plays the races in the hope that he will get a dollar which he has not earned, or $10 which he has no right to take —that young man has lost the American sentiment, he has lost really what is the most important part of his birthright.

"Now, my friends, we have heard a great deal about improving the breed of horses. I am for that—the breed of horses will suffer from the stock. I am thoroughly in favor of doing all we can to improve the breed of men. I do not believe that the breed of horses will suer from the other policy. I do not believe any reasonable amount of enjoyment will be lost. I have heard it said by those who ought to know that racing will not be seriously jeopardized. I am not against racing. I am against race track gambling. If the one depends upon the other, I am sorry for that. I regret that, but that is no reason why we should have our constitution unrecognized and this widespread demoralization which could be so easily prevented.

"Let us take care of our manhood. Let us take care of the enforcement of our fundamental law and let from all the state the sentiment be expressed that the people desire the legislation which has proved ineffective—that puts it mildly—which has proved iniquitous, should be changed and supplanted by legislation which will make this evil no longer possible."

Adrian, Mich., Feb. 3.—The Detroit accommodation train on the Wabash railroad, due at 7:47, and running late, was wrecked 2½ miles east of here shortly before 10 o'clock last night.

HOMES BEING BROKEN UP

BY UNSCRUPULOUS PHRENOLOGISTS IN PITTSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA.

MOST DAMNABLE SCHEME EXPOSED

The Comely Wives of Poor Men in the Smoky City Are Being Urged to Take Up With Certain Capitalists There.

Pittsburg, Penn., Feb. 3.—Prof. W. Austin, phrenologist, was given a hearing on the charge of being a suspicious character, and unless he pays his fine he will be sent to the workhouse for 60 days.

The police claim that the comely wives of poor men of Pittsburg are being urged by certain phrenologists to leave their husbands and take up with some of the wealthy men of Pittsburg.

The arrest of Austin is according to Chief of Police Edwin McGough, the first step in rooting out the evil.

A comely young lady detective of the Pittsburg force was sent for a sitting with Austin. After feeling a few of her "bumps" Austin said to the detective, who had passed herself off as the wife of a Greensburg doctor:

"You are not happily mated."

"But what shall I do?" said the masquerading lady detective coyly.

"Why, there are a lot of rich men in Pittsburg who would be pleased to know you. I know a lot of them and will be glad to introduce you to them."

The lady detective made an appointment to meet Austin the next afternoon when she was to "be put next" to one of the Pittsburg rich men.

CABIN "BOY" WHISTLED

Police Staggered the Crew by Revealing Her Identity.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 3.—"Jimmy" Allen, cabin boy on the Falls City, was arrested as Mildred Allen, and she admits that she is.

On another occasion Mildred acted as assistant barkeeper in a local saloon, and when arrested promised to masquerade no more.

Three months ago she ran away again and since then she has served as "boy" and "porter" on several boats. She was whittling and whistling when arrested.

RED HOT TIME IN COURT

DIVORCE CASE OF THE BRADBURYS BEFORE JUDGE HOFFMAN.

STEELE AND KELLY HAVE IT AGAIN

The Court Became Disgusted and Refused to Permit the Case to Proceed, but Finally Reconsidered.

(From Monday's Daily.)

There was an interesting session in circuit court this morning, when the motion for alimony pendente lite in the divorce case of Joseph Bradbury vs. Dora Savage-Bradbury was called.

W. D. Steele represented the plaintiff and Attorneys C. C. Kelly and Anamosa & England represented the defendant.

A female witness was placed on the stand and Mr. Steele attempted to introduce the evidence that the defendant in the case had told the witness on the stand that she never intended to stay with Bradbury and would not do so.

Mr. Kelly arose and objected strenuously, but the objection was overruled.

With a slight alteration in the wording, Mr. Steele again attempted to introduce the evidence, but again Mr. Kelly objected strenuously and vigorously.

This mode of procedure continued for some time, much to the amusement of the court officers, witnesses and spectators, with the exception of Judge Hoffman.

Again Mr. Steele attempted to get the witness to say what the defendant in the case had told her, but again Mr. Kelly objected.

The objection was again overruled, and Judge Hoffman, whose ire by this time had about reached the climax, cautioned Mr. Kelly to keep his place and quit objecting so much, under penalty of being fined.

After heated arguments and discussions, Judge Hoffman suddenly discharged the witness and informed the attoneys that he would not even listen to an argument of the case.

Mr. Kelly began explaining, and finally the judge gave each side fifteen minutes in which to conclude their remarks.

Bradbury and the defendant in the case were married at the home of Mrs. Polly Bryant Howe in this city last June.

Immediately after the ceremony, it is alleged, the new wife induced her husband to give her a deed to a large section of land in Pettis county. After securing the deed of trust she left him.

Mr. Bradbury filed suit for divorce, and later his wife filed suit for alimony, pending the final disposition of the case.

ATTEMPT TO FREE THAW

Insanity Experts Are Once More Studying His Actions in the Asylum, but All Are Non-Committal Now.

New York, Feb. 4.—If any attempt is made to have Harry K. Thaw released from the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan there will be vigorous opposition from District Attorney Jerome.

In any course that is taken the district attorney will be notified, and it is understood that he will present the record at the trial, the opening speech of Mr. Littleton and all the evidence in the case, including the statements of his experts at Thaw's first trial that Thaw was incurably insane, to oppose any application for his release.

Mr. Littleton said yesterday that he was still counsel for Thaw. If Mr. Littleton's advice is followed no attempt will be made to get Thaw out of the asylum for at least three weeks.

Wife Visits Harry Thaw.

Matteawan, N. Y., Feb. 4.—The monotony of Harry K. Thaw's second day at the Matteawan state hospital was broken by a visit from his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Mrs. Thaw was accompanied by Daniel O'Reilly, of Thaw's counsel, and several newspaper men. News of Mrs. Thaw's intended visit had preceded her, and there was a great crowd at the station to meet her.

It was nearly 3 o'clock when Mrs. Thaw reached the hospital. Dr. Britton Evans was at the asylum when she arrived. He was conversing with Thaw in the ward when the carriage which contained Mrs. Tha and Mr. O'Reilly drove up to the big door on the east side of the building.

The visitors were shown into the reception room and after a short wait there were conducted to ward 1 north, where Thaw is confined. The greetings exchanged between husband and wife were cordial. Mrs. Thaw remained in the ward talking to her husband for nearly an hour and a half. Thaw was much pleased over his wife's visit. He had been looking forward to it all day. Mrs. Thaw left the hospital at 5 o'clock. She will visit her husband every other day, Thaw having expressed an unwillingness to impose upon her the fatigue of a daily trip.

Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe was also a visitor at the hospital yesterday. He arrived about 5 o'clock and spent some time with the patient. He gave out no statement as to the object of his visit. Thaw seems to be trying to accommodate himself to his surroundings and has fallen into the dull routine of life at the hospital with the best grace he can command.

Overture—Orchestra.

The pastor, Rev. D. M. Clagett, preached a special sermon on "The Young People and the Church." He spoke of the relation of the young people to the church and how the church should provide for the young people. His address was very forcefully presented, and gave those present much food for thought.

The anniversary celebration as a whole will be remembered with pleasure and profit by all who were present.

CANDY ACTS AS A FUEL

TO THE HUMAN ORGANISM, THE PARIS, FRANCE, PHYSICIANS DECIDE.

CHOCOLATES SHOULD NOT BE EATEN

By Those Who Have Dyspepsia—Frenchmen Send Interesting Answers to the Question as to "What They Drink."

Paris, Feb. 4.—Paris physicians have come to the conclusion that candies are not half as bad as they are painted, that is to say, that candy, far from being so deleterious to the human organism, is beneficial to the organism and acts as a kind of human fuel, helping to maintain the heat of a person's body.

It was at a dinner of physicians, most of whom are also qualified as dentists, that a discussion arose on this subject, and the decision quoted above was come to. Sugar is a caloric, or heater, and a pound of sugar in sweetmeat form consumed by one person each day is calculated to be sufficient to keep up the heat of the body.

Some reservations were made, however, by the doctors in regard to chocolate, which contains a greater amount of fatty matter than sugar. Indeed, there is more fatty or buttery substance used in the manufacture of chocolate than in cacas, its essential basis. Chocolate, it was said, should never be eaten by people inclined to dyspepsia, kidney troubles or sluggish liver. In all other cases a moderate amount is not harmful.

Eminent Frenchmen have been answering inquisitive inquiries as to what they drink. Very few of them consider that alcohol is an incentive to genius. M. Saint-Saens, the famous composer, drinks plenteously of mineral waters, with just a little wine. He drinks beer very rarely. He says that if he could get absolutely pure mineral wates he would drink nothing else.

M. Bonnat, the painter, also finds he needs plenty of liquid refreshments, but he hates beer or any other similar alcoholic beverages. His preference is for pure wine, but after dinner he takes the merest nip of cognac.

M. Camille Flammarion never drinks water, which he considers is only fit for toilet purposes. M. Flammarion's grandfather was a wine grower and drank plenty of wine all his life, dying at the age of over 80 years, in the year when the wine was bad.

Rodin also believes in good French wine, but, on the other hand, M. Jules Lemaitre hardly ever drinks anything but water, save for a glass of champagne when he dines out.

NO BOOZE FOR STUDENTS

Local Option Election Being Held in Boone County.

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 5.—Students of the University of Missouri will have to go elsewhere to absorb liquid hilarity, if the local option election today results in a "dry" town and county, as is indicated by early returns.

The temperance people of the state have carried on a valorous campaign in advance of the election and have urged the voters to remove the temptation of strong drink from hundreds of students attracted here by the state university.

WILLIAM BECK'S LETTER

SEDALIA BOY WHO IS MIDSHIPMAN ON BATTLESHIP NEW JERSEY.

HE IS NOW WITH ATLANTIC FLEET

Missive Mailed at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, South America, January 11—Extracts That Are of Local Interest.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Capt. Louis T. Beck, the commercial traveler, today received a letter from his son, William Beck, a midshipman on the battleship New Jersey, of the Atlantic fleet, now en route to the Pacific coast, which contains much of general interest.

The missive bears dates extending from January 7 to January 11, and was mailed at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, South America, on the latter date. The Democrat-Sentinel is permitted to make the following extracts:

"Dear Folks: We left the Port of Spain at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but we had been so busy getting ready that we had had little time for anything else. We were due to leave Sunday morning, but were delayed by not having sufficient coal. Our latitude is 9:47.

"I will tell you about Trinidad. In the first place, Trinidad is the island, and the city, which is the capital and a port of Spain, has about 55,000 people. The natives are a sort of a cross between the negro and European. There are quite a number of English people here, but the majority are Coolies. They wear very bright clothes, with arms bare, and covered with silver bracelets, which they would not sell for anything.

"The city is very regularly laid out, with streets and a great many parks, street cars, electric lights and many beautiful buildings. All houses are built on the Spanish plan, on account of the heat. The hotels and clubs are built the same way. While here the officers put up at the Union and Savannah hotels, so we all had places to stay when on shore.

"We most certainly spent a peculiar Christmas. In the morning there were boat races and different amusements. We had our turkey and cranberry sauce, but you cannot enjoy Christmas unless the weather is cold. In the afternoon we all went ashore. The island is simply covered with orange, banana and cocoanut trees. I saw pretty orchids growing wild, larger than I have ever seen before. One butterfly orchid looked exactly like a butterfly.

"All the fruit here is very cheap. In the afternoon we went to the Christmas races. You never saw so many wheels of fortune and shell games in your life. You know the natives are the greatest gamblers in the world.

"Pitch lake was too far to get to it. It was over a day's trip from the Port of Spain. It is a field rather than a lake, and is not in liquid form.

"They have the funniest little railroads for the accommodation of first, second and third class passengers. This is all for Trinidad, but I might have an afterthought.

"Jan. 3—I hope this time next year to be back on the Atlantic ocean; not that I am at all dissatisfied, but there is no place like home. We have been having fine weather until today, which is very rough. New Year's was a holiday. We are making preparations to receive Neptune when we cross the line tomorrow, so I suppose I will have lots to tell.

"Yesterday we crossed the line, and as you know there are always celebrations and initiations of those who have not crossed by those who have.

"At 8:30 Neptune and Aphrodite, with all their train, came forth, and the ship was turned over to them. In the train were a doctor, dentist, barber and policeman. The ceremony consisted of shaving the victim with a mixture of molasses and red pepper.

"The dentist filled his teeth with pills of about the same mixture, and the doctor had a swab to wash out his mouth. The shaving was done with an immense razor.

"The officers, as is the custom, were allowed to pay their way across at the prize of two dozen bottles of beer, which lasted all day. We have just gotten to Rio Janeiro; the mail goes out tomorrow, so I will have to close."

Another Name for Mayor.

The name of J. W. Patrick is also [illegible]ing mentioned in connection with democratic nomination for mayor. [illegible]ng this line, W. H. Boullt, chief [illegible], will soon announce his can- [illegible] the republican ticket for [illegible] the office of chief of [illegible] coming spring election.

PASSED AWAY AT TOPEKA, KANSAS

Body Brought Here for Burial in the City Cemetery—The Deceased Was One of the Best Mechanics in the West.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

A telegram was received by the Democrat-Sentinel at the supper hour Monday evening from Jule A. Mathews, of Topeka, Kas., special agent for the Rock Island railroad, announcing the death of his father, William Mathews, at 3 o'clock Monday morning, at the son's home, 1328 Tyler street, Topeka, of general debility, aged 75 years, and stating that the body would be brought here for burial Wednesday.

The son, Jule, arrived here last midnight to make arrangements for the funeral, and the body reached here this afternoon, accompanied by a grandson, A. B. Mathews, an operator for the Rock Island road in Topeka.

The body was taken direct to the city cemetery, where Rev. S. S. Martin, pastor of the First M. E. church, conducted funeral services, after which interment was made.

The following served as pallbearers: Judge H. M. Gresham, John T. Hyatt, Charles Wentzleman, G. B. Goodrich, J. W. Tripp and James Jenkins.

William Mathews was born at Springfield, Mass., and came to Sedalia in 1868, first stopping at the old Leroy house, Sixth and Ohio streets. Mr. Mathews was an expert lock and gunsmith, a natural born mechanic along almost every line, and conducted a shop here until a couple of years ago, when illness compelled him to retire. Since that time he had made his home with his son, Jule, in Topeka.

The deceased was not a member of any church, but belonged to the A. O. U. W., he having held his membership for a long term of years. He was well and favorably known in Sedalia, and a host of friends will read of his demise with sorrow.

1908 GARDEN ANNUAL

Archias Seed Store's 1908 Publication Surpasses All Previous Ones.

The 1908 garden annual of Archias' seed store is just off the press and is ready for distribution. Every year this enterprising firm issues a catalogue, showing the many quotations and new things in agriculture, horticulture, and, in fact, everything for the farmer, poultryman and beekeeper. It requires months to get the book completed and printed, but when it is issued it is eagerly sought for, and the mails carry stacks of applications to the firm for one.

This year's catalogue contains 84 pages, with a rich cover design printed in colors. It is lavishly illustrated and conveys new information, new ideas, that have been brought to the attention of agriculturists and horticulturists within the past year, and bespeaks for the Archias seed store in keeping abreast with the times. No catalogue ever issued by this firm equals the one just published in appearance and general arrangement, and Mr. L. H. Archias, who compiled it and superintended the work of getting it out, is deserving of the many compliments he is receiving. Copies of the catalogue can be secured on application.

OFFER OF FOLK'S PASTOR

WILLING TO TAKE THE STUMP IN THE COMING SENATORIAL RACE.

REMARKS ARE NOT WELL RECEIVED

The Rev. Dr. Palmer, a Baptist Divine at the Capital, Says Governor's Enemies Admit Administration Is Clean.

Jefferson City, Feb. 4.—The Rev. Dr. Palmer, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Governor Folk is a member, proclaimed in his Sunday evening sermon that he believed Governor Folk would be elected United States senator, and that, if he believed the governor needed his active support, he would take the stump in behalf of his candidacy.

Dr. Palmer was preaching on the "Reign of Evil," and brought up a discussion of an editorial in the Boonville Advertiser, owned by Col. Charles J. Walden, once editor of the old Sentinel in Sedalia, and later state beer inspector under Governor Stephens.

"In this manifestly unfair article," said Dr. Palmer, "the governor's enemies admit that he has given the state a clean administration, and that no fault can be found with his administration of affairs. This is a wonderful admission to come from a man's enemies.

"They charge he has been untrue to his friends, the people who stood by him. That is practically the only charge. In making this charge they convict themselves of being open to a form of graft. They are friends of the governor for the sole purpose of getting their hands into the public crib."

A YOUNG BOY CUT IN TWO

FRED ISH, AGED ONLY 14 YEA

He Was a Student at Prospect School and His Father, Chris Ish, Is a Driver for the Sedalia Egg Company.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Fred Ish, the 14-year-old son of Chris C. Ish, a driver for the Sedalia Egg Co., was run down and killed by an M., K. & T. engine in the local yards here shortly after 11 o'clock this morning.

The wheels of the tender of the engine passed over his body, completely cutting it in two, and severing in pieces his right forearm.

The boy, who was a student at Prospect school, was gathering coal in a sack in the Katy yards.

Engine No. 173, in charge of Louis Yunker, hostler, was backing up a sidetrack from the sandhouse to the company roundhouse.

Apparently, neither Mr. Yunker nor his helper noticed the boy, and from the position of the body the boy did not notice the locomotive, for the corpse was lying face downward. The child's face was badly bruised and scratched.

Coroner Miller viewed the remains and decided to hold an inquest, which is being done as the Democrat-Sentinel goes to press.

The remains were taken to the Sedalia Undertaking company's and prepared for burial, but arrangements for the funeral have not yet been perfected.

On one occasion, he said, Guerin tried to extort ten thousand dollars from Mrs. McDonald in return for letters from her which he claimed to have, but the money was not paid.

ECCENTRIC OLD 'MISER"

INSANITY WAS BEST ASSET OF AMOS M'ELFISH IN MARYLAND.

THUS HE ACCUMULATED A FORTUNE

During the War, Fearing He Would Be Drafted, Got a Pole, With Pin for Hook, and Fished in Presence of Soldiers.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 3.—Amos McElfish, a miserly hermit, who died at Springfield, W. Va., a short time ago, at the age of 90, left an estate valued at $250,000, consisting of timber lands and farms in various counties of Maryland and West Virginia.

The deceased had a most novel scheme to purchase land at a low price. He would visit public sales dressed in a manner that would have shamed the average hobo and, while bidding, would act like a lunatic, making ridiculous offers, so that the auctioneer would "knock" the property down to him at a cheap figure in order to get rid of him, never thinking that such a seedy-looking individual would have the money with which to make good his offer. But, the moment the property was declared his, McElfish would produce the money and demand his right.

One one occasion, when this plan was tried, the auctioneer refused to consider the sale, but McElfish had an attorney ready and secured the farm at his own price.

During the civil war, when men were being drafted into the army, McElfish, learning that the government officers were near, was found with a pole, to which was attached a string and a bent pin, fishing about his room.

Thinking the man was actually crazy, the officers took their departure. He never married and left no will, and his heirs are scattered in various parts of the country.

Moberly, Mo., Feb. 3.—Frank Watson, employed on the farm of H. Deskin, near Moberly, on Thursday cut his throat and an artery in one of his legs, with a dull pocketknife.

He was brought to Moberly, his wounds were treated and he was placed in the city jail.

Sunday morning, when officers went to his room, they found Watson dead. He had used an undershirt as a rope and had strangled himself to death.

He Is Three Score Years Old.

County Clerk M. L. Imhoff was 60 years old Friday, and celebrated the event quietly at his home, as he is just recuperating from a severe case of la grippe. Mr. Imhoff is hale and hearty for his years, and surprises his friends when he tells them of his exact age. The Democrat-Sentinel trusts that he may be spared for at least two score of additional years.

JOIN PROHIBITION WAR

STRONG APPEAL MADE TO FARMERS

Volumes of Statistics Furnished to Show Grain Growers Will Lose in the Event Prohibition Is Adopted.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 3.—Every saloon keeper in St. Louis received in the mails Saturday a circular letter, statistics and a big one-sheet poster from the Brunswicke, Balke, Collender Co., of Chicago, manufacturers of bar fixtures, billiard and pool tables, with the request that the "literature be used in the fight against prohibition."

From the tone of the accompanying letter it was apparent that the same material has been sent to retail liquor dealers throughout the country.

"To all saloon men and wholesale liquor dealers in the United States:

"Will you please display the posters herewith some place about your premises, where they will attract the greatest amount of attention, especially from farmers and others who do not patronize saloons?

"We believe that if the farmers of this country are made aware of the fact that their pockets are likely to be affected very materially, both in loss of markets for their products and because of increased taxation, which will result through loss of revenue now borne by the liquor interests, the growing prohibition wave will receive a pronounced check.

"The figures quoted are from the most reliable sources. The information was obtained through the internal revenue office and the latest census returns.

The statistics circular sets forth that the liquor interests of the United States pays annually to the state and the government license fees amounting to $69,000,000, and that in the production of their goods they pay $355,000,000 for materials.

Then comes the one-sheet poster in red and black ink: It heads in part:

"Farmers and workingmen! Can you afford to allow the prohibition fanatic to destroy the market for your grain and labor? Brewers and distillers furnish a livelihood for upward of 2,500,000 persons and buy annually lumber, cooperage, building supplies, engines, boilers, glass and other manufactured goods having a value of $150,000,000, and they pay in license, revenue and other state, county and city taxes one-third of all taxes paid in the United States.

"Can you afford to longer allow stump speakers who pay no taxes and who are employed by city organizations which pay no taxes to add to your burden by compelling you to maintain public institutions that are now supported by the business concerns that those interlopers are trying to kill?

"An attempt is being made throughout the country to build up a political party power at the expense of the farmer and workingman.

"Farmers, do you intend to permit these crafty fanatics to rob you of the market for your grain and load you up with additional taxes which you cannot afford to pay?

"Every farmer, every workingman and every manufacturer in the United States should now assert his rights and use every effort to suppress this growing evil of prohibition and hypocritical humbug, which, if allowed to prevail, will create a financial crisis such as the world has never seen."

St. Louis saloon keepers have not complied with the request that they hang the poster in a conspicuous place.

"There's no use waving a red flag at a bull," one of them said.

Skin Diseases Develop in Connecticut Public School.

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 5.—Thirty-one cases of skin disease in the public school out of a total of fifty-four examinations showed that they were caused by pupils using the lead pencils of others.

THEY FIND THAW INSANE

JURY IN FAMOUS MURDER CASE RETURNED VERDICT SATURDAY NEAR NOON HOUR.

DELIBERATED TWENTY-FIVE HOURS

Judge Immediately Ordered Defendant Committed to Asylum for Criminal Insane—Thaw Family Pleased With Jury's Finding.

New York, Feb. 1.—Harry K. Thaw is not guilty of the murder of Stanford White because he was insane when he shot the architect on the roof of Madison Square garden. That is the verdict of the jury which reported this morning after having deliberated since yesterday morning.

The verdict does not set Thaw free. Instead it condemns the young millionaire to confinement in Mattewan, the New York asylum for the criminal insane. Judge Dowling ordered Thaw taken to the asylum, there to be confined for life or until he is shown to have been restored to his right mind. In sentencing Thaw to the asylum Justice Dowling said he believed the prisoner's discharge would be a menace to public safety.

Thaw was led back across the bridge of sighs to his cell in the Tombs and will remain there until the sheriff can arrange for his transfer to the asylum.

Everybody Was Pleased.

Both Thaw and his wife, the latter being the only member of his family in court when the jury unexpectedly returned its verdict after a deliberation of twenty-five hours, seemed pleased and satisfied with the outcome of the case. Thaw stood and smilingly bowed his acknowledgements to the jurors as they filed one by one out of the box. District Attorney Jerome also appeared satisfied, as he has contended ever since the crime was committed that Thaw was medically, if not legally, insane. Thaw's counsel thanked the jurors with a hearty handshake for each one of the twelve. Attorney Littleton also filed an exception to Justice Dowling's decision in retaining Thaw in custody and committing him to the asylum.

A Fine for One Who Cheered.

Only a few spectators were allowed to enter the court room when the jury reported. Justice Dowling warned them against any demonstration, whatsoever, but despite this, one young man broke into vociferous applause as the foreman uttered the first words of the verdict, "not guilty." He was immediately arrested, arraigned before Justice Dowling after the jury had been discharged, and fined $25 for contempt of court.

It was 12:20 o'clock this afternoon, just twenty-five hours after the jury had retired, that the first word came from their council room. An officer was dispatched to Justice Dowling's chambers to inform him that the twelve men were ready to report.

District Attorney Jerome and counsel for the defense quickly assembled, and young Mrs. Thaw rushed to her accustomed chair in the court room. Justice Dowling took his seat on the bench at 12:42 o'clock and it was about five minutes later when the verdict was announced.

Thaw Was Not Ready.

The jurors, as they took their places in the box, gave no hint of their conclusion [illegible] fact, it was generally believed that a disagreement would be announced up to the time Justice Dowling warned the spectators against making a demonstration. Thaw was not prepared for the climax of his case, and there was an appreciable delay in summoning him to the bar. When he had reached his chair at counsel table the poll of the jury was begun.

The man arrested for applauding in the court room was Theodore Roosevelt Pell, the noted tennis player.

All the doors of the courtroom were locked and save for a newspaper messenger no one was allowed to leave the chamber until the proceedings were over.

A Moment of Suspense.

Thaw was commanded to stand up and face the jurors: and they, in turn, were called to their feet.

"Jurors, look upon the defendant: defendant look upon the jurors," called Clerk Penny. "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," said Foreman Gremmels.

"What say you, is the defendant guilty or not guilty "

"Not guilty, on the ground that he was insane at the time of the commission of the crime."

Then came the applause which caused a commotion in the court room and spread a rumor outside that a great demonstration was in progress behind the big oaken doors.

After the arrest of the man, who afterward gave his name as Theodore Roosevelt Pell, the amateur tennis player, Justice Dowling immediately began his ruling as to holding Thaw in custody. First, addressing the jurors, he thanked them for their work and declared he had no doubt that they had discharged their duties

FIVE LIVES WERE LOST

CAUSE; NATURAL GAS EXPLOSION

Three-Story Rooming House That Was a Literal Fire Trap, One of the Oldest in City, Without Single Fire Escape.

Kansas City, Feb. 1.—Five persons were burned to death and twelve injured by a fire in a three-story rooming house, 1116 Wyandotte street, near the business center, this morning. The dead are:

Mrs. Jennie Bert, aged 29, of Harrisonville, Mo., a waitress.

Nana Graves, a waitress.

Mabel Porter, aged 18, a waitress.

Peter Rooney, aged 34, a cook.

Charles Johnson, aged 28, a cook.

The injured received slight burns and cuts, but none is in a dangerous condition. All the dead except Mrs. Bert lived in Kansas City.

The fire started from an explosion of natural gas in the basement at 5 o'clock this morning. The flames and dense smoke spread quickly, and before the alarm could be given all means of escape were shut off.

The persons who lost their lives were asleep on the third floor and all except Mrs. Bert burned to death in their rooms. Evidently they suffocated, and none was able to make an effort to escape.

Mrs. Bert lost her life in trying to arouse the inmates.

The dense smoke pouring up the stairway soon filled the hallways and entered the rooms.

Mrs. Bert's room was first entered by smoke. She awakened, and, hurrying down the hallway, attempted to awaken the sleeping roomers.

Smoke soon drove her to the second floor, where she tried to repeat her efforts. The smoke and flames, however, now crowded her so closely she was compelled to desist and sought to escape by a stairway.

At the top of the second floor landing she stumbled and fell headlong into the thickest of the flames. At the bottom her charred remains later were found by the firemen, the body almost unrecognizable.

The bodies of the other four victims were found in beds. Each was terribly burned, and the limbs dropped from one of them as the remains were carried from the house.

The building was a literal fire trap, one of the oldest in the city, and had no fire escapes.

TO RURAL ROUTE PATRONS

Postmaster Asks Them Not to Place Loose Coins in Boxes.

Postmaster Codding desires to call attention to the practice of some patrons of rural delivery of placing loose coins in their boxes each time they desire to dispatch letters instead of supplying themselves with postage in advance of their needs.

The practice imposes undue hardship on rural carriers in removing the coins from boxes and delays them in the service of their routes.

The postmaster, therefore, urgently requests that patrons of rural delivery provide themselves and keep on hand a supply of stamps consistent with and in advance of their needs. It is also very desirable that rural patrons place in their mail boxes small detachable cups of wood or tin in which to place coins, when necessary, in purchasing supplies of stamps.

LOOKING FOR A TRUST

JUDGE G. F. LONGAN IS INVESTIGATING CHARGES AGAINST INSURANCE COMPANIES.

HOLDING SESSION IN KANSAS CITY

Men in the Business Deny That Any Combination Exists—Claim Bureau Rates Are Not Compulsory, but Only Advisory.

Kansas City, Feb. 1.—A hearing is in progress at the Hotel Baltimore in connection with the investigation that Herbert S. Hadley, attorney general of Missouri, is making to determine if insurance companies in the state are violating the anti-trust law.

Last October General Hadley applied to the supreme court for the appointment of an examiner to investigate the insurance trust. Judge George F. Longan, of Sedalia, was appointed. He has held hearings in Jefferson City and in St. Louis. Upon the report of Judge Longan depends the action of the attorney general. If the evidence warrants, ouster proceedings will be instituted against the companies complained of, some sixty-nine.

Mr Hadley's Assertion.

It is the belief of the attorney general that the insurance companies are in an organization, the members of which are bound to accept the rates made by a person employed for that purpose. F. J. Fetter, who is the agent of the Missouri inspection and survey bureau, has an office in the American National bank building. It is ostensibly a fire inspection and advisory rate office. It is the contention of the attorney general, however that the rates made by Mr. Fetter are compulsory upon the members of the bureau, and that penalties are provided if any of the members of the bureau "cut" the rates provided by Mr. Fetter.

The insurance companies contend that the rates published by Mr. Fetter are merely advisory and that there is no combination to control rates. The rates made by Mr. Fetter obtain in Missouri, except St. Louis and St. Louis county.

One of the purposes of the hearing here is to secure the testimony of Mr. Fetter. If he is heard some important testimony is expected.

R. B. Jones Testifies.

Rush C. Lake and F. G. Ferris, assistant attorneys general, represent the state at the hearing. There are ten or twelve lawyers for the insurance companies, including Thomas Bates, of Chicago, Judge . L. Scarritt, of Kansas City, Barclay & Fauntleroy, of St. Louis, and others.

The first witness this morning was R. B. Jones, senior member of the firm of R. B. Jones & Son, insurance agents, in the Long building. Mr. Jones said that he represented a number of fire insurance companies and that all of the companies were members of the Missouri inspection and rate bureau. He said that Mr. Fetter was in charge. He testified that while the rates made by Fetter were only advisory, the companies usually applied the rates made by him. Some times companies accepted less and some times more than these rates, but that as a rule the Fetter rates were adhered to.

Mr. Jones denied that any member of the bureau had ever been fined for cutting the rates published by Mr. Fetter. When asked if he had any letters from any of the companies he represented concerning any instructions as to the acceptance of Mr. Fetter's rates, Mr. Jones stated that many of his letter files had been lost when he moved into the Long building about nine months ago.

Admit There Was a Trust.

There is no dispute between the prosecution and the attorneys for the insurance companies that there were trust conditions previous to 1899, when the anti-trust law went into effect. George Kumpf, who has been in the insurance business for thirty years in Kansas City, testified that previous to 1899 the insurance agents were members of a hard and fast combination, wherein an agent was subject to severe penalties if he cut the rates promulgated by Mr. Fetter.

Mr. Kumpf, in his testimony, stated that previous to 1899 the system was satisfactory, and contended that it would now be the best way to do business for all concerned were it not for the fact that it was a violation of the law.

About twenty witnesses were summoned for the hearing. Three testified this morning, R. B. Jones, G. H. Gurnsey and George Kumpf, all insurance agents doing business in Kansas City.

Shops Closed for One Week.

All the repair shops of the entire New York Central lines, in which more than 15,000 men are employed, have been ordered closed for one week. The payroll of the shops, fifteen in number, aggregate fully $200,000 weekly.

As explained by Vice President Brown, the New York Central lines now have 50,000 idle freight cars and fully 450 locomotives are stored in the shops. Last year at this time the New York Central lines were fully 20,000 cars short of their requirements.

BEEN WED FIFTY YEARS

MR. AND MRS. OLIVER ELMORE TO CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING.

THE KNOT WAS TIED IN KENTUCKY

Came to Missouri 30 Years Ago and Ever Since Have Been Among Most Highly Esteemed Pettis County Residents.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Elmore, who reside on a fine farm thirteen miles northeast of Sedalia, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at the Elmore home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore were married fifty years ago on the 2nd day of February, at Warsaw, Kentucky, where they remained until thirty years ago, when they moved to Missouri and settled in the northern part of Pettis county on a farm which has since been their home, and where they have reared a family of seven children and seen them well settled for life

Mrs. Sue Payne, the mother of Mrs. Elmore, who is 92 years of age, but well preserved, makes her home with her daughter, and will be one of those participating in the celebration.

Dr. J. C. Mitchell, who married one of the Elmore daughters, and his wife, live in the home with their parents and keep them company; while a son, Newt, lives on an adjoining farm and looks after the management of his father's place.

Those present today who will contribute to the happiness of the occasion will be Mrs. A. L. Haggard, wife of Judge Haggard, of the county court; Mrs. James H. McCurdy, Mrs. O. E. Jenkins and Mrs. J. C. Mitchell and their families.

Newt Elmore, a son, who lives on an adjoining farm, is spending the winter in California. John Elmore, who resides in California, and Rev. Frank Elmore, of Arkansas, are members of the family who will be absent.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore are among the most highly respected citizens of Pettis county, and the Elmore home is most hospitable. Mr. Elmore is 83 years of age, while his good wife is 76. They are well preserved and enjoy remarkably good health for their ages. That they may be spared many years is the sincere wish of their legion of friends, in which the Democrat-Sentinel joins.

THEY WILL WED MONDAY

Mr. William A. Black and Miss Margaret Porter.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Miss Margaret Porter, daughter of Mrs. B. L. Porter, of this city, and William A. Black, formerly of this county, now residing at Le Grande, Ore., will be united in marriage at Portland, Ore., tomorrow.

A recent issue of a Le Grande paper gives a lengthy notice to the wedding, and also gives an account of a surprise party planned in honor of the couple.

KEPT THEM PRISONERS

FAMILY OF MRS. W. W. GREER, WHO LIVE ON EAST THIRTEENTH STREET.

SHEPARD DOG BIT ONE OF THE BOYS

Help Was Called, but None Came, and Inmates Were Compelled to Remain in the House Until the Canine Died.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Kept prisoners in their own home by a dog supposed to be mad, and unable to summon assistance, not even a physician to administer to one of the household who had been bitten, the terrible suspense of the family of Mrs. W. W. Greer, who resides at 405 East Thirteenth street, ended Friday morning after lasting all of Thursday night, when at day break they discovered the dog was dead, it having died during the night.

Thursday evening the shepherd dog owned by the Greers came home after a day's absence, torn and bleeding about its neck, and acting in a strange manner.

Sympathetic members of the family tried to ascertain the reason for the dog's actions, and Garland, a son, who had a stronger affection for the animal than any of the others, ventured too close and the dog snapped him, tearing the flesh on his left leg near the knee joint.

This greatly alarmed the family and a call was sent in for the police to come and kill the dog. After a wait of a half hour or more and no policeman coming, Walter Greer decided to undertake the job of killing the canine. He stepped out of doors and taking deliberate aim, fired. He wounded the dog, but the shooting only seemed to increase its ferocity, as it rushed at Greer, who barely escaped by dashing back into the house.

From that time on no member of the family would dare venture out, as no sooner would they open the door than the dog would make a rush for them. Several attempts were made to kill the animal, but each time it would drive them back into the house before a shot could be fired.

It was not until Friday morning that relief came, and then only through the death of the dog, it having crawled under the house, where it died during the early morning hours.

It is not known whether the dog was mad or not, but the Greers are greatly concerned about the boy who was bitten, and members were down town Friday evening trying to find a mad stone.

The boy was taken to a physician Friday morning, but the treatment given the injury does not satisfy the family, and it is probable that the boy will be taken to Nevada, Mo., where there is a mad stone, to have it applied to the wound.

A. C. RUCKER IS DEAD

Former Well Known Sedalian Passed Away Saturday at Nevada.

(From Sunday's Daily)

A. C. Rucker, a former Sedalian, and brother of Mrs. C. W. Goodwin, of this city, died of cerebral hemorrhage at the Nevada sanitarium at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, aged 30 years.

Funeral arrangements have not been perfected, but services will be held at Mrs. Goodwin's home, under the auspices of the O. R. C., of which organization deceased was a member.

Mr. Rucker left Sedalia several years ago for Colorado and while working at La Junta was taken ill. He grew violently insane and was brought to Sedalia, where he was treated for a brief time. He grew worse and was removed to the asylum, where he has since been confined.

Honor for Dr. Titsworth.

Dr. W. J. Ferguson received an interesting letter Saturday from Dr. Guy Titsworth, in which he stated that he had been made assistant professor of ear clinics to Dr. Alt, at Wiedner hospital in Vienna. BOOTLEGGERS DO WELL

DRUNKENNESS IS SAID TO BE RAMPANT IN NEW STATE OF OKLAHOMA.

PROHIBITION IS NO GOOD THERE

The "Regulated Saloon," From a Moral Standpoint, Is Much More to Be Deserved Than This Sort of Prohibition.

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 1.—Phohibition has proved a failure in Oklahoma. This is the opinion of prosecuting attorneys in the eastern part of the state, who have been forced to devote practically all their time to the trial of liquor cases since statehood was declared, and who now find the criminal dockets congested and the jails packed to suffocation.

According to law, there is not a saloon in Oklahoma, yet there is not a village of 100 inhabitants in which liquor is not sold and drunkenness and debauchery does not prevail.

The police admit that under existing conditions they are unable to cope with the evil, and declare that the regulated saloon is far better from a moral standpoint than prohibition.

In this city, with a population of less than 20,000, there have been over 100 arrests for drunkenness the past month, and nearly 300 since the first of December. There are estimated to be 100 "bootleggers" in the city, ten "near beer" joints, at which you can get anything you want, and a dozen or more druggists are becoming rich selling liquor illegally. were directly due to drink. the proprietor admitted that on last Sunday he sold over 300 quarts of beer at 35 cents a quart, and 200 pints of whisky at $1 per pint. Arrests are frequent, but the traffic is so great that druggists are willing to take the chance and pay a nominal fine.

In the Muskogee county jail there are fifty men and women held on charges of murder, and in nearly every instance the crimes were committed while the offenders were drunk.

In McAlester county there have been twenty-six murders since statehood, and of this number seventeen In one of the leading drug stores

A TIP ON BUCKET SHOPS

DETECTIVES FOUND FIVE ESTABLISHMENTS CROWDED WITH PATRONS.

OLD PLACES HAVE BEEN REOPENED

Proprietors in St. Louis Are Said to Have No Fear of Prosecution Under New Law, Hence Resume Business.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 1.—Detectives George Rodgers and Michael Calahan, of Chief Smith's staff, have been assigned to gather evidence against the bucket shops in St. Louis. The detectives were assigned to work on the bucket shops after a local newspaper had furnished Circuit Attorney Sager and the grand jury the names of five firms which are said to be doing a bucket shop business.

The detectives visited the places and found them filled with the same class of customers who traded there and lost everything when these houses were operated openly as bucket shops. The system of trading is said to have been slightly changed. In some instances "puts and calls" are now bought and sold, while formerly most of the trading was done on very narrow margins.

Reports have been in circulation for some time that the bucket shops were running wide open, and that their proprietors had little fear of prosecution.

Some of these bucket shops, which are now operating as commission houses, are said to be owned by the same people who made a fortune out of bucket shops before the new law went into effect. Agents for these men are said to visit daily some of these houses and check up the accounts.

The legitimate commission houses will not deal with this class of customers who trade at the bucket shops on account of the small orders. The commission houses which are said to be doing a bucket shop business are filled during the market hours of the day with persons who have money enough only to buy a few bushels of wheat or share of stock on margins.

Under the new bucket shop law, which went into effect last August, any commission house which does not actually deliver the goods to its customer, or fails to put its deals through a legitimate board of trade or stock exchange is a bucket shop.

The failure of any commission house to deliver to customers the records of transactions showing that the stocks, grains or provisions were actually purchased or sold through a stock exchange of a board of trade constitutes prima facie evidence of a bucketshop.

The new law was written by Circuit Attorney Sager and passed by the last general assembly. All of the bucket shops in existence at the time it went into effect closed temporarily. Within a few weeks places, to outward appearances exactly the same as the old bucket shops, reopened in the same quarters.

One of the operators of the bucket shops is said to have fleeced Cincinnati "investors" out of $10,000 a few months ago.

One of the houses here, which was under suspicion of being a bucket shop, failed a few weeks ago when the stock market took an upward turn and the traders were several dollars ahead. It refused to make good the amount which the customers won, and went into liquidation.

The grand jury has the power to subpoena commission men and compel them to show how and where every trade is made. Detectives are handicapped in getting evidence against the bucket shops, because by their own admission, they cannot tell a bucket shop from any other commission house.

They have been watching the houses under suspicion and talking with customers and have procured evidence which leads Chief Smith and Circuit Attorney Sager to believe that many of the so-called commission and brokerage houses in St. Louis are really bucket shops, and that they are doing business very closely along the line of old bucket shop methods.

POLISH PARISH REVOLT

FATHER MIREK SAYS HE HAS DEFLECTED 1,000 FAMILIES FROM ST. CASIMIR'S.

A BIG PARADE HAS BEEN PLANNED

Archbishop Glennon Denies That the "Insurrection" Is Serious, but May Excommunicate the Stubborn Leader.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 1.—The terms "heretic" and "untruthful" are applied by Archbishop Glennon to the Rev. Fr. Francis Mirek, pastor of a new Polish congregation in North St. Louis.

Mirek, though clad in Catholic vestments and professing most of the Roman creed, has shaken off the authority, not only of the archbishop but of the pope, and has originated what he terms an independent Catholic church. He has drawn into revolt after him, he declares, 1,000 families from St. Casimir's Polish Roman Catholic church at Eighth and Mullanphy streets.

Mirek's congregation has purchased the old Presbyterian church at Eleventh and Chambers streets, and is making extensive alterations. It will be dedicated in May, says Fr. Mirek, at which time the insurgents from the Roman faith will emphasize their defiance to the ecclesiastical authorities of the diocese by parading through the streets.

According to the priest, his congregation has withdrawn from the Roman church to join the Polish National church, an international organization, he says, headed by a synod of Polish bishops. The church's head in America, he says, is Bishop Francis Hodur, of Pennsylvania.

"There is no such thing as a 'Polish National church,'" said the archbishop when told of Mirek's assertions. "Neither is there such a thing in existence as a synod of Polish bishops.

"These schismatics and malcontents whom Mirek heads usurp the forms of the Holy Roman Catholic church in order to draw the multitude and use them as a cloak to hide their heresy. They have placed themselves outside the pale of the church. I think shall just let them go their way without attempting to reclaim them. The church's loss is not serious by their defection. Mirek says he heads 1,000 families. There were not 1,000 in St. Casimir's church to begin with."

The trouble which has culminated in Mirek's declaration of independence began two years ago, just after Fr. Gnielinski, parish priest of St. Casimir's, absconded with the church funds. He left in his place one of his assistants, Father Plaza, to whom a considerable portion of the parish was devoted. Archbishop Glennon, unable to find any record of Plaza's ordainment as a priest, ejected him from the pulpit and excommunicated him. In his place he installed Fr. Theophlie Pudlowski, who is still in charge.

Pudlowski was unpopular with the older members of the congregation, who said that his education in America had estranged him from the Polish spirit, but he soon attached the younger element to him. He has the complete support of the archbishop.

The adherents of Fr. Plaza withdrew from the congregation soon after Pudlowski's advent, and held meetings in Polish hall. A few weeks ago they decided to rebel from the Roman church. They sought the assistance and protection of Bishop Hodur, who sent Mirek as their priest and promised to attend in person the dedication of the independent church.

"CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS"

PAPER READ BY MR. G. H. SCRUTON AT RECENT MEETING OF SOROSIS

IS PUBLISHED BY REQUEST TODAY

Some of the Suggestions Made Would, if Carried Out, Add Much to the Attractiveness of the Queen of the Prairies.

At the regular weekly meeting of Sorosis, on Monday afternoon, Jan. 20, Mr. George H. Scruton, editor of the Democrat-Sentinel, by invitation, read a paper on "Civic Improvements," and at the conclusion of the reading a vote of thanks was tendered him.

On the following Monday, Jan. 27, the ladies of Sorosis directed their secretary, Mrs. J. S. Rogers, to address a communication to Mr. Scruton, requesting that he give wider publicity to his paper of the previous week by printing it in the Democrat-Sentinel, the letter of request being as follows:

Mr. George H. Scruton. Dear Sir: The members of Sorosis beg leave to request the publication in the Democrat-Sentinel of your paper on "Civic Improvements," recently read before the club.

In kindly complying with this request you will render a valuable service, not only to the club, but to the public as well.—Jennie F. Rogers, Secretary of Sorosis, Sedalia, Mo., Tuesday, Jan. 28, 1908.

Complying with this request of Sorosis, the full text of Mr. Scruton's paper is herewith presented, as follows:

I am sure that I know of no good reason why I should have been chosen to talk to you on the subject given me today, unless it be that I am intensely anxious that some of the prevailing conditions in Sedalia be remedied, and that better, cleaner and more beautiful surroundings be given all of us who make this city our home.

I am, however, deeply sensible of the honor that has been conferred upon me by being permitted to give my views to an organization which stands for the higher and more elevating things of this world, as does Sorosis, and I beg to thank you very sincerely for the distinction accorded me by this privilege.

In the first place, what has been and is the cause of the evils complained of in the city of Sedalia? Why have they not been remedied long before this? What stands in the way of a remedy, and why stand we idly waiting even now? The answer, briefly, is partisan politics.

Unquestionably there has been, enough money raised in various ways in the city of Sedalia, in loans secured by bonds, in taxes for paving streets and in direct and indirect taxation during its existence as a city to have made it a veritable Garden of the Gods, had that money been expended as a business man expends his—wisely, judiciously and for the best interests of all concerned. In other words, if this one great menace to American municipal government had not for years had its blighting, greedy hand upon the throat of the city and crushed its every effort for advancement by the foulness of its touch and the strength of its grasp, there would be no just cause for complaint, for we would have all that should justly be ours.

As a general proposition, party politics has no place in city government. What difference does it make whether a man believes in high or low tariff, in the doctrines of the republican or democratic parties, so long as he makes a good mayor or an upright, public spirited alderman? Why should a policeman be given guard over the lives and property of our citizens solely because he is a member of this party or that party? Why, in the name of common sense, should a man be selected as street commissioner solely on account of his efforts to secure votes for his party candidates? And yet, under the system that has prevailed here, and elsewhere, for that matter, this has been the rule that has been in vogue.

Even the present administration, although a so-called independent one, is, as a matter of fact, under the same blighting influence. Every candidate on the ticket was selected on account of his party connection; this office for a democrat, the other for a republican, all the way down the line, for the purpose, as was said, of bringing support to the ticket from both parties. And, when the victory was won, the appointments were parceled out, some for the mayor and the balance apportioned to the aldermen, as their rewards for henchmen, who had worked for them so faithfully and well.

The same state of affairs would doubtless have existed had the other ticket won—the same old story of patronage as a reward for political wire-pulling.

Well, knowing the cause, where are we to look for relief?

I confess that I have been puzzled to find one, and have about concluded that our only hope is to interest the women of the city in the problem and look to them for deliverance from the evils that encompass us.

Sedalia is a beautiful city, ideally located, with thousands of handsome homes, splendid public buildings, churches and schools. It has miles upon miles of superbly paved streets that have cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, and yet these streets are allowed to disintegrate, are covered with mud in winter and dust and refuse in summer. Public utilities are allowed to tear them up and replace the torn places with careless and inferior work, until now some of the streets that were but recently completed are filled from end to end with depressions, where water and mud accumulate, all because the torn up places were not repaired properly, and the city authorities refused to see that they were.

Lamine street, paved within the last few years, is an example of this gross, criminal carelessness.

We are all familiar with the same policy of neglect which resulted in the total destruction of the Third street paving, and such damage to that on Fourth street that the repairs recently made cost the property owners in some instances more than the original paving amounted to.

Now, to get clean streets, the policy of the people, and especially the women of the city, should be to agitate the subject, and keep agitating it. A crusade should be inaugurated and a campaign of education started until every person in Sedalia will become enthused with the idea and enlist in the cause. How to begin the campaign is, of course, a serious thought. How to make it most effective? How to arouse the most enthusiasm How to produce the best results?

One of the most successful plans which has come to my attention was carried out in Saginaw, Mich., recently, and, as I understand, it resulted in a sweeping revolution in that city. Those interested got together and appointed, not a general house-cleaning day, but a general town-cleaning day.

It was placed far enough ahead to give ample time for the plan to be matured, and the women's clubs merchants, newspapers and public spirited citizens generally unitedly talked it and boomed it, until nothing was thought of but the project.

Pledges were secured from occupants of property that they would on that day clean their alleys, their lawns, and those on paved thoroughfares their streets. The city authorities agreed to furnish the teams to carry away the refuse, and the movement swung along with a grand impetus.

Early in the morning of the day appointed every one was at work, young and old, rich and poor, and by the afternoon the city presented an appearance of cleanliness and brightness never before known in its entire history.

This idea can be followed up by quarterly cleaning days and gradually reduced to monthly ones, as the good effects are seen and appreciated by the people.

I offer this as a suggestion that may be acted upon here if it is thought wise by those interested.

Until a change is made in the manner of selecting our municipal officers, or until the income of the city is increased very materially, I fear there is little prospect of the streets being given the care and attention that they should receive, and as is given them in other cities of like size and importance. Until such a time arrives we can but endeavor to discover some plan that will to some extent, at least, overcome the handicap under which we are laboring.

A system which has worked well in some cities, but which can be applied only to the business streets, is to have each merchant sweep in front of his place of business to the center of the street every morning, piling the trash into heaps, the city to furnish a horse, cart and man to remove it. I have seen this practice work very successfully, one town of which I know having had it in force for years. The work of sweeping is done by porters or errand boys, being part of their regular duties, the same as sweeping the floor of the store or cleaning the windows. In that particular city today there are scores of prosperous and wealthy merchants whose first work in their business careers was sweeping the paving in front of their places of employment—and they are proud of it, too.

This system could be put into effect successfully in Sedalia on portions of Main, Second and Third streets only, and only on them, where the business houses run consecutively. But to insure its accomplishing the results desired an ordinance would have to be passed compelling the occupants of business houses to perform the work, otherwise it would be necessary to have an iron clad agreement with each and every merchant to do it, as manifestly it would be folly to have a majority clean the street, while a few who didn't would be sandwiched in between. I believe however, that enough pride and ambition could be aroused among the business men so they would gladly undertake the work, and those who would at first object would be shamed into following their neighbor's excellent example.

Cleaning the paved streets with water from fire hydrants is perhaps the most feasible method, where, as is the case here, a lack of money seems to be the chief obstacle to civic cleanliness. This method is very inexpensive, and, if properly systematized, would help very materially in bringing about the conditions so earnestly wished for. It should be done at stated times, and every paved street in the city should be included in its benefits. The best time for this work to be done, especially on the business streets, is after the traffic for the day is over, as then it would not interfere with and frighten the teams that are always numerous during business hours.

This brings up another question, that of employing the street men. Here again politics enters, for here again comes the reward for political service. Men are employed for this work, not because they are strong, active and energetic, but because they have votes and can control others. They work listlessly and perfunctorily, looking not to accomplishment, but to killing time, waiting only for the quitting hour. Old men, unfit for manual labor of any sort, and young men, too lazy to hold a job for a minute where work is expected, are hired, simply because they have a "pull" with the mayor or aldermen. Watch the next street gang you meet, notice how they work and see if I am not correct in the statement made, broad as it is.

Personally, I am heartily in favor of working city prisoners on the streets. Always there are from one to a dozen worthless characters in the city jail, doing nothing and costing the taxpayers 50 cents a day for food. The so-called punishment is a pleasure to them, for it means meals and lodging and idleness. If we would put them on the streets and make them work it would have two beneficial effects. First, those committing crimes would pay for their transgressions, and in paying would render some benefit to the community whose laws they are constantly breaking. Second, it would also act as a preventative of crime and serve to drive from the city a class of worthless and vicious characters who commit depredations with impunity, knowing that at most they can only be confined behind bars and grow fat at public expense.

Almost every one admits that this plan is the logical one, and that the streets could be kept clean at very little expense were it followed; but here again politics interferes. Aldermen are afraid to vote for it, because, forsooth, it might ruin their political standing.

During last year when this subject was up before the council, I am told one of the aldermen who voted against it afterward privately admitted to another who had favored it that he believed the plan a proper thing to follow, but, said he, "some men in my ward are opposed to it, and would fight me for re-election should I vote for it." For these reasons the measure was lost, and the city continues feeding these creatures, and the city streets shame and humiliate every citizen who believes in an attractive municipality.

You ladies of Sorosis undertook a beautiful work in creating a sentiment for the better care of our city of the dead. Under most discouraging circumstances, opposed by many who should have known better, by some who weren't expected to know anything, and by others who always fight any plan possessing beauty and sentiment, you have won, and it can always be your pride to know, when Sedalia's cemetery does become a city beautiful, through the working out of your plans and in response to your untiring efforts, that but for Sorosis it would never have been. You deserve all the praise received, all the honor following a great accomplishment, all the tender thanks from sorrowing hearts, who know that those for whom they mourn will be surrounded by the lavish lovliness of beautiful nature, and take comfort even in their grief.

But we owe a duty to the living, as well as to the dead. Out on the western boundaries of the city lies a beautiful tract of ground—Liberty park—a grand place, if properly cared for. It isn't necessary for me to enlarge on its neglect. How in the summer its lawns are allowed to grow up in meadows and are cut only when the grass will make hay for some one's horses or cattle. How its lake, long neglected and permitted to become a mud hole, full of disease and pestilence has now become totally despoiled. How all these things tending for beauty and adornment are forgotten, or if remembered, are but despised. You all know the facts, and, like many others, are perhaps discouraged over the situation.

But Liberty park isn't half the problem that the cemetery was. I believe that if Sorosis will take hold of it this park may be made to bloom and flourish and reach the highest ideal of those who believe in beautiful out door places. The plan that I have in mind is to make a flower garden of all that portion of the park immediately surrounding the park building. This can be done as it is done in other places. Sorosis can do it, and, I believe, Sorosis alone.

The plan is simply to allot flower beds to different merchants and business men in the city, and to request them to plant and care for them, each plot to have a neat board on it, telling whose plot it is. There is hardly a merchant who wouldn't be glad to have one of these beds for the advertisement it would give him, and all would vie with each other in seeing whose would be the most beautiful, whose most attractive. The expense to each would be very little, as all could unite in having some one capable man care for them at a cost which, when divided among all, would be insignificant. This can be done, I know, if proper and systematic steps are taken to bring it about.

When this is accomplished, enough pride in the place will have been aroused that it will be an easy matter to raise funds to restore the lake and keep it in proper condition, build walks and install benches in different parts of the park, and then the city certainly will be forced to see that the grass is frequently cut and kept, as lawns should be kept at all times. Would it be too much to ask this club to take up and consider this project?

Now, in conclusion, I have briefly given my thoughts and ideas on civic improvement, as I look upon it, and have offered ideas that, to my mind, are most feasible under conditions at present governing. There are better ones, of course, if we could only think of them, but if we start the work along any lines, whether these offered today or others, new ideas will come, new enthusiasm will be aroused and results will surely be realized. If we could levy a poll tax, every cent of which should be expended on the streets, it would be the greatest thing towards a cleaner city that was ever accomplished, but politics forbid a poll tax, the same as it forbids many other greatly needed reforms.

To sum it all up, if we can only eliminate politics from city affairs, all things needed, all things desired, will come. Let us have a mayor who doesn't want the place, who has no need of the salary, who doesn't desire a re-election or who isn't looking for further political preferment. Let us have aldermen who care nothing for the $200 per year stipend, who are not longing to be mayors, who, in fact, are serving only because it is their duty and pleasure to give their best to the city in which they live. You ladies join the men who are willing to forget their party in civic patriotism and draft men to serve us, and then Sedalia will reach the plane on which she belongs and become the most beautiful, cleanly and progressive little city in the land.

ROOMING HOUSE RAIDED

THE CLAIM IS MADE THAT IT IS MERELY A HOUSE FOR ASSIGNATION.

ARRESTED A NUMBER OF GIRLS

Also Tom Olds, Proprietor Old City Hotel Rooming House—Alleged That Girls 13 Years of Age Frequented Place.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 6.—Sheriff John Scott raided the old City hotel rooming house, located over the Trust Co., corner of High and Madison streets, and arrested the proprietor, Tom Olds, and several young women.

The attention of the authorities to this place was called by an article published in the Democrat at the time of the fire in this building several weeks ago.

The raid was directed by Prosecuting Attorney Jack Slate, under a section of the statutes which prohibits the running of dishonest houses under the guise of legitimate rooming houses.

It is charged that the place has been in operation for about a year, and that girls of all ages were seen to frequent the place.

It is charged that girls as young as 13 years have been seen to frequent this place. Mr. Slate says he has evidence to bear out this assertion.

"The place is not a legitimate rooming house," said Mr. Slate to the Democraf, "and has no right to be in business. It was a bad place for girls who are without protection, and if for no other reason than that, should be wiped off the map."

The penalty for conducting a place like this is not less than two years in the penitentiary nor more than ten. The girls will not likely be prosecuted, as they will be wanted as witnesses against Olds.

RUMBLINGS OF THE RAIL

TEN THOUSAND MEN LAID OFF AT THE BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Ten thousand men have been laid off since December by the Baldwin Locomotive works in Philadelphia because of a lack of orders for engines. Samuel M. Vauclain, a member of the firm, in speaking of the condition of the works, said:

"No substantial orders have come in since December. We have received a few scattered orders, and we are working upon these now, whereas, we formerly turned out about sixty locomotives a week and we are now turning out only twenty, and we will have finished up all our work in a short time. Then, unless we receive some substantial orders in the meantime, we will have to close. Our full working force is about 19,000, but the lack of orders has compelled us to lay off 10,000 workmen since December. The heaviest lay off started about Jan. 1."

"What has been responsible for this?" was asked.

"Lack of orders, not only from American but Europeans sources. Japan is in financial trouble and is sending us no orders at all. It is the same everywhere, not only throughout America, but throughout the countries from which we have received orders."

Frisco Kicks on Advertisers

The manner of some freight shipping houses in sending out cars covered with company advertising does not meet with the approval of the railroads The Frisco is particularly decidedly opposed to such action on the part of its patrons and has sent out the following order:

"The company will be governed by rules 40 and 106 in code of rules of the Master Car Builders' association as, revised June, 1907, relating to the advertising matter on railway equipment, and will not accept for billing cars on which advertisements have been placed by shippers loading them.

"When connecting lines offer to this company at junction points cars in interchange on which advertisements have been pasted or tacked, such delivery will be accepted as authority to bill such delivering line for the cost of removing the signs from the equipment."

It is believed by W. C. Nixon, vice president and general manager of the Frisco, that this order will be effectual in doing away with car advertising, at least on the Frisco and adjunct lines.

"THE HOUSE, IT IS CANNON"

Republican Bitterly Attacks Rules and Power of Speaker.

Washington, Feb. 6.—A bitter attack on the rules and power of the speaker was made in the house of representatives yesterday by Mr. Nelson, of Wisconsin, republican, who said the power of the house was merged in the speaker. "He is the house," he exclaimed, amid democratic applause. He charged that the business of the country was not being dispatched speedily, economically or considerately.

The minority, he declared, were not only speechless, but absolutely helpless, and as for the majority members, they have to obey the will of the speaker. At times, he added, they would break away, but not for long, because they were brought back under the power of the speaker's spell. He said that many of the president's policies were important, but that they were no more important than parliamentary reforms in the house.

FAT PURSE IN FISHERS' NET

Pocketbook With $1,500 Recovered From Lake Winona.

Winona, Minn., Feb. 6.—Fishermen while seining Lake Winona yesterday pulled in their net to find that all it held was a man's pocketbook.

The purse contained notes and certificates of deposit in various banks, in all amounting to $1,500. It also contained about $10 in money and a mileage book. The owner, R. C. Stevenson, a local merchant, was notified of the find and claimed his property.

It developed that Stevenson, while canoeing on the lake last Fourth of July was thrown into the water and almost drowned, and in his frantic efforts to save himself he lost the pocketbook.

Otterville Notes

Otterville, Mo., Feb. 4.

Verily do we walk on slippery places.

J. D. Starke was in town yesterday.

L. C. Wilkerson has his cattle almost ready for market.

J. P. Anthony's residence, about two miles south of town, was burned last Saturday, just after the noon hour. Most of the household goods were saved. There was no insurance. The cause was a defective flue.

Rev. Frank Carpenter will be buried at Syracuse at 11 o'clock today. The friends here regret and sympathize with relatives and friends.

J. H. Hupp received a letter from Colorado Springs, Colo., a few days ago, telling of the death of Mrs. Alice Wallace, who once lived here and has a host of friends who will regret to learn of her death. She was a sister of T. C. Shy. The friends here extend sympathy to the friends, especially the aged mother.

J. L. Eubank is on the sick list, and Mrs. B. Varner is carrying the United States mail.

The Clifton medicine show will be here all week.

Very Important.

"Everybody nowadays seems to be wearing uniforms," said Mr. Sirius Barker, querulously. "The army, the navy, the police, the railroad men, the theater employes—everybody has some kind of special costume." "That's so," answered the policeman to whom he was relating his troubles. "Well, what I want to know is this: What's the use of having any plain citizens' clothes at all?" "Great Scott, man! There must be something for the detectives to disguise themselves in."

HOLD "BOW-WOW" SHOW

KENNEL CLUB OF NEW YORK ARRANGING FOR SUCH AN EXHIBITION.

MANY DOGS TO BE PUT ON SHOW

Canines of All Descriptions From All Parts of the Country Are to Be Exhibited at the Show in the Metropolis.

New York, Feb. 6.—A meeting of the exhibiton committee of the Westminster Kennel club was held today for the purpose of completing plans for the great bow-wow show to be held next week in Madison Square garden.

The Westminster show is always the principal event of the year in the canine society of the United States, and next week's exhibit will be no exception.

Dogs of all varieties and degrees, from milady's lap dog to Russian wolfhounds, will dispay their merits to the public view from Tuesday to Friday of next wek.

Dogs from all over the country will be seen on the benches and the number of new exhibitors will be larger than ever before.

A special feature of the show will be the Russian wolfhounds, the list being bigger than at any other show. This is due to the fact that the Valley Farm kennel dogs will be benched, as the owner of the kennels, Mr. J. B. Thomas, will judge the breed, so the exhibitors will not be obliged to come into competition with his string, which is by far the strongest in the country, and has won nearly all the blue ribbons in the past.

A big string will come from San Francisco, from the kennels of Col. W. Ellery, and there will be packs of beagles trying for prizes against the dogs belonging to William Rockefeler and G. B. Post.

In the big dog classes there will be some fine specimens, the Great Danes of quality from the kennels of Howe Totten, G. F. Eggert, W. W. Tucker and other breeders being on the list.

Dr. Knox will be there with a fine lot of bloodhounds, and the annual contest between Samuel Untermyer and J. Pierpont Morgan in the collie classes will be as hot as ever.

The bull dogs promise to be well represented, for Richard Croker and Tyler Morse will send their best specimens of the breed.

$1000 FINE; YEAR IN JAIL

Promised to Marry a Girl and Failed to Make Good.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6.—Albert Petton, a trusted employe of Mermod-Jaccard & King Jewelry Co., living with his parents at Ninth street and Chouteau avenue, was assessed one year in jail and a fine of $1,000 by a jury in Judge Fisher's court Wednesday, charged by Miss Mary Maher, 18, 2805 Caroline street, with failing to redeem her honor.

Petton was offered a chance to marry the girl, but declined and went to trial. His brothers, Edward and Charles, Jr., testified and favored the complainant, it being shown that Albert introduced the girl as "my future wife." Petton will ask for a new trial.

Invitations to the Wedding

Should be given careful consideration. Thomas Printing and Scenic Co., 115 East Second street, expert printers and engravers, are constantly executing the finest. Samples and lowest prices given on application.

No Smoke House Needed

The modern method of smoking meat by the application of our Liquid Smoke not only produces better results in every way, but does it at a minimum expense. One quart costing 75c will thoroughly "smoke" 250 pounds of meat and the whole process will not consume an hour's time.

The saving in the shrinking of the meat (often as high as 15 per cent smoke house way), will pay for the "Liquid Smoke" several times over.

If you have not used "Liquid Smoke" as yet, try it on some of your hams this year and notice the improvement.

JAMES ROBINSON DEAD

Veteran Showman Passed Away at Green Old Age.

James Robinson, brother of the late John Robinson, the great circus man, died last night at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Wright, at 3520 Monteith street, Hyde Park, at the age of 98 years, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

He was ailing only one day before the end, and was conscious almost to the drawing of the last breath and talking with a clear mind.

Mr. Robinson throughout his life had been a man of wonderful physical strength, and was the original cannon ball performer under the white tents. He was large of frame and a giant of strength for three-quarters of a century. A few months ago he became seriously ill, on which occasion a history of his career appeared in this paper.

His wife died about eight years ago at the age of 60 years. Two daughters, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Emily Jones, wife of Fred Jones, also of Hyde Park, and a son, James, survive.

During a portion of his life James Robinson was on the seas engaged in the whaling business. He was a stonecutter by trade and at one time was a blacksmith.

He had not been connected with a circus for a great many years and for about twenty years had led a quiet, retired life.

REMEMBERED THE POOR

5000 PAIRS OF SHOES GIVENAWAY

$15,000 Worth of Shoes and Stockings Bestowed on the Humble Element of the Metropolis by a Well-Known Politician.

New York, Feb. 6.— Following a custom of many years' standing, the Hon. Timothy D. Sullivan, M. C., familiarly known on the Bowery and among his constituents on the east side as "Big Tim," today distributed among the poverty stricken clans of Tammany over 5,000 pairs of $3 shoes.

Accompanying the footgear was a pair of heavy woolen stockings for each man. The distribution was made by the Timothy D. Sullivan association, which is the legal name for Big Tim, incorporated.

Tickets good for the shoes were given to each of the 5,000 men who were the guests of the Big Fellow at his last annual Christmas dinner.

It is generally understood among the Big One's lieutenants that the unvarying date of the distribution—Feb. 6—is the anniversary of some great event in Big Tim's life.

What that event is nobody knows but Timothy, and he refuses to tell. The secret is buried in the big heart of Big Tim, but on this same day every year several thousand of Sullivan's political supporters put on a warm pair of new shoes and stockings.

Perhaps the "Bowery bums," who share in this generosity don't know that they are helping their leader keep an anniversary, but it is certain that they all think of him on that day of days.

RESUMED TRIAL TODAY

Suit Against American Tobacco Co. Called for Hearing.

New York Feb. 6.—The government's suit against the American Tobacco company for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was resumed here today. The session will be brief, as practically the only work to be accomplished is the taking of certain exhibits.

This preliminary hearing for the taking of testimony in the tobacco trust case was commenced here last November by United States Commissioner Shields, acting as special examiner, and is now practically completed. Testimony has been taken in several other cities.

FROZE TO DEATH BY STOVE?

The Bodies of Two Women Found in a New York House.

New York, Feb. 6.—Two women were found dead yesterday in the kitchen of a house at No. 351 West Seventy-first street, of which they were caretakers. They were Mrs. Mrs. Margaret Meek Bertie, 70 years old, and Mrs. Margaret Kelly, 40 years old. For many years they had been friends. There was a little coal in the cellar and seventeen pennies were found in a cupboard.

The police believe the women sat by the stove in front of which their bodies were found to keep warm and, falling asleep before the fire went out, were frozen to death.

The coroner said the women had been dead more than twenty-four hours. Each of the women had a heavy wrap about her shoulders. Pawn tickets showing that in the last two months Mrs. Bertie had pawned eighteen articles of dress and jewelry were found.

THEY OPPOSE THE MOVE

UNION VETERANS DON'T WANT MONUMENT ERECTED TO MAJOR WIRZ.

CLAIM HE MISTREATED UNION MEN

Meeting to Be Held in Washington, D. C., Tonight to Prevent if Possible the Erecting of the Proposed Monument.

Washington, Feb. 6.—At a private meeting of Union veterans scheduled for this evening, it is expected that means will be discussed to prevent the proposed erection by southern women of a monument to the memory of Major Henry Wirz, the Confederate officer who was in charge of Andersonville prison during the civil war.

Major Wirz was charged with inhuman treatment of Union soldiers taken as prisoners and was tried, convicted and hanged.

The monument project has aroused the bitterest feeling among Grand Army men throughout the country, and it is likely that the meeting of protest here will be followed by similar gatherings throughout the east and north. Conservative veterans on both sides fear that the matter will result in the revival of the hatred between the people of the north and south.

The fund for the monument was raised by women of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It is proposed to unveil the memorial on Jefferson Davis' birthday.

The inscriptions for the monument have been supplied by Mrs. Gourdin Young, historian of the Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and include the following:

"In memory of Maj. Henry Wirz, C. S. A. Born in Zurich, Switzerland.

"Tried by illegal court-martial under false charges of excessive cruelty to federal prisoners, sentenced and judicially murdered at Washington, D. C., November 10. 1865.

"That the United States government, not Maj. Wirz, is chargeable with the suffering at Andersonville, there is abundant proof furnished by friend and woe. Let the fact that he chose an ignominious death rather than bear false witness against President Davis speak for his high qualities of honor, fortitude and self-sacrifice.

"To rescue his memory from the stigma attached to it by imbittered prejudice and ignorance, and to restore it to its rightful place among men, the Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy has raised this shaft."

Commander Newton Ferree, of the department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, is one of the leaders in the movement for the prevention of the erection of the Wirz monument.

"To propose such a memorial to such a man is the act of a lot of silly and scatter-brained sentimentalists and of women whose sole object is to attain a notoriety," declared Commander Ferres. "To build a monument to a murderer will have a tendency to destroy the good feeling now existing between the veterans of the north and the south and I believe all true soldiers of Dixie will resent such a proposal.

"Wirz was a cruel and heartless assassin and not a brave or gallant soldier. Hanging was too good for him. He was not a field soldier, but a prison keeper, and never performed an act of valor that would entitle him to a little white slab, much less a great and imposing mounment such as those women propose to erect at Andersonville. If we are to have in America a memorial to Wirz, let us also build one to Nero and the other arch-murderers of history."

Some of the leading mat artists of the world have entered and will compete for the liberal cash prizes offered by the fair management.

The following are among the wrestlers who have signed articles to engage in contests here for world's championship honors:

George Bothner, lightweight champion of America; Fred Beel, lightheavyweight champion; Frank Gotch, heavyweight champion; Fred Suhr, the Belgian lion; Leo Pardello, champion of Italy; William Demetral, champion of Greece; Jess Westergarde, champion of Denmark; Hijumir Lundin, champion of Sweden; Charles Olson, who also claims the Swedish championship; Paul Ciedal, Wakita, Gus Sorensen, Charles Hackenschmidt, Sam, Pons, Shad, Link and others.

No "small fry" will be allowed to participate, and absolutely no wrestling of the fake order will be countenanced by the fair association or municipal authorities.

The tournament will be held under the direct supervision of the most experienced wrestling promoters of the country, and the world's champion in practically every class, including the jiu-jitsu Japanese style of wrestling, will be decided.

Will Revise Fair Catalogue.

Late yesterday afternoon the directors of the Missouri state fair appointed N. H. Gentry and John T. Stinson a committee to revise the 1903 fair catalogue, and to have the same ready to be presented to the board at the next meeting on March 1.

KRESSES SUED FOR $50,000

Sales Girl Humiliated by Theft Charge Is Allegation.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 6.—While the annual meeting of the managers of the Kress department stores was in session yesterday, C. C. Kress and S. H. Kress, of New York, were served with papers in a $50,000 damage suit instituted by Myrtle R. Hamilton.

She alleges that on Dec. 22, 1906, Mary R. Hamilton, then a young girl only 16 years of age, was working in the store of A. H. Kress & Co., in Texarkana, as a saleswoman. She sold a cup to a customer for 10 cents and after the customer was gone the manager of the store demanded an extra 5 cents, saying she had charged and collected 15 cents for the cup.

It is alleged that the manager caught the girl by the arm, dragged her down the aisle of the store, in the presence of dozens of clerks, and accused her of being a thief.

GIRL KILLED BY ENGINE

Crossing Siding Hurriedly, Maid Is Struck by Train.

Wentzville, Mo., Feb. 6.—Fear of a switch engine cost Miss Lizzie Gerding her life here last afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Miss Gerding, the pretty 20 year-old daughter of John A. Gerding, a retired merchant, was on her way to a store, and was walking along the Wabash railroad tracks.

As she neared the engine, which was standing on a siding, she became frightened, although the locomotive was not in motion.

Crossing hurriedly to the main line, Miss Gerding stepped in front of passenger train No. 2, eastbound, and was hurled fifty feet and killed.

Do you have backache occasionally, or "stitches" in the side, and sometimes do you feel all tired out, without ambition and without energy? If so, your kidneys are out of order. Take DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. They promptly relieve backache, weak back, inflammation of the bladder and weak kidneys. Sold by Arlington Pharmacy.

W. E. Bard Drug Co. Will Not Allow it to Exist in Sedalia.

"There is no need of catarrh in Sedalia," says W. E. Bard, "if people will only observe the law of commonsense."

Such is the quick relief and permanent cure from this treatment that they sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

FATHER KILLS DAUGHTER

She Received Shot That Was Intended for Husband.

Eldorado, Ark., Feb. 6.—Throwing herself between the two men as her father fired at her husband, Mrs. Felix Jobes, an 18-year-old bride, was instantly killed yesterday.

Andrew Bradshaw, who lives on a farm near Smackover, Union county, was angered by his daughter's marriage to Jobes and yesterday went to the home of his son-in-law with a shotgun. After a few words with Jobes, Bradshaw raised his weapon.

Mrs. Jobes stepped within range of the gun and shielded her husband. Bradshaw fired and the bullet entered Mrs. Jobes' heart.

Bradshaw was arrested and brought to jail in Eldorado.

A weak stomach means weak stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. It's a pity that sick ones continue to drug the stomach or stimulate the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves, not the organs themselves, need this help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative has, and is promptly helping so many sick ones. It goes direct to the cause of these diseases. Test this vital truth, and see. W. E. Bard Drug Co.

It's Here.

A Strenuous Task.

"I don't see why you should be excused," the judge said to the witness. "You look well enough." "But jest think of it, yer honor," said the witness, "I've done stood on this here stand an' told the truth fer two hours on a stretch."

CATARRH A SERIOUS FAR-REACHING BLOOD DISORDER

Even in its early stages Catarrh is almost intolerable, caused by the stuffy feeling in the nose, the buzzing noises in the ears, the continual "hawking and spitting" difficult breathing, etc. But when the blood becomes thoroughly polluted from the catarrhal matter, the inflammation extends to the bronchial tubes, causing hoarseness, and often an aggravating cough; the stomach is affected, resulting in dyspepsia, loss of appetite and strength, and gradually all the mucous membranes of the body become diseased and the system upset and deranged. Frequently the kidneys and bladder are attacked, and the constant passage of impure blood through the lungs, diseases these important members, and Catarrh terminates in Consumption. Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, and must be treated constitutionally, for it is beyond the reach of local treatment. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all the impure catarrhal matter and at the same time building up the entire system. It goes down and attacks the disease at its head, in the circulation, and removes every trace of the impurity that is causing the trouble. Then as rich, pure blood circulates through the body, the inflamed membranes commence to heal, the mucous discharges grow less and finally cease, and all the disagreeable and disgusting symptoms of Catarrh disappear. S. S. S. has no equal as a cure for this disease. It refines and purifies the entire circulation and repairs the damage done by Catarrh. Special book on Catarrh and any medical advice free.

TAMALE FACTORY IN ROOM

And, Besides the Mexican Merchant, Seven Others Lived in It.

Kansas City, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Kate W. Pearson, an investigator for the Associated Charities, reported yesterday that she found a family of Mexicans, husband, wife, five small children and a boarder, living in one small room at 406 East Sixth street. Three of the children were sick.

Her investigation developed the fact that the husband made a poor living for his family by selling tamales on the streets, and, worst of all, that the tamales were mixed and cooked in the one small room, 12x12, where lived the eight people.

The room, she said, could be made cleaner.

JUST MERE PIECE OF STRING.

The Important Part It Plays in Japanese Life.

Writing from Japan, an American says: "You must come here to appreciate some of the quaint customs and usages which contact with other peoples has not yet driven out. To read about them gives you only a poor idea. For instance, did you ever know what an important thing a piece of string is here? The children, workmen idlers, servants, all carry pieces of string for use in case of emergency.

"With us the emergency would arise only when a parcel had to be done up, but the Jap uses his piece of string as a first aid to the injured, to repair a rent in his clothing, to fix a broken-down jinrikisha, to mend tools, to take measurements and, in fact, the string is his universal tool chest.

"The queerest use to which it is put, according to my way of thinking, is when a police officer arrests a man, ties a bit of string about the arrested man's wrist and then leads him by the loose end of the thin hempen fetter to the lockup. You ask: 'Why doesn't the Jap crook break the string and find a gateway?' He could, but he would not. That's where his respect for the law comes in, and the bit of string holds the man as securely as though he were manacled by our own humane chilled steel, nickel-plated and snap-locked method."

FINGERS OF VARIOUS VALUES.

Thumb Is Easily the Most Important of the Digits.

You have only to grasp a pen or a tool of some sort to realize that the different fingers are far from having the same value with reference to their usefulness in performing work. Much the most important is the thumb, for without it prehension would be very imperfect. The hand is no longer pincers, but merely a claw, when deprived of the thumb. It may be estimated that the thumb represents fully a third of the total value of the hand. The total loss of the thumb is estimated by competent authorities as 15 to 35 per cent. for the right and 10 to 15 per cent. for the left hand, except for workers in art, when 40 to 50 for the right and 25 to 40 per cent. for the left hand comes nearer the value.

The total loss of the index finger causes an incapacity estimated at from 15 to 25 per cent. for the right hand and 10 to 15 per cent. for the left. The middle finger is less important than the index. The ring finger is least important, and the little finger may be compared to its neighbor, except in the professions in which it serves as a point of support for the hand.

When Aliens Die in Egypt.

Under the laws of the country all bodies must be buried within 24 hours after death. In the case of foreigners, if relatives desire to remove the body, it must be embalmed or first buried for a year. The process of embalming in modern Egypt is not only very expensive, amounting often to $1,000, but it is undesirable. Neither is it convenient often to bury the dead for a year preparatory to removal. Whatever objections therefore may exist elsewhere to the burning of the dead so that their ashes may be transported to their own country, they are without much force in Egypt. Recently a law has been passed allowing this disposition of the dead, but as it is against the religion of the Mohammedans, the government does not see its way to providing for the burning.

Hippophagy.

Hippophagy being in low water in these later days, somebody has set himself to show what an exceedingly respectable history attaches to the practice. Among the ancients, especially in China, eating horse flesh was general, and it was only killed in Europe by a papal decree of Gregory III, though why horse flesh should have been interdicted does not appear. It was only the famine caused by Napoleon's invasion that revived the practice in Germany, where it has survived ever since.

At Last.

Mrs. Newed (excitedly—O, Henry! I've just discovered why your poems are always returned by this magazine!

Mr. Newed (a near-poet)—Indeed?

Mrs. Newed—Yes, indeed! Why, here's the answer in plain print: "No contributions will be returned unless stamps are furnished," and you, you old goose, always send the stamps!

Fanciful Finance.

"Time," remarked the wise person, "is money."

"Perhaps," answered Mr. Sirius Barker, "but it shouldn't be brought to the attention of some banks I have heard of. Instead of clearing-house certificates, they may find it comfortable and convenient to issue eight-day clocks."

THE INTEREST DEEPENS

EVANGELIST WILLIAMS HAD FOUR CONVERTS AT SERVICES LAST NIGHT.

OTHERS ALSO ASKED FOR PRAYERS

Music Is Great Aid to Success of the Meetings—Subjects for Future Sermons Given—Afternoon Services Interesting.

There is no letting up in the attendance and interest in the special revival meetings now being conducted by Drummer Evangelist Williams and Prof. Montgomery at the First M. E. church. Last evening's sermon was equal to the best, yet there was in it profound strength, strikingly new, beautifully presented and on fire with zeal and love heaven born. The pathos and power in the sermon mellowed every heart. The speaker's movement at times was like a sweep of a tornado and again as soothing as a sweet lullaby of a tender mother. He was in an inspirational mood not often seen in a speaker.

Mr. Williams and his wife are both members of the Interdenominational Evangelist association, of which Rev. Wilbur C. Chapman, of the Presbyterian church, is president. He says also he is a double header, was ordained in the M. E. church, his papers were taken up by the M. E. church, South, and recognized. So he holds a certificate of ordination signed by Bishop Wilson, of the M. E. church, South. He says that he is an immersed Methodist and that he baptized his wife in the Pacific ocean, and salted her down there where there was much water, which should satisfy both the Baptist and Christian churches.

Prof. Montgomery and his wife are also members of the Interdenominational Association of Evangelists.

He took for his subject last night "The Last Invitation." Rev. 22:17. He said this was the first text he ever preached from and that he had been preaching from it ever since.

"Grace does not run in the blood, but sin does. A saint does not beget a saint, but a sinner begets a sinner. Inebrity being a disease, the saloon is a spreader of that disease, and should be closed for the protection of the health of the community. You have no more right to hit a drunkard over the head with a policeman's club than you have to hit a man with consumption or any other disease. You professed Christians, who have fostered this business, are the ones whom I would put on the rock pile until you awoke to the enormity of your sin in fostering the saloon business. Men, the best way to reform your boy is to reform yourself.

"Jesus as our attorney does not demand a large fee. If he did many of us could never secure his services. When I came to Jesus to ask him to take my case I had not had on a clean shirt for four weeks; had not slept in a bed, had not eaten a meal at a table, had lived on whisky and free lunch; was begging 10 cents on the street from passersby to get a drink. 'Nothing in my hand I bring, simply to the cross I cling.' Do you want an attorney who has influence with the court? who has the ear of God? in the language of the street, who has the pull?"

At the close of the address last night four young men arose and requested prayers and four people came forward and united with the church.

Mrs. Williams, the wife of the evangelist, conducts the afternoon meetings at 3 p. m. She took for her subject today, Mary Magdalene. She is proving herself a great second to her husband in his life work. The attendance is fine at these afternoon meetings. Those who stay away miss a treat.

Tonight the subject will be "Conversion."

Tomorrow night, "No Room for Jesus."

The chorus choir and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Montgomery, is the very best. The people gather as early as 7 p. m. so as to enjoy the song service and get a good seat.

Uncle Remus vs. Ibsen.

From "Uncle Remus" Morris was always willing and eager to read aloud, or "Huck Finn," which he half-jestingly pronounced to be the greatest thing, whether in art or nature, that America had produced. For refinement of style, for subtle psychology in creation, he had but little taste. He could not admire either George Meredith or Stevenson. When he was introduced to Ibsen's plays and called on to join in admiring their union of accomplished dramatic craftsmanship with the most modern movement of ideas, they were dismissed by him with the terse and comprehensive criticism, "Very clever I must say."—From "The Life of William Morris," by J. W. MacKail.

Laughable Linguistic Errors.

The mistakes made by foreigners in endeavoring to use some of our slang phrases are often quite amusing. This was shown the other day, when a Teutonic friend, in trying to made evident the social prominence of a common acquaintance, exclaimed:

"Oh, he's the biggest pebble in the peach!"

On another occasion, while admiring the fair complexion of a baby, brought forth by a fond mother for his inspection, he said:

"He is fine. What nice white meat he has got."

Then, in taking leave of his hostess, he remarked:

"Well, so long. See you farther on. Cold out, don't you."

AT THE UNIQUE THIS WEEK

New Program of Artists Go On Tonight.

The cozy Unique theater, which is now under new management, offers for the last three days of this week an exceptionally clever company of artists, also new and excellent films and illustrated songs. The first number on the program is Daly and Mack, in a comedy sketch in which there is a laugh every minute. Mr. Daily is considered the best in his line, that of a tramp, and his sayings are humorous as well as laughable. Miss Marguerite Favar, the petite comedienne late of the Anna Held company, will be seen in a clever singing and dancing specialty, with an abundance of elaborate wardrobe and winning smiles. The last number is the Tambo Duo, introducing high class singing, talking and double tambourine manipulating, which is a decided novelty. George Seldon, the Tambo Boy, is considered the best roller skate dancer in the world, bar none, and has a standing challenge to produce his equal. The costumes of the Tambo duo are new and elegant. Admission 10 cents; reserved seats, 5c extra.

WOOD' OPERA HOUSE.

All Next Week.

The management of Wood's opera house tries his best when booking attractions for his patrons, to book those that are known and have a reputation. He has been remarkably successful in this particular when he secured the Great Baker Co., who will be at Wood's opera house all next week; a show while entirely out of the ordinary, is by no means less pleasing. In fact, people like changes in the season's attraction, and now we have one different from all the rest.

The Great Baker presents a line of mysteries that will send them all home guessing, at the same time pleased. The specialties introduced between these mysterious acts are the latest and best, the attraction as a whole is one of those that will have to be seen to be appreciated.

The Omaha Daily Bee has this to say of Clifton Stealsmith:

"A comedian that can keep an audience from a broad grin to hysterical laughter for two hours and a half is going some. This is what Clifton Steelsmith did to a packed house at the Krug yesterday. Omaha theatergoers do not remember of having seen this young man before, but they are willing to forgive him for hiding his light under a bushel if he will agree to come around more often in the future."

Clifton Steelsmith and company are appearing in the musical rural comedy, "A Missouri Boy," which is billed to appear at Wood's opera house Sunday, Feb. 9.

SEDALIA THEATER.

Miss Grace Hayward, who comes to the Sedalia theater on next Sunday afternoon, has earned for herself the title of America's greatest stock actress through her many successful seasons in this line of work. Miss Hayward was a regular visitor to this city in the past, and while her company has been seen in this section recently, she was absent from the cast, owing to her engagements with some of the largest stock companies as the leading lady. She was for several seasons with the largest of their kind in America, viz: Three most successful seasons at the Lyceum theater, Minneapolis; one season at the Boyd theater, Omaha; one season at the Avenue theater, Pittsburg; Waterbury, Conn., and Kansas City, Mo., returning two seasons ago for the first time to stock work on the road. Miss Hayward will open her engagement in this city with a play in which she has achieved a great success this season. During the week an excellent new line of plays will be presented.

FAVOR OF TEMPERANCE

OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION, THOUGH

St. Louis Brewer Too Ill to Debate With the Prohibitionists Even if He Had Any Desire in That Direction.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—Adolphus Busch is too ill to debate with anyone, even though he had the inclination to do so.

He says he will not accept the challenge of the prohibitionists of Los Angeles to discuss the liquor issue, and does not believe any of the other liquor men will attempt to deal with experienced orators.

Mr. Busch was able to sit up in an easy chair and discuss the affair with a representative of the press yesterday.

"What have these prohibition people ever done, anyway? These men have never accomplished anything. These women are neglecting their homes, their families. Why don't they do something useful?

"I used to think that local option was a good thing, but it has failed with all the rest. In Oklahoma, in Georgia and in Maine there is more drunkenness than ever there was before they had prohibition. They have forced everyone to carry his own bottle, and make it hard for them to get beer and light wines, which do not intoxicate anyone.

"Prohibition people ought to teach temperance and moderation, instead of wasting their time.

"I believe in temperance, but I do not believe in prohibition."

Mr. Busch grew excited and tried to arise from his chair, but was forced to remain, while the physician by his side insisted that the interview end.

'POLITICS INSTEAD OF DUTY"

Heney Attacks Federal Attorneys in the Oregon Land Cases.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 6. — "United States attorneys doing politics instead of their duty and appointed by rotten United States senators," is the way F. J. Heney characterized some government officials in his opening argument in the trial of John H. Hall, ex-United States district attorney, charged with conspiracy in land fraud cases.

Heney laid stress on his assertions that Hall catered to those who possessed political influence in Oregon, and always was ready to assist them when they ran foul of the law, although when it came to a man of no consequence, Hall developed into an active and energetic official.

He argued that Hall had ample evidence that the Butte Creek Land, Live Stock and Lumber Co. had fenced public land illegally, yet he shirked his duty and failed to proceed against them.

A SHERIFF SEIZED A BANK

One of the Proprietors of an Italian Institution Had Fled.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 6.—Following the disappearance of Giovanni Bersani, of the Banca Provincialo Romana, in the Italian settlement in the lower section of the city, the contents of the bank were seized by the sheriff yesterday on a note of Daniel Sassi, a patron.

The bank has about 1,000 depositors. They clamored for their money and hung about the offices threatening the Bersani brothers, who ran the institution.

Biagio Bersani failed to appear at the bank Tuesday and yesterday the depositors gathered.

A squad of police was called out to protect the property and the sheriff seized the effects of the bank on Sassi's note, which is for nearly $3,000. The amount of the deposits is estimated at about $10,000.

It Pays.

Mr. Servant says that the system of promptly delivering medicines and things from the Drug Store to the door of the patron is not only generally appreciated, but that it pays the Arlington to thus accommodate its customers.

In the Language.

"Some one has said that a kiss is the language of love," remarked the young man in the parlor scene.

"Well," rejoined the fair maid on the far end of the sofa, "why don't you get busy and say something?"

'TOMMY' LEACH BALKING

SAME OLD CAUSE, MONEY MATTERS

Barney Dreyfuss Offers Slight Increase, but Leach Believes the Boost Should Be Substantial and Stands Pat.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Few people know that Barney Dreyfuss sent for Tommy Leach last Wednesday to talk contract for next season. It has not been published in Pittsburg, and for no other reason than that Leach has refused the terms offered him by the Pittsburg management.

If Leach had signed his contract, Dreyfuss would have had the news published broadcast, also intimating that Tommy the Wee had just dropped into Pittsburg to see friends and called around at baseball headquarters to sign up, the same sort of a "spiel" that he gave one year ago.

When nothing appeared in the Pittsburg papers about the clever fielder's appearance in the Smoky City an investigation was started.

Leach was not found until Tuesday, and he refused to discuss the subject whatsoever, with the exception that Dreyfuss had sent for him to talk business, and that they could not come to an agreement in regard to salary.

W. J. BRYAN THEIR CHOICE

INDIANA TO FALL INTO LINE WITH NEBRASKA'S BRYAN FOLLOWERS.

SENTIMENT AT MEETING OF EDITORS

Writers Are in Session at Indianapolis, Ind., and All Seem in Favor of William Jennings Bryan as Democratic Nominee.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—An almost general sentiment in favor of the nomination of W. J. Bryan for the presidency is expressed by the democratic editors of the state, who are here in force today to attend the winter meeting of the Indiana Democratic Editorial association.

Even those editors opposed to Mr. Bryan admit that the Hoosier delegation will probably fall into line for the Nebraskan at the Denver convention.

The scribes will hold their annual banquet at the Grand hotel tonight. The speakers will include Henry A. Barnhart, of the Rochester Sentinel, on "The Condition of the Party," and Royal E. Purcell, of the Vincennes Sun, on "The Counrty Press in Politics."

The business session will be held tomorrow. Several prominent democratic politicians and candidates for state offices and for congress are hobnobbing with the editors.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Sedalia Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor; why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Sedalia testimonial:

Joseph Adams, blacksmith at 211 South Osage street, and living at 417 West Fifth street, Sedalia, Mo., says: "I was troubled for years with a constant misery in my back and sharp pains along the channel running from the kidneys to the bladder. During the night I would have to get up four or five times to pass the secretions, especially in cold or damp weather. I went to the W. E. Bard Drug Co., procured Doan's Kidney Pills and used them according to directions. After using three boxes I did not have to arise at night so frequently, and by back was free from pain and was stronger than it had been for a long time. From my experience I can say that Doan's Kidney Pills can be relied upon to bring beneficial results in all cases of backache and kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THINGS TO REMEMBER.

Grade your apples when you take them to market. You can get a better price for the best ones and the others wil sell better than they would if all mixed in with something else.

Remove and burn all dead limbs and trees as soon as possible; they offer a refuge for germs and it is better to destroy a tree, even though it is a valuable one, than to have the disease spread through the entire orchard.

With newly set fruit trees especially, watering without mulching in times of drought does more harm than good, unless the ground is thoroughly soaked just at evening. If young orchards are watered in dry weather see to it that the surface when water is put on is shaded with mulch.

WEDDING WAS POSTPONED

Rev. W. G. Pike Was to Have Married Wealthy Springfield Lady.

Rev. W. G. Pike, formerly minister of the Austin and Arch street churches in this city, but now pastor of the Methodist church at Morrisville, Mo., was to have been married Tuesday evening to Miss Mattie M. Brooks, the only daughter of the late Richard M. Brooks, of Springfield, Mo., but the marriage has been postponed indefinitely, owing to business relating to the affairs of the estate, says the Nevada Post. At the death of her father practically the entire estate at Springfield reverted to the daughter, the two sons being cut off with $1 each.

The brothers made objection to the marriage of their sister, and it was intimated that should the ceremony take place as planned a contest would be instituted in the courts for a division of the property left by the father.

Miss Brooks is considere very wealthy and owns much property in Springfield. She is a member of the Methodist church in that city and is much devoted to her church work.

It was while attending a funeral that Rev. Pike met Miss Brooks. Their friendship ripened into love and culminated in their engagement. The wedding will probably take place in the near future or as soon as matters can be satisfactorily adjusted with her two brothers.

WOMAN DIES FROM POISON

An Ohio Husband is Held as the Slayer of His Wife.

Gallipolis, O., Feb. 6.—Summer, a hamlet in Meigs county, is confronted with a murder mystery in the death last Friday of Mrs. Fred Van Meter, who, it has been discovered, died from poison, which it is alleged to have been administered by her husband.

Van Meter is in jail and Coroner Rowley, after the post-morten examination, gave a verdict that Mrs. Van Meter died from arsenical poison, administered by her husband with intent to kill.

Van Meter, it is alleged, put the poison in a coffee pot. Several persons who dined with Mrs. Van Meter were made deathly sick, but VanMeter escaped sickness himself. It is said he afterward destroyed the coffee pot and saucer in which the poison had been mixed.

DEMOCRATS IN SESSION

EXECUTIVE MEETING OF PARTY MEN BEING HELD AT MONTGOMERY, ALA., TODAY.

ARRANGING FOR STATE PRIMARIES

Delegates to the National Democratic Convention at Denver, Colo., Will Also Be Named at the Meeting and Resolutions Adopted.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 6.—Members of the Alabama Democratic executive committee are beginning to arrive in Montgomery today, preliminary to the meeting to be held tomorrow to decide on the party primaries and convention. Exclusive of the chairman and secretary, there are 45 members of the executive committee of Alabama, four from each of the nine districts and nine from the state at large.

As stated in the official call, the purpose of the meeting is to arrange for the state primaries, and to set a date for the convention, at which delegates to the national democratic convention, to be held in Denver, will be selected. The state primaries will be called for the election of two supreme court judges. While this is an off year in politics in Alabama, it is expected that there will be several prominent men asking for these positions on the supreme court bench. At the last convention, the precedent was set whereby the state officers were to be nominated in primary, although they may be elected in convention, this election, of course, being a matter of form. At the primaries, too, delegates to the state convention will be elected, the convention to be called by the executive committee.

From late developments it is indicated that there will be a warm fight in the convention as to whether or not the Alabama delegation shall be instructed for Mr. Bryan for the presidency. One anti-Bryan movement was set on foot some time ago in Birmingham by Walker Percy and other representative citizens. The gentlemen identified with this movement will work for anti-Bryan delegates to the state convention, and in case of their election these anti-Bryan delegates will work in the state convention for an Alabama delegation to the Denver convention instructed against Mr. Bryan.

However, there was another movement put on foot at the same time in the interest of Mr. Bryan, and from reports gathered from nearby communities, Bryan is the prime favorite in Alabama.

Bryan men are free to predict that if the Alabama delegation to be elected in the state convention is not instructed for Mr. Bryan it will not be instructed for any other.

IT SAVED MY LIFE— WRITES ECZEMA PATIENT.

Bed-Ridden Sufferer Completely Cured By Use of D. D. D. External Wash.

Mrs. E. Hegg, 1550 West Madison street, under date of Dec. 9, 1907, writes as follows:

"I suffered three years with Weeping Eczema. It started with a little spot on my knees and spread fast over my whole body. I spent hundreds of dollars and went to every good doctor I heard of, but kept getting worse. Nothing would stop the awful itch and burning.

"I had to stay in bed from the middle of May to the middle of July. Then I tried D. D. D. prescription. This is the 9th of December and I am entirely free from the terrible disease. D. D. D. saved my life.

"When I began this treatment, people were afraid of me I looked so terrible. My husband was the only one who would take care of me. D. D. D. stopped the itch at once so I could sleep, which I had not done before. Then I began to get better fast and now my skin is clear and white, not a spot anywhere.'

Just a few drops of D. D. D. prescription applied to the skin brings relief—nothing to swallow or drink. We vouch for D. D. D. prescription, also the cleansing D. D. D. Soap. W. E. Bard Drug Co. Get a bottle today if you have any skin disease.' Begin your cure at once.

PAPER IN FAVOR OF COWHERD

Cole County Democrat Also for Folk for Senator.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 6.—The Cole County Democrat is out editorially in support of W. S. Cowherd for governor as the democratic nominee.

"Folk for the United States senate and Cowherd for governor ,is the choice of the Democrat," said its editor, Joseph Goldman, last night.

The Democrat was a strong Folk paper when he was candidate for governor. Its former editor, Speed Mosby, is pardon attorney under Governor Folk. He is still a stockholder in the Democrat, but has no other connection with the paper.

Adjutant General James A. DeArmond, son of Congressman DeArmond, and owner of the Bates County Democrat, is also favorable to Cowherd.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. SHOT A BROTHER-IN-LAW

J. T. WILSON, WHO ASKS DIVORCE, TWICE WOUNDED BY F. J. ENGLEMAN.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEADED BY LATTER

"He Was Coming at Me Like a Mad Bull," Says Assailant—Victim May Die as Result of His Injuries.

St. Louis, Feb. 6.—John T. Wilson, president of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way, who filed suit for divorce a week ago, was twice shot in the head and perhaps fatally wounded by his brother-in-law, Frank J. Engleman, of Kansas City, at 6:45 o'clock last night at the Wilson home.

Engleman is under arrest at the Deer street police station. He says he fired because Engleman was coming at him "like a mad bull." Wilson was taken to the City hospital. He was unable to make a statement to the policeman who accompanied him in the ambulance.

Mrs. Wilson, over whom the shooting occurred, is prostrated at the home, No. 4438 Natural Bridge road.

Engleman, who is 33 years old and married, lives at No. 1628 Benton boulevard, a good residence section in Kansas City. He is vice president and general manager of the Central Boarding and Supply Co., with offices in the Kansas City Life building. He makes contracts with railroads for boarding employes.

Engleman came to St. Louis Tuesday, after learning from a sister in Springfield, Mo., that the other sister, Mrs. Wilson, was being sued for divorce.

Wilson, after returning home last night, went to the kitchen, as had been his custom, to wash his hands in a solution of carbolic acid. He got a pan of hot water and went to the sink, where his wife was washing dishes. He jostled her and they scuffled. Mrs. Wilson picked up a lemon squeezer and he seized her.

Frank Wagner, 15 years old, Mrs. Wilson's son by a former marriage, was in the room and rushed to the aid of his mother, throwing his arms about his stepfather's neck.

Engleman, who was on the second floor reading, heard his sister's screams and rushed down stairs, stopping on the way to get a revolver that he had left in the library in the front of the house.

As he entered the room he cried to Wilson to release his sister. Wilson kept his hold on the woman and Engleman fired. He says he shot high because the boy was clinging about Wilson's neck.

The shots went over the boy's head. One of them hit Wilson in the right forearm and then in the lower lip, fracturing the lower jaw. The other glanced along the top of the head, causing a depressed fracture of the skull.

Engleman then threw his revolver to one side and helped the neighbors, who had been attracted by the shots, to bathe Wilson's wounds. He awaited the arrival of the police and was taken to the station. The arrest was made by Special Officers Lawler and Dryden and Sergeant Waddell. The wife was taken to the station, but after questioning by Lieutenant Nolte, was allowed to return to her home. She went at once to bed.

SUICIDED IN A HOTEL

Illinoisan Was Found Dying in Room With Woman.

Danville, Ill., Feb. 6.—B. F. Morehouse, a cigar manufacturer of Champaign, committed suicide at the Saratoga hotel here Tuesday night by taking carbolic acid.

With him was a woman, whom he registered as his wife, and who disappeared immediately after the man took the poison in the room, which had been occupied by the two since Monday night. No trace of her can be found, and her identity is a mystery.

Morehouse left his home in Champaign Monday afternoon, telling his wife, who is just recovering from a severe illness, that he was going to Bloomington. Arriving at the hotel here shortly before midnight Monday, he and the woman registered as "R. F. Morehouse and wife."

Late Tuesday evening she telephoned from the room to the hotel office for a physician. When the physician arrived he found Morehouse lying on the bed dying from the effects of poison. The bottle label was that of a Champaign druggist.

While arrangements were being made for the removal of the body, the woman left the hotel, and has not been seen since.

Morehouse was about 50 years old, and leaves four children, besides his widow.

"PICTURE HATS" BARRED ?

Petition That Co-Eds Come Bareheaded for Classes.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Men students in the psychology class of Prof. William Waugh, of the University of Chicago, have petitioned their professor to forbid the wearing of picture hats by girls in the class room. They assert the forests of veils and plumes interrupt their gaze upon the professor and cause them to "flunk."

On Monday the professor sent out "flunk notices" to more than three-fourths of the men in the class, and the petition was their response.

Prof. Waugh said the matter would be taken to President Harry Pratt Judson.

GOOD WOMAN IS CALLED

FORMERLY TAUGHT IN THE SCHOOLS

For Twenty Years She Was Private Secretary to Mesdames Smith and Cotton—No Arrangements for Funeral.

Miss Allie Chappelear, sister of Mrs. John L. Hall and Mrs. Harvey J. Smith, died of heart and kidney trouble at the home of Mrs. Hall, 423 West Broadway, at 11:05 o'clock this morning.

Three years ago she was stricken with paralysis, and since that time she has been an invalid.

A week ago last Saturday she was taken bedfast with heart and kidney trouble, and since then until the final summons came today she grew gradually worse, the immediate relatives having expected death at any moment.

Miss Chappelear was perfectly conscious up to the time of her death, and shortly before expiring glanced through the window, remarking, "It is a beautiful day."

Miss Chappelear was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William W. Chappelear, of Eureka, Ill. She was born in that city on June 1, 1857, and remained there for a number of years, coming to Sedalia about twenty-five years ago.

She was employed as a teacher in the public schools of this city, ably filling the position for three years, after which she took up her home with Mesdames Smith and Cotton, the former now deceased.

For over twenty years Miss Chappelear acted as secretary and companion to Mesdames Smith and Cotton, and several months ago retired to live with Mrs. Hall, where she has since resided.

A year after being stricken with paralysis Miss Chappelear went to California, where she remained for two years, in the hope of benefiting her health, but the desired change did not materialize, and she returned home.

She was a member of the First Christian church and adhered strictly to every teaching of her religion.

Loved by every acquaintance, she possessed the sympathy of all in her sufferings, which she bore patiently and silently, realizing that it was the Master's will.

Besides the sisters named above, deceased leaves a brother, H. S. Chappelear, of Los Angeles, Cal., and the following other sisters: Mrs. M. P. Holmes and Mrs. L. A. Ross, both of Los Angeles, and Mrs. L. C. Glessner, of Findlay, O. The last named sister is expected to arrive tomorrow to attend the funeral, the arrangements for which have not been made.

MR. F. B. DRAKE IS DEAD

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT OF MISSOURI PACIFIC NUMBER OF YEARS AGO.

DIED IN NEW YORK CITY ON SUNDAY

He Had Held Many Responsible Positions—Among Other Things He Rebuilt the Mexican National Railway.

Col. J. West Goodwin today received a letter from Mrs. Frank B. Drake, telling of the death of her husband, a former general superintendent of the Missouri Pacific railway, with headquarters in Sedalia.

Mr. Drake died at his home, "The Powellton," 231 West Ninety-seventh street, New York City, Sunday, Feb. 2, of heart failure, aged 54 years. He was born in Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 23, 1854, and began his railroad career with the Pullman Palace Car Co., Pullman, Ill.

In 1887 he became private secretary to A. A. Talmage, who was the general manager of the Missouri Pacific railway at St. Louis. Mr. Drake steadily advanced until he became general superintendent of the road, holding the position until 1890, when he was elected general manager of the Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinaw railway, with headquarters at Toledo, O.

He resigned this office in 1898, going to New York, where he took up railroad work as an expert, and a syndicate of bankers sent him to Porto Rico to decide on the advisability of building railroads on the island.

Afterwards Mr. Drake rebuilt the Mexican National railroad in Mexico for James Spyer & Co., and looked up railroad interests for them in South America.

He had an extensive acquaintance among railway officials and was looked upon as one of the railway authorities of the United States.

Mrs. Drake alone survives her husband, no children having been born of their union.

MORSE IS STILL MISSING

REPUTED WORTH MANY MILLIONS

He It Was Who Organized the Ice Trust and Grew Wealthy—Late Financial Crash Wrecked His Schemes.

New York, Feb. 6.—Search was today continued for Charles W. Morse, the banker, promoter and organizer, who has been missing for several days.

An attorney is quoted as saying today that Morse sailed for Europe last Saturday for a three weeks' rest, not anticipating any crisis in his affairs during his absence.

Since Morse's elimination from the New York banking situation he has transacted most of his business at his residence. Prior to the collapse of the various enterprises in which he was engaged, Morse's fortune was estimated as high as $20,000,000.

Creditors yesterday attached his property in this city, including his residence at 728 Fifth avenue, in a suit begun by Charles A. Hanna, national bank examiner, as receiver of the National Bank of North America, which Morse controlled. A judgment by default for $155,753 in another suit was also entered against him today.

Morse, whose wide embracing of operations in the business world, had made him one of the most prominent of financial men, has been seriously involved recently, consequent upon the money stress and banking troubles.

Troubles have been piling thick and fast on him ever since last October. When the United Copper corner went to pieces and the prices came tumbling down, it was reported that Mr. Morse had sold out the other members of the pool. The failures of Otto Heinze & Co. and of Gross & Kleeberg were soon announced.

Then followed in quick succession the resignations of Morse from all banking institutions, the failure of the Knickerbocker Trust Co., the closing of the Hamilton bank and half a score of small Brooklyn and Harlem institutions; the forced withdrawal of Edward R. Thomas and Orlando F. Thomas from the banking field, the suicide of Charles L. Barney and the spread of the panic over the United States and the civilized world.

On Oct. 29, at the beginning of the panic, Mr. Morse mortgaged his Fifth avenue home to John E. Berwind for $350,000. The property carried a prior mortgage of $150,000.

With the subsidence of the panic the weakness of the so-called Morse banks became apparent. The National Bank of North America and the New Amsterdam bank suspended. Then followed the receivership of the Consolidated Steamship Co. and several of its subsidiaries.

Mr. Morse and the late Charles L. Barney organized the American Ice Co. ten years ago.

Woman Gets Good Verdict.

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 6.—A jury in the district court today awarded Mrs. G. G. Burton a verdict for $3,000 against ex-State Superintendent of Public Instruction I. F. Dayhoff. Mrs. Burton, who represents a series of school books, in her petition asked for $12,000, claiming that Superintendent Dayhoff had injured her character by editorial attacks upon her in his paper, the Kansas Educator, in 1906.

STILL GAINING GROUND

THIS IS THE REPORT THAT WE GET FROM MISSOURI UNITED WORKMEN.

GAIN IN FIVE MONTHS $71,276.01

A Few More Months of Such Results Will Insure Payment of All Claims Promptly Upon Their Approval.

Henry L. Jost, of Kansas City, grand master workman of the A. O. U. W., who has frequently visited in Sedalia, has the following of interest in the February issue of the Overseer, the official organ of the A. O. U. W.:

"The front page of the last issue of the Overseer contained information which must have been pleasing and encouraging to all well wishers of our order. That statement shows that our unpaid death losses on Jan. 1, 1908, were sixty-three thousand dollars ($63,000) less than on Oct. 1, 1907.

"Now, put that little nugget of truth in your sling and send it square between the eyes of the aspersing Goliath who tells you that this order is doomed. Figures don't lie; results are what count.

"The enemies and traducers of this society, both in and out of the order, have been for the past four years preaching its funeral; but we live and prosper in spite of these self-constituted undertakers, and, what is more, we intend to live and prosper in spite of anything they can or will do.

"Four years ago it was everywhere proclaimed that the end of the A. O. U. W. in Missouri was near; but since then we have paid to our widows and orphans over two and one-half millions of dollars ($2,500,000); we have cut down our unpaid losses to one-half what they were then; we have more assets in sight than we have ever had in our history; our report to the insurance commissione, which is now in preparation, and which I will file about the middle of February will be the best of the four I have submitted to the department; we have a system which enables us to compete with our competitors for new business; and, to cap the climax, we have run our society at a less cost to the membership than any like company or association in the land, all circumstances considered."

UNIONS ARE INTERESTED

NOT DECLARED FOR A CANDIDATE

Will Naturally Oppose for Political Preferment Those Who Are Known Not to Favor the Labor Movement.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6. — John Mitchell, ex-president of the United Mine Workers of America, when asked today in regard to rumors to the effect that there had been inaugurated during the recent mine workers' convention a movement to indorse the candidacy of certain aspirants for the presidency of the United States and for other political offices, stated that as far as he knew there was no foundation for such rpmors.

He said, however, that members of the miners' union, together with all trade unionists affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, were interested actively in the election to all executive, judicial and administrative offices of men who were known to be sympathetic to all reasonable demands of the wage earners of the country.

"It follows, therefore," said Mr. Mitchell, "that they would oppose the candidacy of aspirants for political honors who are known to be unsympathetic or antagonistic to the labor movement."

Inquest Case Resumed.

As the Democrat-Sentinel goes to press, Coroner Miller concluded the hearing of evidence at the inquest to ascertain the manner of killing of Fred Ish, 14-year-old son of C. C. Ish, who was run over and killed by an M., K. & T. engine in the yards here Tuesday.

At 3:30 o'clock a verdict was returned that Ish was killed by M., K. & T. engine No. 173, but there was no criticism of the engine crew or censure of the railway company.

Will Wed This Evening.

Earl D. Campbell, assistant foreman of the Schwartzchild & Schultzberger Packing company's plant at Kansas City, and Miss Bessie Savage, daughter of John Savage, a farmer of Tipton, Mo., arrived here on No. 1 this afternoon, and proceeded to Kaiser's hotel, where they are to be married this evening. BOONE COUNTY NOW DRY

THE "WETS" SNOWED UNDER IN COLUMBIA BY MAJORITY OF 42.

CARRIED COUNTY BY ABOUT 550

Right of Students to Vote in Columbia Declared to Be Unconstitutional and a Contest Is to Follow.

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 6.—At the local option elections in Boone county yesterday, Columbia went "dry" by a majority of 42 votes, and Boone county was also carried by the advocates of local option by a majority of about 550.

The total vote in Columbia was 1,954, larger by 600 votes than any vote ever cast here. The vote in Columbia was 998 for and 956 against local option.

Sixty-eight students voted in the different wards in Columbia, and the election in the city will be contested on this ground.

The statutes of Missouri say a student neither gains nor loses his citizenship as a result of attending the state university. The local option fight here has been bitterly fought. Not until the official count was made could the result be determined.

Church bells were rung last night and a bonfire was built on Broadway in celebration of the victory for the "drys."

Section No. 7, Article No. 8, of the Constitution of Missouri, which will be the basis of the contest to be waged by those who opposed the closing of saloons in Missouri, reads:

"For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained a residence by reason of his presence or lost it by reason of his absence while employed in the service, either civil or military of this state, or of the United States, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of the state or of the United States, nor while a student of any institution of learning."

The hotel has a rule that women unaccompanied by escorts shall not be served on the roof garden. The jury decided for the hotel.

"I intend to fight hotels that impose indignities on respectable women by denying them the privilege of eating in public dining rooms and ejecting them when unaccompanied by escorts, if it takes thousands. will keep on appealing this case far as it can go."

THE SITUATION IN PORTUGAL.

The history of European regicides would seem to indicate that the only way rulers of that continent may be reasonably certain of dying a natural death is to isolate themselves from he world, after the fashion of the resent monarch of Russia. Nicholas s not absolutely safe from assassiiation, but he probably is as near at state as can be provided. His protection depends not so much upon vigilance against assassins from outside the palace, for he is to all practical intent shut off from the world entirely, but upon the loyalty of his guards and associates who surround him.

But the czar of Russia does not dare to appear in public. His, of course, is an extreme case. In no other country of Europe, or the world for that matter, does a ruler require he employment of such constant and laborate safeguards against assassination as in this unhappy empire. he czar's peril is of long standing. is due to chronic misgovernment centuries, and is the same as that ch has menaced all his predeces- on the throne and contributed he violent deaths of so many. Nu- us regicides in Europe, perhaps great majority, have been due to al causes brought about by the n himself, as distinguished from general crusade of anarchists nst monarchial sovereigns.

e crime which has just occurred in Portugal, and which has stirred Europe as only such tragedies can, belongs to the former class. The late King Carlos set himself up against the will of the people, and he was ably, powerfully and willingly abetted by Premier Franco. Their lissolution of parliament and the au- ocratic government that took its lace, while ostensibly in the inter- t of national reforms, were regarded by the masses of the people, d especially by the republicans, as onsitutional and subversive of sentative administration. The s life, as well as that of his ar premier, was regarded as n danger weeks ago, and dur the last two or three weeks abundance vidence was discovered to war- belief that a perilous movewas on foot by desperate oppo- of the government. the light of what occurred, it appears that King Carlos' atti- toward parliament and the peo was unwise, and that the hardt- with which he exposed himself the royal family to the threatening elements that were known to lurk everywhere in Portugal, was also most injudicious.

The question of importance now is, what will happen to Portugal? Will there be a revolution and change in the form of government? Probably not. It is doubtful if even an attempt will be made to overthrow the existing regime or to further molest the reigning house. England and Spain will see to the upholding of the monarchy. They have already taken steps to this end. But if the reorganized ministry, into whose hands the boy king has turned all his royal prerogatives, heeds the dreadful lesson of Saturday's event, it will, as soon as rigorous measures for the safety of the kingdom may be relaxed, institute more liberal representative government and abandon the reactionary policies of the late lamented king.

ANOTHER "ATTACK" ON BUSINESS.

The suit against the Harriman flotilla of railroads in the west to compel a scattering of ownership, will, we presume, be hailed by the injured corporations as another "ruthless and wicked assault" on property and the rights of capital. It has come to be the common cry of these men whenever a fresh step is taken to enforce rational laws, particularly those relating to interstate commerce, to denounce it as an anarchistic attack upon business.

One valiant railroad president, replying to Roosevelt's recent message, rushes into print with the ludicrous assertion that there is no water in the stock of any railroad in America. Of course, such statements only cause the people to smile and take an even stronger position in favor of business honesty and law enforcement. And the railroads and other corporations which are wearing tight shoes at present, should remember that they have the public to deal with as well as the government.

The suit against the Harriman railroads is especially timely. It helps to lay the dust the corporation touters are trying to throw in the eyes of the public. The petition to liberate the transportation lines of the great west from a dictatorship is an excellent answer to the frenzied protests of the "interests" against government control of corporations. The report of the interstate commerce commission filed last summer, upon which the Salt Lake suit was begun, shows Harriman to be in control of every great trans-continental railway system in the United tSates but two. The dominion which he and his associates exercise over the transportation agencies covers the vast total of about 35,000 miles of railroad.

Think of it—the Harriman crowd rules nearly five times as many miles of railway as there is in the state of Missouri! Would the people of this state consider it to the best interests of the shippers and the public to have all its railroads in the private control of one set of men, who, moreover, were notorious Wall street speculators? Yet this is the situation in the great west, which has interests staked upon transportation facilities many times greater than those of any single state in the Union.

A new county jail has been opened at Mobile, Ala., and on Sunday 10,000 visitors were escorted through the new building. A little later some of them will call again to stay a little longer.

No water in American railway stocks! Think of a railway president making such a statement with Harriman still living and his deeds still fresh in the people's minds.

"If the president is serious about the Taft boom," begins an article in the Nashville Tenneseean. "Serious?" Why, he isn't merely "serious," he is vehement.

Proving a man insane and then proving him sane is not an impossible task. It depends principally upon the lawyer, rather than on the law.

Mr. Shaw evidently agrees with the man who remarked that "when politics interferes with your business you should give up your business."

One good way to locate an unsafe investment is to find out whether Mark Twain has been permitted to get in on the ground floor.

A Miss Augur, of Chicago, had a "coming-out" party the other day. It must have made a hole in her papa's bank account.

A HOME REMEDY THAT REDUCES FAT

Would you like to have a nice firm figure, but escape the tiresome, bonebreaking exercise or the soul-sickening diet of the old-time plan of reducing excess flesh?

Then go to the druggist and ask for this inexpensive mixture: ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3½ ounces Syrup Simplex. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, and in a few weeks you can be as fit physically as a fawn. Mix these ingredients at home if you wish, but see that you get the Marmola in a sealed package. When fresh it acts quicker.

ATHLETE KILLS A TIGER

C. H. GENSLINGER BRINGS ANIMAL'S SKIN AND A SCAR FROM MEXICO.

A THRILLING ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Told of Experiences at the Missouri Athletic Club in St. Louis Yesterday, While Listeners Held Their Breath.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6.—Charles H. Genslinger, organizer of the Missouri Athletic club and of the new Illinois Athletic club, of Chicago, arrived in St. Louis Wednesday and brings with him a remarkable story of a thrilling escape from death in the clutches of a Mexican tiger, while hunting. Mr. Genslinger has brought the tiger's skin as a trophy of the chase and a scar from a wound on his scalp as a memento of his experience. The skin measures 10 feet 6 inches from tip to tip. He will use it as a rug.

With Mr. Genslinger on the trip which lasted throughout January, was a party of business men who were invited by George W. Clynes, of Tampico, Mexico.

Mr. Genslinger told of his experience at the Missouri Athletic club Wednesday. He also told of an exciting tarpon fishing trip, when, he says, he was towed by an immense fish for more than an hour, and then lost it. The fish measured 7 feet in length, he says.

The party was under the guidance of Domingo Walle, a veteran huntsman and superintendent of the Jaciende Alametas ranch owned by Emanuel Para, a wealthy Spaniard of Tampico, Mexico. It is situated in the state of Tamaulipas, is 45 miles long, 25 miles wide and is described as containing the wildest and most picturesque scenery imaginable.

"I never had hunted for such big game as tigers before, and when our party got track of the beast, which had killed one of the horses, I anticipated some fun," Mr. Genslinger said. "I was standing in the middle of the road when the dogs started the animal toward me, full tilt. I let drive, and broke the beast's leg. But still it came tearing toward me at awful bounds. I raised the gun and shot again when it was about 50 feet from me. This time I broke its jaw . Still it plunged on.

"The next instant it gave a tremendous leap straight at me, bore me down and threw me about twenty feet, tearing a hole in my scalp with its claw. I closed my eyes when the animal struck me, and expected to be clawed, although, strange to say, I did not feel at all frightened until it was all over. When I rolled over and regained my feet, the tiger was dead. George Price, one of my friends, had shot it through the heart."

WORRIED OVER WALLACE

MR. U. G. ROBINSON LEAVES FOR KANSAS CITY TO GET HIM OUT OF RUNNING.

WANTS JUDGE FORT TO MAKE RACE

Accuse Kansas City People of Butting In—If Both Wallace and Fort Stick, Temperance Element Will Be Beaten.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6.—The announcement from Kansas City that Judge William Wallace, Gov. Folk's appointee, would enter the race for the democratic nomination for governor on a tight lid and prohibition platform fell like a bomb in the ranks of the Missouri Anti-Saloon league.

Hasty conferences were held by the local officials and it was decided that immediate efforts should be made to get Wallace out of the race, so that Judge J. Fort may have a clear field and the undivided support of the temperance element.

U. G. Robinson, superintendent of the league, left last night for Kansas City with a local Fort man to see the preachers and Kansas City politicians who are backing Wallace and to ask him to withdraw. If this request is not complied with, the league, it is understood, will go after Wallace through its official paper.

Mr. Robinson, before leaving for Kansas City, said:

"Yes, I am going up there to see the ministers and backers of Judge Wallace and insist that they get him out of the race. They ought to know, and do know, that if Fort and Wallace both run it sounds the death knell of prohibition hopes in this campaign, unless the republicans nominate a man that the temperance vote can unite upon.

"We are making good progress with Judge Fort's campaign, and can nominate him with the help of democrats opposed to Cowherd, if those Kansas City people keep their hands out and fall in line.

"But is is the rankest kind of folly to suppose that the prohibition element can accomplish anything but its own defeat with two candidates in the field. In the last issue of our paper, in response to a letter from the Kansas City preacher, suggesting Judge Wallace for governor, I said that since Judge Fort had announced Judge Wallace should stay out, and I suggested that he run for attorney general.

"Now, this simply means that the 'old guard' politicians of Kansas City have tricked the church people who are supporting Wallace."

SCROFULA AN INHERITANCE OF DISEASE AND SUFFERING

No truth is more forcibly manifested in physical life than the old saying "like begets like;" for just as the offspring of healthy ancestry are blessed with pure, rich blood, insuring health and strength, so the children of blood tainted parentage inherit a polluted circulation to burden their existence with disease and suffering. Swollen glands about the neck, brittle bones, weak eyes, pale, waxy complexions, running sores and ulcers and general poor health, are the usual ways in which Scrofula is manifested. In some cases the blood is so filled with the scrofulous germs and tubercular matter that from birth life is made miserable with suffering. Others who inherit the disease succeed in holding the trouble in check during young, vigorous life, but when the system has begun to weaken and lose its natural vitality, d especially after a spell of sickness, the ravages of the disease will commence, and in a great many cases terminate in Consumption. S. S. S. is the very best treatment for Scrofula. It renovates the entire circulation and drives out the scrofulous and tubercular deposits. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and it not only goes to the very bottom of the trouble and removes the cause and cures the disease, but it supplies the weak, anaemic blood with the healthful properties it is in need of. S. S. S. is made entirely of healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, and is an absolutely safe remedy for young or old. Book on the blood and any medical advice about Scrofula given free of charge.

A weak stomach means weak stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. It's a pity that sick ones continue to drug the stomach or stimulate the Heart and Kidneys. Mrs. J. M. Barks was hostess to the Missionary society of the Presbyterian church at a candy pulling Friday evening. All present spent a delightful time.

J. T. Goodwin celebrated the 79th anniversay of his birth Monday, Jan. 27. Since becoming residents of this city about two years ago, Mr. Goodwin and his wife have made many warm friends among all classes of people, who hope to congatulate him upon many more birthdays. Those participating in this event, in addition to Sweet Springs friends, were Mrs. G. W. Fletcher, of Higginsville; Mrs. J. W. Horner, of Alma, and Mrs. J. C. Goodwin, of Plainview, Texas.

The farmers' institute held in Sweet Springs, Tuesday, Jan. 28, was a decided success in every way. Three interesting sessions were held, each of which was well attended. The gentlemen in charge, Messrs. J. M. Jordan and Frank King, gave interesting and instructive lectures on various topics of interest to farmers and stock men. Mr. King, who is a Sweet Springs boy, has a host of friends in this city and vicinity, who are proud of the distinction he has attained in his chosen profession.

The third number of the lecture course, the Temple Male quartette, assisted by Miss Lucy Lee, reader, will be given in the Methodist church Friday evening, Feb. 7. The piano pupils of Miss Eva Tisdale gave their third recital in the Methodist church Monday evening to an appreciative audience. They were assisted by Miss Grace Lewis, of Sedalia, whose readings were well received. This is Miss Lewis' second appearance before a Sweet Springs audience, and she has many admirers here who are always glad of an opportunity to hear her. The character of work done by Miss Tisdale's pupils shows her to be a piano teacher of unusual ability, and the well selected numbers reflected credit upon the teacher and pupils. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Epworth league, which netted a handsome sum from it.

Brigadier General Harry C. Clark, of Butler, and Captain W. L. Chambers, of St. Louis, members of the state commission to select a permanent site for the encampment of the Missouri National Guard, visited in Sweet Springs Wednesday afternoon. They were met at the train by members of the Commercial club in carriages and escorted to the Springs grounds. After making a critical inspection of what this city has to offer, they returned to Sedalia, the latter city being one of five other places desirous of securing the site.

Mrs. Marvin Davis entertained a limited number of friends Monday evening at cards, complimentary to Mrs. J. C. Goodwin, of Plainview, Texas. Mrs. Davis is the soul of hospitality, and an invitation to a social function over which she presides is always appreciated, especially when an opportunity is afforded of meeting this charming guest of honor. Dainty refeshments were served, which concluded a delightful evening.

The regular meeting of the Whist club was held Thursday afternoon with Miss Odie Berry at her home on South Locust street. In addition to the club membership, a number of invited guests were present, four tables participating in the game. There is no more popular hostess in Sweet Springs' long list than Miss Berry, and on this occasion she excelled herself in her hospitality to her guests. The hostess, with the assistance of Mrs. Ed Berry, served a delicious lunch, consisting of Waldorf salad, potato chips, wafers, sherbet, pickles and hot chocolate. Mrs. E. L. Spurgeon scored equally with several other ladies, and won the prize on a cut. Guests from out of town were Miss Tracy Berry, of Houstonia; Mrs. Harmon Smith, of Granville, N. D., and Mrs. J. C. Goodwin, of Pleasantview, Texas.

Mrs. N. F. Killion died at her home in this city Jan. 28, 1908, aged nearly 74 years. Mrs. Killion was a native of oNrth Carolina, coming to this state soon after her marriage to Mr. Killion. She united with the Baptist church in early girlhood, and was devoted to the interests of her church during the remainder of her life. She is survived by nine children, her husband having died about ten years ago. After a short service at her home here Wednesday, the body was taken to Oak Grove church, where Rev. S. H. Carter conducted the funeral service, and the body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. The memory of her sweet christian character should be a constant benediction to all who were associated with her.

to the entire satisfaction of their own consciences. Then, turning to the defendant and his counsel, Justice Dowling said:

The Judge Says Incurable.

"The only testimony in this case upon which a verdict of insanity could be based was to the effect that the defendant is suffering from maniac depressive form of mental derangement. This testimony and the diagnosis of the form of insanity was based upon prior outbreaks of the defendant as testified to by witnesses from London, Monte Carlo, Paris and Albany. It also appears from the testimony, and the court was careful to inquire as to this, that reoccurrences of these attacks are reasonably certain. There has been no testimony adduced here to show that a person suffering from this form of insanity can ever be permanently cured.

"It appears, however, that during the maniacal form of the disease the person suffering therefrom is likely to commit dangerous assaults or murder. There is danger, too, of suicide.

"Therefore, upon all the testimony in this case the court deems that to allow the defendant to go at large would be dangerous to the public safety.

To Be Held in Custody.

"The decision of the court is that the defendant shall not be discharged, but being in custody shall be so held and committed with all dispatch to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Mattewan. The sheriff of the county is directed to take custody of the defendant and deliver him to the state authorities at Matteawan."

The law provides that once a defendant is found not guilty, even with the insanity clause attached, he may not again have his life placed in jeopardy. So soon as Thaw can convince a commission, especially appointed for his examination, or the state board of lunacy, as may be the case, that he is sane and no longer to be regarded as a menace to the public safety he will be given his liberty.

It is said District Attorney Jerome would personally oppose any move for the liberation of Thaw either at the present time or at any time in the future.

Mr. Littleton announced in court that he desired to except from the court ruling. Justice Dowling said he would allow the attorneys until 3 o'clock to consult as to whether or not they would sue out a writ of habeas corpus to have Thaw's sanity tested at once by a commissioner or to have him confined to a state institution.

The Family Hoped for It.

Thaw's family was pleased with the verdict and declared it was the best it had hoped for. The members are particularly anxious, however, that Thaw shall be taken to a private asylum or some other hospital under state direction than the one for criminal insane.

Mrs. William Thaw received at the uptown hotel, where she has been stopping, the news of her son's acquittal. She was called to the telephone as the jury filed into court and held there until William Moore, of Mr. Peabody's office, could tell the tidings to her over the wire.

Thaw showed no other emotion than the characteristic smile which has so often played about his lips. His wife flushed a deep red as Foreman Gremmels stated that a verdict had been reached.

Ate Their Lunch Together.

Thaw was recalled from the custody of his Tombs guard when Justice Dowling granted a delay in executing the order of commitment. Mrs. Thaw had brought his luncheon down to him in her motor car, and it had been spread in the Tombs as usual. The repast was sent for and Thaw and his wife ate together in an anteroom of the court chamber, where he had twice stood trial for his life, the first jury having disagreed, 7 to 5, for conviction.

Besides saying informally that she was pleased with the verdict, Mrs. Evelyn Thaw made no statement at the court house. Thaw sent word he had nothing to say at this time.

The Mother Thanked God.

When the news of the verdict was communicated to Mrs. William Thaw, the prisoner's mother, who was waiting at her apartments in the Hotel Loraine, she said:

"Thank God, my son is saved; I am perfectly satisfied."

At the request of the defendant's counsel, Justice Dowling delayed the execution of the order committing Thaw to the asylum until 3 o'clock, to allow counsel to confer as to whether or not a writ of habeas corpus will be sued out to have his sanity tested by a commission before he is taken away to Matteawan.

Thaw was called back from the prison and had luncheon with his wife in an ante chamber of the court room. The jurymen all refused to divulge the secrets of their deliberations further than to say that fourteen ballots were taken.

A Hard Night for the Jury.

After having argued and balloted all night long in the stuffy little jury room adjoining the chamber of the criminal branch of the supreme court the Thaw jurors heartily welcomed their release this morning when shortly before 8 o'clock they were taken up town to breakfast. Several of the jurymen are well along in years, and the all night session seemed to have gone badly wth them. Their faces were drawn and tense, and the good nature and companionship which had been so noticeable in this jury ever since the panel was completed during the first week of the trial was gone.

Thaw, although late to bed, was up with the gray of dawn this morning, and to his keepers in the tombs expressed the hope that a verdict had been reached. He was thoroughly convinced before retiring last night that the rumor dividing the jury eight to four in favor of acquittal on the ground of insanity was true, and he felt early in the day that the minority might be won over.

Baths, fresh air and breakfast worked a marked improvement in the condition of most of the jurors, and when they returned to the criminal court room from their hotel at 10 o'clock all seemed physically fit to continue their deliberations for some time to come.

Thaw's Night Was Restless.

Never since the killing of Stanford White has Thaw spent so restless a night as he did last night and during the early hours this morning. During the early hours of the night Thaw smoked a good deal and seemed to believe that the jury would return a verdict before midnight.

When he learned that the jury had failed to agree and had been locked up for the night, he became restless. Although he tried to sleep he was wakeful and after a doze would wake again and ask the warden for news of the jury.

Thaw was taken from the prison to the court house at 10:30 o'clock, but no word at that time or for an hour thereafter had come from Justice Dowling or from the jury room. The judge finally arrived at 11:35 o'clock and went to his chamber.

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw visited her husband early in the morning and reported that he was quite dejecte over the outlook. Thaw said then:

Thaw Complains of Prejudice.

"I am afraid that despite the vigilance of my counsel there are two o three men on the jury with innat prejudices against me. I have i mind one particular juror whose na I shall not mention. But no one w has followed the trial with any gree of interest can have failed notive the significant glances th juror exchanged with a membe the prosecution. This was parti larly noticeable at the conclusion Mr. Littleton's address."

One Commission Said He Was Sa

Today's decision of the secon Thaw jury is at variance with th report of the so-called lunacy mission summoned at the time o first trial to pass upon the sa the prisoner at that particula After a long legal battle th mission was appointed and te of a diversified character wa in secret. The members of th mission were Morgan J. O'Br member of the New York su court; Peter P. Olney, a lawy Dr. Leopold Putzel, a specia considerable reputation. Th mission reported that it Thaw sane at the time. the commission decided that:

In view of this conclus lunacy commission Justice before whom the trial w dered that the trial of t proceed.

MAKING OVER OF CITIES

THE NEW PROFESSION OF CITY PLANNING IS NOW ONLY SEVEN YEARS OLD.

HAS SPREAD ACROSS THE COUNTRY

What It Means to Re-Make a City So That It Will Be Convenient, Beautiful and Truly Good to Live In.

CHARLES MULFORD ROBINSON.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Charles Mulford Robinson, of Rochester, N. Y., the author of this article, may be said to have created the profession of city planning, for while there are many who practice it in connection with some other profession, as architecture or landscape design, he stands alone to make it a profession by itself. He is the author of "The Improvement of Towns and Cities," which has been called "the Bible of the improvement effort in the United States," and of "Modern Civic Art," which is devoted to a discussion of the more strictly artistic problems of city building, and he is a frequent contributor to magazines. Many cities have engaged Mr. Robinson either through chambers of commerce, improvement clubs or municipal appropriations, to make reports on their possibilities. Among them are Colorado Springs, Detroit, Buffalo, Syracuse, Denver, Columbus, O. Oakland, Cal., Honolulu, Watertown and Jamestown, N. Y., Long Beach, Cal., Los Angeles, Ogdensburg, San Jose and Dubuque.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

One of the older poets had it that "God made the country, but man made the town." There are lots of people who are getting hot on the trail of that man. If they get hold of him once they would trounce him as a jerry builder and a dub. But as that is out of the quesion and of no rofit—and as we are all pretty much esponsible—they have set to with a ill at the recasting of cities. The movement has gone on merrily in ngland and Continental Europe for me time past, and now has invaded merican cities in a serious, a thorgh going and infectious way.

t is really wonderful how the ement has spread. It embraces es and towns of all sizes and geophical location, from New York to guio, in the Philippine islands.

The story of the developments of e last twelve months alone is suffintly stirring, for in that time the rt for New York (by the city rovement commission), for St. is, for St. Paul, for Dubuque, for cinnati, for Montreal, for Los Ans; the informal report for Bosand minor reports for Jamestown, N. Y., and Ogdenburg, have come out; while Boston, New Haven, Grand Rapids, Baltimore, Hartford, olumbus and no doubt other cities e set commissioners to work; Diego, Watertown and Duluth e engaged individuals to make eral city improvement plans; and nolulu, reasserting itself, has brought out a second edition of a report which was made for its beautification a couple of years ago.

The movement is only seven years old in America, for it may be said to have commenced with the appointment of the Washington expert commission in 1901. But when one year creates so considerable an amount of city planning history as have the last twelve months, it will be understood that the history of seven years—all of them active—is too long to do justice to in a newspaper article.

As was said at a recent city-plan dinner in Toronto, "the re-casting of cities, that they may be more convenient and beautiful, is in the air. The whole continent is affected." It is a sort of municipal "grip," but very beneficent in its effect.

However, the essential thing, if not the most drastic, is why cities go into this work. It is a long story; but, briefly, it may be said that the benefits to be derived are three-fold. They lie in a bettering of those circulatory problems that have been created by congested traffic; in the improvement of social conditions in many drections; and in increasing the visible splendor of cities.

The demand has grown out of the necessities created by an unexpectedly large and rapid municipal growth. Urban conditions have so changed that recasting is required; streets that were sufficient for the town cannot carry the traffic which a metropolis pours upon them; the children of the poor who formerly had access to the country in a few moments' walk are now fenced in by miles of closely built up streets; public building is hidden by crowding sky scrapers, and gardens have given place to the closed ranks of masonry.

The replanning of cities is concerned with all of these matters, because it has to do with the urban framework, as this is made up of streets and avenues and open spaces of one sort and another. It treats of the skeleton of the city, of that which gives to the city its constructural form; and it must take the broad and comprehensive view, considering the needs not of districts only, but of the community as a whole.

It has little to do with details, such as billboards, pavements, etc., but it is intimately concerned with the large problems of transportation; with the convenience of the streets for traffic purposes; with the proper location, and, if possible, the grouping, of public buildings; with the development of neighborhood centers which shall become a moral and social force; with the location of parks and their accessibility to those who most need them; and with the attractive development of residential and suburban tracts.

The good city plan report considers not one and another of these matters; but all of them together. They are all parts of one great remoulding of cities, modernizing them by recasting them as far as may be on scientific lines—which is to say, on lines of business convenience, of good sense, of social service, and of good looks.

It cannot even be said that, generally speaking, one phase is more important than another; the marvelous spread of the movement is due to recognition of the fact that no city which is progressive, or which even wishes to seem so, can do without such a report.

Yet this recasting, it is important to observe, does not mean loss of individuality. That is the most precious thing a city has. Rather, in so far as the expression of the city is worthy, the new plans emphasize its special characteristics.

The first thing which is looked for by him who adequately approaches the problem of city planning is that intangible something which the city says, which is the secret of its own peculiar charm among cities. And when he has found this, it tempers his whole recasting of the city; subtly, unconsciously, it affects his every scheme.

A man might be wondrously learned in engineering, in landscape designing, and in architecture; but unless he was so sympathetic to the spirit of cities that he could catch the individual expression of each, he must fail in the making of city plans.

There should be something said of the spirit in which this remaking of cities is undertaken and authorized. You will hear half a dozen motives announced for the ordering of the work. The city is to be improved to keep pace with other cities, to draw tourists, to correct evils; but it all simmers down to one thing—public spirit. And those to whom the commission is given undertake it reverently, in appreciation of the great trust which thousands of persons are reposing upon them, and of the opportunity, for never before has artist had so wonderful and complex a material with which to work. A man's every higher instinct must respond to the appeal, when called to replan a city.

SIX KILLED BY TORNADO

STORM CUTS SWATH THROUGH MISSISSIPPI FARMING COMMUNITY.

THREE OTHERS FATALLY INJURED

Others Were Slightly Injured By Reason of Their Houses Being Scattered in All Directions By the Wind.

Wesson, Miss., Feb. 1.—Six persons were killed outright by a tornado which laid waste a strip of farming country three-quarters of a mile wide and several miles long just north of here yesterday.

Three other persons were probably fatally injured and many others were slightly hurt when their homes were blown down.

A negro who arrived here about dark brought news of the storm and an appeal for aid. Three physicians started in carriages for the stricken district. The dead and injured are all white.

For a distance of twenty miles in a northeasternly direction the wind tore a pathway nearly a mile wide, partly or wholly destroying nearly every building in this area. Scores of dead farm animals littered the tornado's track. The Maddox residence was blown off the premises, and Mrs. Maddox's spinal column was broken. A negro was found in the debris of Robert Littleton's farm house.

Surrounding towns, not in the direct path of the storm, suffered damage during the few minutes of the storm's durat . At Georgetown, buildings were blown down, and at Hazelhurst two sawmills, many fences and several small buildings were blown over. Center Point reported much damage, but no loss of life.

Darkness settled down so quickly after the tornado that only an incomplete estimate of the damage, both to life and property, was obtained.

WILL SPEND WINTER THERE

General Attorney of Katy Is Accompanied by Family.

The San Antonio Express of Jan. 30 has the following regarding a former well known resident of Sedalia: George P. B. Jackson, general attorney in Missouri for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, arrived in San Antonio last night in the private car "Helena." He is accompanied by his wife, daughter and son-in-law, H. G. Dunham. Mr. Jackson has taken a house at Laurel Heights, and his family will remain in San Antonio for several months.

"I did not appreciate the delights of San Antonio climate until today," said Mrs. Jackson last night. "When we left St. Louis the snow covered the ground and for many weeks the cold weather had prevailed. Here we find a mild summer climate, with the grass still green and the flowers in bloom. We expect to remain several months."

CELLULOID COMB EXPLODES

Burns Off Woman's Hair and Sears Scalp.

St. Louis, Feb. 1.—While Mrs. May Greene, 35 years of age, was sitting before her grate last night a spark ignited the celluloid comb in her hair and the ornament burned in a flash.

Her hair was burned off and her scalp was so badly seared that her physician today expressed the opinion that there will not be a regrowth of her black tresses.

THE THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Of Founding of Maywood Hospital Celebrated Saturday.

Dr. E. A. Wood, owner and superintendent of Maywood hospital, celebrated the third anniversary of the founding of t institution Saturday.

Three years ago yesterday, February 1, 1905, the institution was opened. Immediately the hospital began to flourish and has continued to do so since.

During the past year 275 patients entered and received treatment at the institution, while a total of over 800 have been treated there since the opening.

One-third of this number were out-of-town patients, and the death rate for the three years is 3½ per cent of the total number treated, the best showing made by any hospital in the state, as the lowest death rate so far published has been 5 per cent.

Of the patients admitted to the hospital many came from other places, eight states being represented.

THE COLLEGE MUDDLE

Trustees Endorse Dr. Lowe in Dismissin Certaing Students.

At the trustees' meeting at George R. Smith college on Friday considerable miscellaneous business was transacted.

The dismissal of certain students by the faculty a short time since was further considered, with all additional light on the subject, and was again unanimously endorsed and reaffirmed.

The quesion of the responsibility for the arrest of a young man Tuesday was investigated and was found to have been occasioned by an officer misunderstanding a 'phone message, and that the college authorities had no knowledge or responsibility in the matter.

All misunderstandings were thoroughly explained, to the satisfaction of all concerned. No classes of students have left the institution and the incident is considered closed.

Death of Mr. Kurtz.

Chris Kurtz, a laborer, died of unknown causes at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Yunker, 409 North Park avenue, at 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning, aged 53 years.

He had been in ill health for several years, and last Wednesday was taken bedfast. The attending physician stated that death was due to a foreign growth in the stomach.

Mr. Krutz was a member of the German Evangelical church, and leaves two sisters and one brother, as follows: Mrs. Yunker, Mrs. Katherine Hostetter, of Lake Creek, and Fred Kurtz, of Cooper county.

Funeral services will be held at the residence of Mrs. Yunker at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. Otto Press will officiate, and burial will be made at Lake Creek.

Engineer Retires Rich.

Larry Gaghan, for fifty years a locomotive engineer on the Chicago and Northwestern railway, Friday afternoon made his last run before retirement on a pension. Gaghan, who is 70 years old, retires rich. He is vice president of the Sterling National bank and is reputed to be worth half a million, mostly in property in the vicinity at Sterling.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

THE SOCIALIST TICKET

'UNCLE DAVE' LINDSAY FOR MAYOR

Balance of the Ticket Is Made Up of Those Who Labor With Their Hands—Chairman McQuiddy Was Re-Elected.

(Sunday's Daily.)

The city convention of the socialist party was called to order last night in Tillberry's hall at 7:30 o'clock by R. H. McQuiddy, chairman of the city central committee. After affirming the national platform of the socialist party of America, which declares its adherence to the principles of international socialism and declares its aims to be the organization of the working class and those in sympathy with it into a political party with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of wealth production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people, the local platform strongly declares the endorsement of the trade union movement as an economic factor in the struggle of the workers for better conditions.

Among the demands are local autonomy for the municipality, the initiative and referendum, proportional representation, that officers be subject to recall by their constituents, a declaration against the further granting of public utility franchises, abolition of the contract system, employment of union labor on public work under union conditions, prohibition of child labor, compulsory education, free school books, meals and clothing when necessary, establishment of municipal employment bureaus, the erection of a labor temple by the municipality as headquarters, meeting place and educational center for laborers of the city, and the establishment of a system of street cleaning and sprinkling, and the removal of garbage by the city.

Mayor—David Lindsay, laborer.

City marshal—Ed Maul, machinist.

Collector—G. E. Walker, machinist.

City attorney—J. W. Barnett, boiler maker.

Treasurer—A. Strelow, machinist.

Assessor—Gus Selvitz, machinist.

Police judge—J. M. Knaus, carman.

Councilmen—First ward, J. E. Pyle, painter; Second ward, W. J. Long, locomotive engineer; Third ward, P. S. Jamerson, cigarmaker; Fourth ward, M. H. Smith, carman.

Members of school board—M. D. Christian, stationary engineer; J. D. Russell, machinist.

After the election of R. H. McQuiddy as chairman for the ensuing year the convention adjourned.

TO CONNECT PAVEMENTS

C. M. Price Advocates Important Improvement to Public Roads.

Among the enthusiasts at the polls to vote for the extension of the Six-Mile road district Saturday was Mr. C. M. Price, f the Price Furniture company. Mr. Price not only favors extending the road district as outlined at the election, but advocates extending the paved streets in the city to meet the rock roads in the country.

Speaking of the matter Saturday, Mr. Price said he would be glad indeed to see the citizens take this proposition up and carry it through, and was sure it would pay for itself many times over in a very short time.

"Now that the ball has started," said Mr. Price, "let's keep it going and put the roads in Pettis county in the best of shape. My support in any movement of this sort can be depended upon."

"Health Coffee" is really the closest Coffee imitation ever yet produced. This, the finest Coffee Substitute ever made, has recently been produced by Dr. Shoop, of Racine, Wis. Not a grain of real Coffee in it, either. Health Coffee is made from pure toasted cereals, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—who might drink it for Coffee. No twenty or thirty minutes boiling. "Made in a minute," says the doctor. R. C. Dolph & Co.

Dramshop Licenses Opposed.

We are informed that certain dramshop licenses in Johnson county have practically expired and that petitions will be presented to the county court Monday asking that new licenses be granted, says the Warrensburg Star. In view of the fact that the local option election will be held the latter part of the week, there is not much likelihood of the county court taking action on the petitions until the voters decide whether or not they want saloons at all.

Refuses Liquor Shipments.

Announcement that the Louisville and Nashville railroad will no longer receive shipments of liquor into Georgia or Alabama, which have recently passed prohibition acts, was published Friday.

A high official of the road said the reason for the action is that the right of the road to ship into prohibition territory, even though the traffic be interstate commerce, has been called in question by a suit filed in Indiana affecting the practice as carried on between Indiana points and points in Kentucky which have voted against the sale of liquor

The program will be announced this week. C. N. White is chairman of the local option committee of Morgan county.

'TWAS A FINE LECTURE

That Delivered by Rev. Fr. Vaughan Friday Night.

Rev. Fr. Vaughan, a Catholic priest of Milwaukee, delivered one of the most interesting and instructive lectures ever heard in this city at the First M. E. church Friday night.

In spite of the inclement weather, there was a good attendance, and every auditor was delighted with the lecture. Rev. Vaughan, who is a forceful speaker, spoke for an hour and twenty minutes, delivering his remarks in a clear voice and emphasizing them with frequent gestures that aroused the enthusiasm of the audience.

Frequently during his talk he gave quotations from Hamlet, Richard III., the Merchant of Venice, Henry VIII and Julius Caesar.

In brief, Rev. Vaughan's talk was received with the greatest of pleasure by every one fortunate enough to hear him, and profuse indeed were the complimentary remarks passed on the reverend gentleman following the deliverance of the lecture.

Mac Lean to Be Surrendered.

London, Feb. 3.—The government has received a telegram from the British charge d' affaires at Tangier to the effect that Raisuli, the bandit chief, has promised to surrender Caid Sir Harry Mac Lean this evening.

MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT

SPECIAL COMMUNICATION SENT TO CONGRESS BY CHIEF EXECUTIVE FRIDAY

TALKS STRAIGHT FROM SHOULDER

Defend's Administration's Policy in Fighting Illegal Acts of Corporations and Answers Attacks That Have Been Made.

Washington, Jan. 31.—At the noon hour today congress received from President Roosevelt a special message dealing with present conditions and reviewing some of the acts of his administration.

The message, which was read to both houses, makes especial references to the subjects of the employers' liability act and injunction in labor cases.

The message in full follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The recent decision of the supreme court in regard to the employers' liability act, the experience of the interstate commerce commission and of the department of justice in enforcing the interstate commerce and antitrust laws, and the gravely significant attitude toward the law and its admin[illegible]tration recently adopted by certain heads of great corporation[illegible] render it desirable that there should be additional legislation as regards certain of the relations between labor and capital, and between the great corporations and the public.

The supreme court has decided th[illegible] employers' liability law to be unco[illegible]stitutional because its terms apply [illegible]o employers wholly in intrastate c[illegible]merce as well as to employers engaged in interstate commerce. By a substantial majority the court holds that the congress has power to deal with the question in so far as interstate commerce is concerned.

As regards the employers' liability law, I advocate its immediate reenactment, limiting its scope so that it shall apply only to the class of cases to which the court says it can constitutionally apply, but strengthening its provisions within this scope. Interstate employment being thus covered by an adequate national law, the field of intrastate employment will be left to the action of the several states. With this clear definition of responsibility the states will undoubtedly give to the performance of their duty within their field the consideration the importance of the subject demands.

vested in the department of commerce and labor. The law should apply to all laborers, mechanics, and other civilian employes of the government of the United States, including those in the service of the Panama canal commission and of the insular governments.

The same broad principle which should apply to the government should ultimately be made applicable to all private employers. Where the nation has the power it should enact laws to this effect. Where the states alone have the power they should enact the laws. It is to be observed that an employers' liability does not really mean mulcting employers in damages. It merely throws upon the employer the burden of accident insurance against injuries which are sure to occur. It requires him either to bear or to distribute through insurance the loss which can readily be borne when distributed, but which, if undistributed, bears with frightful hardship upon the unfortunate victim of accident. In theory, if wages were always freely and fairly adusted, they would always include an allowance as against the risk of injury, just as certainly as the rate of interest for money includes an allowance for insurance against the risk of loss. In theory, if employees were all experienced business men, they would employ that part of their wages which is received because of the risk of injury to secure accident insurance. But as a matter of fact, it is not practical to expect that this will be done by the great body of employes. An employers' liability law makes it certain that it will be done, in effect, by the employer, and it will ultimately impose no real additional burden upon him.

There is a special bill to which I call your attention. Secretary Taft has urgently recommended the immediate passage of a law providing for compensation to employes of the government injured in the work of the Isthmian canal, and that $100,000 be appropriated for this purpose each year. I earnestly hope this will be done; and that a special bill will be passed covering the case of Yardmaster Banton, who was injured nearly two years ago while doing his duty. He is now helpless to support his wife and his three little boys.

The Injunction Problem.

I again call your attention to the need of some action in connection with the abuse of injunctions in labor cases. As regards the rights and wrongs of labor and capital, from blacklisting to boycotting, the whole subject is covered in admirable fashion by the report of the Anthracite coal strike commission, which report should serve as a chart for the guidance of both legislative and executive officers. As regards injunctions, I can do little but repeat what I have said in my last message to the congress. Even though it were possible I should consider it most unwise to abolish the use of the process of injunction. It is necessary in order that the courts may maintain their own dignity and in order that they may in effective manner check disorder and violence. ing does become strong many of those upon whom they rely to defend them will be the first to turn against them. Men of property can not afford to trust to anything save the spirit of justice and fair play; for those very public men who, while it is to their interest, defend all the abuses committed by capital and pose as the champions of conservatism, will, the moment they think their interest changes, take the lead in just such a matter as this and pander to what they esteem popular feeling by endeavoring, for instance, effectively to destroy the power of the courts in matters of injunction; and will even seek to render nugatory the power to punish for contempt, upon which power the very existence of the orderly administration of justice depends.

It is my purpose as soon as may be to submit some further recommendations in reference to our laws regulating labor conditions within the sphere of federal authority. A very recent decision of the supreme court of the United States rendered since this message was written in the case of Adair versus the United States, seemingly of very large import and of very serious probable consequences as modifying previously entertained views, makes necessary careful consideration of the opinions therein filed, before it is possible definitely to decide in what way to call the matter to your attention.

Urges Fuller Power for Railroad Commission.

Not only should there be action on certain laws affecting wage earners, there should also be such action on laws better to secure control over the great business concerns engaged in interstate commerce, and especially over the great common carriers. The interstate commerce commission should be empowered to pass upon any rate or practice upon its own initiative. Moreover, it should be provided that whenever the commission has reason to believe that a proposed advance in rate ought to be made without investigation, it should have authority to issue an order prohibiting the advance, pending examination by the commission.

I would not be understood as expressing an opinion that any or ever a majority of these advances are improper. Many of the rates in this country have been abnormally low. The operating expenses of our railroads, notably the wages paid railroad employes, have greatly increased. These and other causes in any given case may justify an advance in rates, and if so the advance should be permitted and approved. But there may be, and doubtless are, cases where this is not true; and our law should be so framed that the government, as the representative of the whole people, can protect the individual against unlawful exaction for the use of these public highways. The interstate commerce commission should be provided with the means to make a physical valuation of any road as to which it deems this valuation necessary. In some form the federal government should exercise supervision over the financial operations of our interstate railroads. In no other way can justice be done between the private owners of these properties and the public which pays their charges. When once an inflated capitalization has gone upon the market and has become fixed in value, its existence must be recognized As a prac[illegible]al matter it is then often absolutely necessary to take account of the thousands of innocent stockholders who have purchased their stock in good faith. The usual effect of such inflation is therefore to impose upon the public an unnecessary but everlasting tax, while the innocent purchasers of the stock are also harmed, and only a few speculators are benefitted. Such wrongs when once accomplished can … th difficulty be undone; but they … n be prevented with safety and … justice. When combinations of … state railways must obtain gov… ent sanction; when it is no lon… ossible for an intertate railway … e stocks or bonds, save in the … r provided by the federal gov… t; when that government … ure that the proceeds of such … bond issue go into the … of the property and not … ment of some individu… te; when, whenever it … rial for guidance in … action of the govern- … ical value of one of … s determined and … will be eliminat- … curities that ele- … which lends to … e quality and … d much to the … recent past. … ral government … ertain measure … ysical operation … andling of inter- … commission now … establish through … ates. In order to … on effective and in … in times of neces- … movement of traffic, I think it must also have authority to determine the conditions upon which cars shall be interchanged between different interstate railways. It is also probable that the commission should have authority in particular instances, to determine the schedule upon which perishable commodities shall be moved.

Favors Railroad Traffic Associations.

In this connection I desire to repeat my recommendation that railways be permitted to form traffic associations for the purpose of conferring about and agreeing upon rates, regulations and practices affecting interstate business in which the members of the association are mutually interested. This does not mean that they should be given the right to pool their earnings or their traffic. The law requires that rates shall be so adjusted as not to discriminate between individuals, localities, or different species of traffic. Ordinarily, rates by all competing lines must be the same. As applied to practical conditions, the railway operations of this country cannot be conducted according to law without what is equivalent to conference and agreement. The articles under which such associations operate should be approved by the commission; all their operations should be open to public inspection; and the rates, regulations and practices upon which they agree should be subject to disapproval by the commission.

I urge this last provision with the same earnestness that I do the others. This country provides its railway facilities by private capital. Those facilities will not be adequate unless the capital employed is assured of just treatment and an adequate return. In fixing the charges of our railroads, I believe that, considering the interests of the public alone, it is better to allow too liberal rather than too scanty earnings, for, otherwise, there is grave danger that our railway development may not keep pace with the demand for transportation. But the fundamental idea that these railways are public highways must be recognized, and they must be open to the whole public upon equal terms and upon reasonable terms.

The Anti-Trust Law.

In reference to the Sherman anti-trust law, I repeat the recommendations made in my message at the opening of the present congress, as well as in my message to the previous congress. The attempt in this law to provide in sweeping terms against all combinations of whatever character, if technically in restraint of trade as such restraint has been defined by the courts, must necessarily be either futile or mischievous, and sometimes both. The present law makes some combinations illegal, although they may be useful to the country. On the other hand, as to some huge combinations which are both noxious and illegal, even if the action undertaken against them under the law by the government is successful, the result may be to work but a minimum benefit to the public. Even though the combination be broken up and a small measure of reform thereby produced, the real good aimed at cannot be obtained, for such real good can come only by a thorough and continuing supervision over the acts of the combination in all its parts, so as to prevent stock watering, improper forms of competition, and, in short, wrongdoing generally. The law should correct that portion of the Sherman act which prohibits all combinations of the character above described, whether they be reasonable or unreasonable; but this should be done only as part of a general scheme to provide for this effective and thoroughgoing supervision by the national government of all the operations of the big interstate business concerns. Judge Hough, of New York, in his recent decision in the Harriman case, states that congress possesses the power to limit the interstate operations of corporations not complying with federal safeguards against the recurrence of obnoxious practices, and to license those which afford the public adequate security against methods calculated to diminish solvency, and therefore efficiency and economy in interstate transportation. The judge adds that in these matters "the power of congress is ample, though as yet not fruitful in results." It is very earnestly to be desired that either along the lines the judge indicates, or in some other way equally efficacious, the congress may exercise the power which he holds it possesses.

Laws Are All Connected.

Superficially it may seem that the laws, the passage of which I herein again advocate—for I have repeatedly advocated them before—are not connected. But in reality they are connected. Each and every one of these laws, if enacted, would represent part of the campaign against privilege, part of the campaign to make the class of great property holders realize that property has its duties no less than its rights. When the courts guarantee to the employer, as they should, the rights of the employer, and to property the rights of property, they should not less emphatically make it evident that they will exact from property and from the employer the duties which should necessarily accompany these rights; and hitherto our laws have failed in precisely this point of enforcing the performance of duty by the man of property toward the man who works for him, by the man of great wealth, especially if he uses that wealth in corporate form, toward the investor, the wage worker and the general public. The permanent failure of the man of property to fulfill his obligations would ultimately assure the wresting from him of the privileges which he is entitled to enjoy only if he recognizes the obligations accompanying them. Those who assume or share the responsibility for this failure are rendering but a poor service to the cause which they believe they champion.

Against Stock Gambling.

I do not know whether it is possible, but if possible, it is certainly desirable, that in connection with measures to restrain stock watering and over capitalization there should be measures taken to prevent at least the grosser forms of gambling in securities and commodities, such as making large sales of what men do not possess and "cornering" the market. Legitimate purchases of commodities and of stocks and securities for investment have no connection whatever with purchases of stocks or other securities or commodities on a margin for speculative and gambling purposes. There is no moral difference between gambling at cards or in lotteries or on the race track and gambling in the stock market. One method is just as pernicious to the body politic as the other in kind, and in degree the evil worked is far greater. But it is a far more difficult subject with which to deal. The great bulk of business transacted on the exchanges is not only legitimate, but is necessary to the working of our modern industrial system, and extreme care would have to be taken not to interfere with this business in doing away with the "bucket shop" type of operation. We should study both the success and the failures of foreign legislators who, notably in Germany, have worked along this line, so as not to do anything harmful. Moreover, there is a special difficulty in dealing with this matter by the federal government in a federal republic like ours. But if it is possible to devise a way to deal with it the effort should be made, even if only in a cautious and tentative way. It would seem that the federal government could at least act by forbidding the use of the mails, telegraph and telephone wires for mere gambling in stocks and futures, just as it does in lottery transactions.

Standard Oil and Santa Fe.

I enclose herewith a statement issued by the chief of the bureau of corporations (Appendix 1) in answer to certain statements (which I also enclose) made by and on behalf of the agents of the Standard Oil corporation (Appendix 2) and a letter of the attorney general (Appendix 3) containing an answer to certain statements, also inclosed, made by the president of the Santa Fe Railway company (Appendix 4). The Standard Oil corporation and the railway company have both been found guilty by the courts of criminal misconduct; both have been sentenced to pay heavy fines; and each has issued and published broadcast these statements, asserting their innocence and denouncing as improper the action of the courts and juries in convicting them of guilt. These statements are very elaborate, are very ingenious, and are untruthful in important particulars. The following letter and inclosure from Mr. Heney sufficiently illustrate the methods of the high officials of the Santa Fe and show the utter falsity of their plea of ignorance, the similar plea of the Standard Oil being equally without foundation:

Department of Justice, Office of the United States Attorney, District of Oregon, Portland, January 11, 1908.—The President, Washington, D. C. Dear Mr. President: I understand that Mr. Ripley, of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway system, has commented with some severity upon your attitude toward the payment of rebates by certain transcontinental railroads, and that he has declared that he personally never knew anything about any rebates being granted by his road. * * * I enclose you herewith a copy of a letter from Edward Chambers, general freight traffic manager of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway system, to Mr. G. A. Davidson, auditor of the same company, dated February 27, 1907. * * *

This letter does not deal with interstate shipments, but the constitution of the state of California makes the payment of rebates by railroads a felony, and Mr. Ripley has apparently not been above the commiss[illegible] of crime to secure business. You a[illegible] at liberty to use this inclosure in any way that you think it can be of service to yourself or the public. * * * Sincerely yours—Francis J. Heney.

San Francisco, February 27, 1907.—Dear Sir: I hand you herewith a file of papers covering the movement of fuel oil shipped by the Associated Oil company over our line from January 1, 1906, up to and including November 15, 1906.

We agreed with the Associated Oil company's negotiations with Mr. Ripley, Mr. Wells and myself, that in consideration of their making us a special price on oil for company use, which is covered by a contract, and the further consideration that we would take a certain quantity, they would in turn ship from Bakersfield over our line to San Francisco bay points a certain minimum number of barrels of fuel oil at rate of 25 cents per barrel from Bakersfield, exclusive of the switching charge.

These statements cover the movement, except that they have included Stockton, which is not correct, as it is not a bay point and could not be reached as conveniently by water. We have paid them on account of this movement $7,239 which should be deducted from the total of movement shown in the attached papers.

I wish you would arrange to make up a statement, check the same, and refund to the Associated Oil company down to the basis of 25 cents per barrel from Bakersfield where they are the shippers, regardless of who is consignee, as all their fuel oil is sold delivered. The reason for making this deal in addition to what I have stated, is that the Associated Oil company have their own boats and carry oil from fields controlled by themselves along the coast near San Luis Obispo to San Francisco at a much lower cost than the special rate we have made them and in competition with the Union Oil company and the Standard Oil company, it was necessary for them to sell at the San Francisco bay points on the basis of the cost of water transportation from the coast fields. They figured they could only afford to pay us the 25 cents per barrel if by doing this they sold our company a certain amount of fuel oil, otherwise the business covered by the attached papers would have come in by boat from the coast fields.

I am writing this up completely so that there may be in the papers a history of the reasons why this arrangement was made. I wish you would go ahead and make the adjustment as soon as possible, as the Associated Oil company are very anxious to have the matter closed up. The arrangement was canceled on November 15th, at a conference between Mr. Ripley, Mr. Wells, Mr. Porter and myself. Yours truly—Edward Chambers.

Shipments-Associated Oil Company, Mr. G. A. Davidson, Auditor, Los Angeles.

The attacks by these great corporations on the administration's actions have been given a wide circulation throughout the country, in the newspapers and otherwise, by those writers and speakers who, consciously or unconsciously, act as the representatives of predatory wealth—of the wealth accumulated on a giant scale by all forms of iniquity, ranging from the oppression of wage workers to unfair and unwholesome methods of crushing out competition, and to defrauding the public by stock jobbing and the manipulation of securities. Certain wealthy men of this stamp, whose conduct should be abhorrent to every man of ordinarily decent conscience, and who commit the hideous wrong of teaching our young men that phenomenal business success must ordinarily be based on dishonesty, have during the last few months made it apparent that they have banded together to work for a reaction. Their endeavor is to overthrow and discredit all who honestly administer the law, to prevent any additional legislation which would check and restrain them, and to secure if possible a freedom from all restraint which will permit every unscrupulous wrongdoer to do what he wishes unchecked provided he has enough money. The only way to counteract the movement in which these men are engaged is to make clear to the public just what they have done in the past and just wh[illegible] they are seeking to accomplish in th[illegible] present.

The administration and those who support its views are not only not engaged in an assault upon property, but are strenuous upholders of the rights of property.

Position of the Administration.

Under no circumstances would we countenance attacks upon law abiding property, or do aught but condemn those who hold up rich men as being evil men because of their riches. On the contrary, our whole effort is to insist upon conduct, and neither wealth nor property nor any other class distinction, as being the proper standard by which to judge th[illegible] actions of men. For the honest … of great wealth we hav[illegible] ar-ty regard, just … regard for the h… the honest newspa… the movement to … must be a movement … dishonesty. We attack co… rupt men of wealth, who fi… purchased politician the mos… ent instrument of corruption, a… the purchased newspaper the … efficient defender of corruption. O… main quarrel is not with these agents and representatives of the interests. They derive their chief power from the great sinister offenders who stand behind them. They are but puppets who move as the strings are pulled. It is not the puppets, but the strong, cunning men and the mighty forces working for evil behind and through the puppets, with whom we have to deal. We seek to control law-defying wealth; in the first place to prevent its doing dire evil to the republic, and in the second place to avoid the vindictive and dreadful radicalism, which, if left uncontrolled, is certain in the end to arouse. Sweeping attacks upon all property, upon all men of means, without regard to whether they do well or ill, would sound the death knell of the republic; and such attacks become inevitable if decent citizens permit those rich men whose lives are corrupt and evil to domineer in swollen pride, unchecked and unhindered, over the destinies of the country. We act in no vindictive spirit, and we are no respecter of persons. If a labor union does wrong we oppose it as firmly as we do a corporation which does wrong; and we stand equally stoutly for the rights of the man of wealth and for the rights of the wage worker. We seek to protect the property of every man who acts honestly, of every corporation that represents wealth honestly accumulated and honestly used. We seek [illegible] stop wrongdoing, and we desire [illegible] punish wrongdoes only so far as is necessary to achieve this end.

There are ample material rewards for those who serve with fidelity the mammon of unrighteousness; but they are dearly paid for by the people who permit their representatives, whether in public life, in the pres… or in the colleges, where their … men are taught, to preach and … tice that there is one law for … rich and another for the poor. rt the former, he has defended advised many wealthy malefac-s, and he knows well that, thanks o the advice of lawyers like himself, a certain kind of modern corporation has been turned into an admirable instrument by which to render it well nigh impossible to get at the head of the corporation, at the man who is really most guilty. When we are able to put the real wrongdoer in prison this is what we strive to do; this is what we have actually done with some very wealthy criminals, who, moreover, represented that most baneful of all alliances, the alliance between the corruption of organized politics and the corruption of high finance. This is what we have done in the Gaynor and Greene case, in the case of the misapplication of funds in certain great banks in Chicago, in the land fraud cases, where, as in other cases likewise, neither the higher political position nor the possession of great wealth, has availed to save the offenders from prison. The federal government does scourge sin; it does bid sinners fear; for it has put behind the bars with impartial severity, the powerful financier, the powerful politician, the rich land thief, the rich contractor—all, no matter how high their station, against whom criminal misdeeds can be proved. All of their wealth and power can not protect them. But it often happens that the effort to imprison a given defendant is certain to be futile, while it is possible to fine him or to fine the corporation of which he is head; so that, in other words the only way of punishing the wrong is by fining the corporation, unless we are content to proceed personally against the minor agents. The corporation lawyers to whom I refer and their employers are the men mainly responsible for this state of things, and their responsibility is shared with all who ingeniously oppose the passing of just and effective laws, or who fail to execute them when they have been put on the statute books.

"Innocent Stockholder" Cry.

Much is said in these attacks upon the policy of the present administration about the rights of "innocent stockholders." That stockholder is not innocent who voluntarily purchases stock in a corporation whose methods and management he knows be corrupt, and stockholders are bound to try to secure honest management, or else are estopped from complaining about the proceedings the government finds necessary in order to compel the corporation to y the law. There has been in the past grave wrong done innocent stockholders by overcapitalization, stock watering, stock jobbing, stock manipulation. This we have sought to prevent, first by exposing the thing done and punishing the offender when any existing law had been violated; second, by recommending the passage of laws which would make unlawful similar practices for the future. The public men, lawyers and editors, who loudly proclaim their sympathy for the "innocent stockholders" when a great law-defying corporation is punished, are the first to protest with frantic vehemence against all efforts by law to put a stop to the practices which are the real and ultimate sources of damage alike to the stockholders and the public. The apologists of successful dishonesty always declaim against any effort to punish or prevent it, on the ground that any such effort will "unsettle business." It they who by their acts have unsettled business; and the very men raising this cry spend hundreds of thousands of dollars in securing, by speech, editorial, book or pamphlet, defense by misstatements of at they have done; and yet when lic servants correct their misstatements by telling the truth, they aim against them for breaking ence, lest "values be depreciated." ey have hurt honest business men, est working men, honest farmers, now they clamor against the being told.

keynote of all these attacks e effort to secure honesty in ess and in politics is well exsed in brazen protests against effort for the moral regeneration the business world, on the ground that it is unnatural, unwarranted and injurious, and that business panic is the nesessary penalty for such effort to secure business honesty. morality of such a plea is pre- as great as if made on behalf he men caught in a gambling esishment when that gambling esishment is raided by the police. such words mean anything they ean that those whose sentiments ey represent stand against the ef- to bring about a moral regenera- of business, which will prevent ition of the insurance, banking eet railroad scandals in New repetition of the Chicago n deal; a repetition of th on bet en certain professional politicians, certain professed labor leaders, and certain big financiers, from the disgrace of which San Francisco has just been rescued; a repetition of the successful effort by the Standard Oil people to crush out every competitor, to overawe the common carriers and to establish a monopoly which treats the public with a contempt which the public deserves so long as it permits men of such principles and such sentiments to avow and act on them with impunity. The outcry against stopping dishonest practices among the wrongdoers who happen to be wealthy is precisely similar to the outcry raised against every effort for cleanliness and decency in city government, because, forsooth, it will "hurt business." The same outcry is made against the department of justice for prosecuting the heads of colossal corporations that has been made against the men who in San Francisco prosecuted with impartial severity the wrongdoers among the business men, public officials and labor leaders alike. The principle is the same in the two cases. Just as the blackmailer and bribe giver stand on the same evil eminence of infamy, so the man who makes an enormous fortune by corrupting legislatures and municipalities and fleecing his stockholders and the public, stands on the same moral level with the creature who fattens on the blood money of the gambling house and the saloon. Moreover, in the last analysis, both kinds of corruption are far more intimately connected than would at first appear the wrongdoing is at bottom the same. Corrupt business and corrupt politics act and react with ever increasing debasement, one on the other: the corrupt head of a corporation and the corrupt labor leader are both in the same degree the enemies of honest corporations and honest labor unions; the rebate taker, the franchise trafficker, the manipulator of securities, the purveyor and protector of vice, the blackmailing ward boss, the ballot box stuffer, the demagogue, the mob leader, the hired bully, the mankiller—all alike work at the same web or corruption, and all alike should be abhorred by honest men.

"High Finance" Term of Scandal.

The "business" which is hurt by the movement for honesty is the kind of business which, in the long run, it pays the country to have hurt. It is the kind of business which has tended to make the very name "high finance" a term of scandal to which all honest American men of business should join in putting an end. The special pleaders for business dishonesty, in denouncing the present administration for enforcing the law against the huge and corrupt corporations which have defied the law, also denounce it for endeavoring to secure sadly needed labor legislation, such as a far-reaching law making employers liable for injuries to their employes. It is meet and fit that the apologists for corrupt wealth should oppose every effort to relieve weak and helpless people from crushing misfortune brought upon them by injury in the business from which they gain a bare livlihood. The burden should be distributed. It is hypocritical baseness to speak of a girl who works in a factory where the dangerous machinery is unprotected as having the "right" freely to contract to expose herself to dangers of life and limb. She has no alternative but to suffer want or else to expose herself to such dangers, and when she loses a hand or is otherwise maimed or disfigured for life, it is a moral wrong that the whole burden of the risk necessarily incidental to the business should be placed with crushing weight upon her weak shoulders, and all who profit by her work escape scot-free. This is what opponents of a just employers' liability law advocate; and it is consistent that they should usually also advocate immunity for those most dangerous members of the criminal class—the criminals of great wealth.

Defends Two Judges.

Our opponents have recently been bitterly criticising the two judges referred to in the accompanying communications from the Standard Oil company and the Santa Fe railroad for having imposed heavy fines on these two corporations; any yet these same critics of these two judges exhaust themselves in denouncing the most respectful and cautious discussion of the official action of a judge which results in immunity to wealthy and powerful wrongdoers, rendering nugatory temperate efforts to better the condition of life and work among those of our fellow countrymen whose need is the greatest. Most certainly it behooves us all to treat with the utmost respect the high office of judge; and our judges, as a whole, are brave and upright men. Respect for the law must go hand in hand with respect for the judges; and, as a whole, it is true now as in the past that the judges stand in character and service above all other men among their fellow-servants of the ublic. There is all the greater need the few who fail in this grea who fall below this hig ard of integrity, of wisdom, of sympathetic understanding and of courage, should have their eyes opened to the needs of their countrymen. A judge who on the bench either truckles to the mob and shrinks from sternly repressing violence and disorder, or bows down gefore a corporation; who fails to stand up valiantly for the rights of property on one hand, or on the other by misuse of the process of injunction or by his attitude toward all measures for the betterment of the conditions of labor, makes the wageworker feel with bitterness that the courts are hostile to him; or who fails to realize that all public servants in their several stations must strive to stop the abuses of the criminal rich—such a man performs an even worse service to the body politic than the legislator or executive who goes wrong. The judge who does his full duty well stands higher, and renders a better service to the people, than any other public servant; he is entitled to greater respect; and if he is a true servant of the people, if he is upright, wise and fearless, he will unhesitatingly disregard even the wishes of the people if they conflict with the eternal principles of right as against wrong. He must serve the people; but he must serve his own conscience first. All honor to such a judge; and all honor can not be rendered equally to his brethren who fall immeasurably below the high ideals for which he stands. Untruthful criticism is wicked at all times, and whoever may be the object; but it is a peculiarly flagrant iniquity when a judge is the object. No man should lightly criticise a judge; no man should, even in his own mind, condemn a judge unless he is sure of the facts. If a judge is assailed for standing against popular folly, and above all for standing against mob violence, all honorable men should rally instantly to his support. Nevertheless if he clearly fails to do his duty by the public in dealing with lawbreaking corporations, lawbreaking men of wealth, he must expect to feel the weight of public opinion; and this is but right, for except in extreme cases this is the only way in which he can be reached at all. No servant of the people has a right to expect to be free from just and honest criticism.

Movement an Ethical One.

The opponents of the measures we champion single out now one and now another measure for especial attack, and speak as if the movement in which we are engaged was purely economic. It has a large economic side, but it is fundamentally an ethical movement. It is not a movement to be completed in one year, or two or three years; it is a movement which must be persevered in until the spirit which lies behind it sinks deep into the heart and the conscience of the whole people. It is always important to choose the right means to achieve our purpose, but it is even more important to keep this purpose clearly before us; and this purpose is to secure national honesty in business and in politics. We do not subscribe to the cynical belief that dishonesty and unfair dealing are essential to business success, and are to be condoned when the success is moderate and applauded when the success is great. The methods by which the Standard Oil people and those engaged in the other combinations of which I have spoken above have achieved great fortunes can only be justified by the advocacy of a system of morality which would also justify every form of criminality on the part of a labor union, and every form of violence, corruption, and fraud, from murder to bribery and ballot-box stuffing in politics. We are trying to secure equality of opportunity for all; and the struggle for honesty is the same whether it is made on behalf of one set of men or of another. In the interest of the small settlers and landowners, and against the embittered opposition of wealthy owners of huge wandering flocks of sheep, or of corporations desiring to rob the people of coal and timber, we strive to put an end to the theft of public land in the west. When we do this, and protest against the action of all men, whether in public or private life, who either take part in or refuse to try to stop such theft, we are really engaged in the same policy as when we endeavor to put a stop to rebates or to prevent the upgrowth of uncontrolled monopolies. Our effort is simply to enforce the principles of common honesty and common sense. It would indeed be ill for the country should there be any halt in our work.

Much Has Been Accomplished.

The laws must in the future be administered as they are now being administered, so that the department of justice may continue to be, what it now is, in very fact the department of justice, where so far as our ability permits justice is meted out with an even hand to great and small, rich and poor, weak and strong. Moreover, there should be no delay in supplementing the laws now on the statute books by the enactment of further legislation as outlined in the message I sent to the congress on its assembling. Under the existing laws much, very much, has been actually accomplished during the past six years, and it has been shown by actual experience that they can be enforced against the wealthiest corporation and the richest and most powerful manager or manipulator of that corporation, as rigorously and fearlessly as against the humblest offender. Above all, they have been enforced against the very wrongdoers and agents of wrongdoers who have for so many years gone scot-free and flouted the laws with impunity, against great law-defying corporations of immense wealth, which, until within the last half dozen years, have treated themselves and have expected others to treat them as being beyond and above all possible check from law.

It is especially necessary to secure to the representatives of the national government full power to deal with the great corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and above all, with the great interstate common carriers. Our people should clearly recognize that while there are difficulties in any course of conduct to be followed in dealing with these great corporations, these difficulties must be faced, and one of three courses followed.

The first course is to abandon all effort to oversee and control their actions in the interest of the general public and to permit a return to the utter lack of control which would obtain if they were left to the common law. I do not for one moment believe that our people would tolerate this position. The extraordinary growth of modern industrialism has rendered the common law, which grew up under and was adapted to deal with totally different conditions, in many respects inadequate to deal with the new conditions. These new conditions make it necessary to shackle cunning as in the past we have shackled force. The vast individual and corporate fortunes, the vast combinations of capital, which have marked the development of our industrial system, create new conditions and necessitate a change from the old attitude of the state and the nation toward the rules regulating the acquisition and untrammeled business use of property, in order both that property may be adequately protected, and that at the same time those who hold it may be prevented from wrongdoing.

The second and third courses are to have the regulation undertaken either by the nation or by the states. Of course in any event both the national government and the several state governments must do each its part, and each can do a certain amount that the other can not do, while the other really satisfactory results must be obtained by the representatives of the national and state governments working heartily together within their respective spheres. But in my judgment thoroughgoing and satisfactory control can in the end only be obtained by the action of the national government, for almost all corporations of enormous wealth—that is, corporations which it is especially desirable to control—are engaged in interstate commerce, and derive their power and their importance not from that portion of their business which is intrastate, but from the interstate business. It is not easy always to decide just where the line of demarcation between the two kinds of business falls. This line must ultimately be drawn by the federal courts. Much of the effort to secure adequate control of the great corporations by state action has been wise and effective, but much of it has been neither; for when the effort is made to accomplish by the action of the state what can only be accomplished by the action of the nation, the result can only be disappointment, and in the end the law will probably be declared unconstitutional. So likewise in the national arena, we who believe in the measures herein advocated are hampered and not aided by the extremists who advocate action so violent that it would either be useless or else would cause more mischief than it would remedy.

Laying Up a Day of Wrath.

It can not too strongly be insisted that the defenders and apologists of the great corporations, who have sought in the past and still seek to prevent adequate action by the federal government to control these great corporations, are not only proving false to the people, but are laying up a day of wrath for the great corporations themselves. The nation will not tolerate an utter lack of control over very wealthy men of enormous power in the industrial, and therefore in the social, lives of all our people, some of whom have shown themselves cynically and brutally indifferent to the interests of the people; and if the congress does not act, with good tempered and sensible but resolute thoroughness, in cutting out the evils and in providing an effective supervision, the res is certain to be action on the part of the separate states, sometimes wise, sometimes ill-judged and extreme, sometimes unjust and damaging to the railroads or other corporations, more often ineffective from every standpoint, because the federal courts declare it unconstitutional.

The Recent Panic.

We have just passed through two months of acute financial stress. At any such time it is a sad fact that entirely innocent people suffer from no fault of their own; and everyone must feel the keenest sympathy for the large body of honest business men, of honest investors, of honest wageworkers, who suffer because involved in a crash for which they are in no way responsible. At such a time there is a natural tendency on the part of many men to feel gloomy and frightened at the outlook; but there is no justification for this feeling. There is no nation so absolutely sure of ultimate success as ours. Of course we shall succeed. Ours is a nation of masterful energy, with a continent for its domain, and it feels within its veins the thrill which comes to those who know that they possess the future. We are not cast down by the fear of failure. We are upheld by the confident hope of ultimate triumph. The wrongs that exist are to be corrected; but they in no way justify doubt as to the final outcome, doubt as to the great material prosperity of the future, or of the lofty spiritual life which is to be built upon that prosperity as a foundation. No misdeeds done in the present must be permitted to shroud from our eyes the glorious future of the nation; but because of this very fact it behooves us never to swerve from our resolute purpose to cut out wrongdoing and uphold what is right.

I do not for a moment believe that the actions of this administration have brought on business distress; so far as this is due to local and not worldwide causes, and to the actions of any particular individuals, it is due to the speculative folly and flagrant dishonesty of a few men of great wealth, who seek to shield themselves from the effects of their own wrongdoing by ascribing its results to the actions of those who have sought to put a stop to the wrongdoing. But if it were true that to cut out rottenness from the body politic meant a momentary check to an unhealthy seeming prosperity, I should not for a moment hesitate to put the knife to the corruption. On behalf of all our people, on behalf no less of the honest man of means than of the honest man who earns each day's livelihood by that day's sweat of his brow, it is necessary to insist upon honesty in business and politics alike, in all walks of life, in big things and in little things; upon just and fair dealing as between man and man. Those who demand this are striving for the right in the spirit of Abraham Lincoln when he said:

"Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsmen's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still must be said, 'The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in."

In the work we of this generation are in, there is, thanks be to the Almighty, no danger of bloodshed and no use for the sword; but there is grave need of those stern qualities shown alike by the men of the and the men of the south in th days when each valiantly batt the light as it was given eac the light. Their spirit shoul spirit, as we strive to bri the day when greed and tr cunning shall be trampled by those who fight for the ness that exalteth a natio

NEW YORK IS NOT NEEDED

WHEN IT COMES TO THE NAMING OF A CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENCY.

PLAINLY SHOWN PAST CAMPAIGNS

Fact Is the Empire State Has Never Been a Maker of Presidents, According to a Washington Correspondent.

New York has 78 votes in the next republican national convention—more than any other state in the union, writes the Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript. A pretty good nucleus for a presidential candidacy, one would naturally suggest.

Friends of Secretary Taft are pointing out that New York's support in a republican national convention has heretofore availed but little; for New York has been consistently unhappy in national conventions. On a few occasions the choice of the nation has received the support of New York—as in the case of the renomination of President McKinley and the nominaton of Presdent Roosevelt, for instance.

Since the birth of the republican party in 1856, thirteen national conventions have been held. Reading the history of these conventions, the importance of the Empire state as a maker of presidents may readily be gauged.

The first convention was held at Philadelphia in 1856. John C. Freemont was nominated. He received the solid support of New York. He was defeated at the election by James Buchanan.

The convention of 1860 was held at Chicago. Abraham Lincoln was nominated on the third ballot. New York supported William H. Seward throughout the contest.

The second Lincoln convention was held at Baltimore. The sentiment for Lincoln was practically unanimous, Missouri alone standing out against him. New York couldn't help hit it right that time.

In 1868, at Chicago, and in 1872, at Philadelphia, Grant was the unanimous choice of his party. Again New York had to support the winner.

But in 1876, at Cincinnati, there was a struggle. New York had come prepared to nominate Roscoe Conkling. Rutherford B. Hayes won on the seventh ballot. New York's vote had been for Conkling up to that time.

The convention of 1880 was held in Chicago. New York again went down in defeat. Grant received the bulk of the New York votes until the deciding ballot—the thirty-sixth—when twenty New York delegates cast their votes for the nominee, Garfield.

In 1884, at Chicago, when James G. Blaine was nominated on the fourth ballot, New York's votes were divided among Arthur, Blaine, George F. Edmunds, Joseph R. Hawley and Robert T. Lincoln.

The convention of 1888 was held at Chicago. Harrison was named on the eighth ballot, and not until then did New York turn to the successful candidate. On the third ballot the vote of the state went to Chauncey M. Depew, with one vote for Blaine.

Harrison was renominated at Minneapolis in 1892, on the first ballot. New York gave him 27 votes, casting 33 for Blaine and 10 for McKinley.

At St. Louis, in 1896, New York guessed wrong again. McKinley, the nominee, received but 17 votes, as against 55 for Levi P. Morton.

Four years later it was a case of "Hobson's choice" with New York. McKinley was renominated at Philadelphia by acclamation. And again in 1904 New York couldn't go wrong. Roosevelt was nominated at Chicago by acclamation.

New York voted the right way only when the choice of the convention was unanimous—when Lincoln was renominated, both times on Grant, on McKinley's renomination and on Roosevelt.

She went wrong on Lincoln the first time, on Hayes, on Garfield, on Blaine, both times on Harrison and on McKinley the first time. New York's 78 votes will be for Hughes on the first ballot. Taft partisans say this does not alarm them.

MUST SUPPORT HIS WIFE

The Excuse Jacob H. Fleischmann Not Satisfactory.

New York, Feb. 7.—When arraigned in the Harlem court yesterday, charged with non-support by his wife, Jacob H. Fleischmann, who said he was president of the Standard Flour company, with an office in the Produce Exchange building, told Magistrate Wahle that he had money tied up because of the financial stringency and was therefore unable to support her.

Magistrate Wahle didn't think that a good excuse and ordered Fleischmann to pay his wife $10 a week and to furnish a bond of $500 as evidence of good faith.

Mrs. Fleischmann, a pretty woman of 30, said that Fleischmann, her second husband, had been a close friend of her first husband, who died in 1905. She said that as she stepped from the carriage after her first husband's funeral, Fleischmann proposed marriage to her. She wouldn't think of it then, but he persisted, and in October, 1906, they were married by Alderman Smith.

UNEMPLOYED TO SEE KING

Walk From Manchester to Windsor to Make Appeal.

London, Feb. 7.—A little band of unemployed men who have walked all way from Manchester stated on the last lap of their journey yesterday afternoon. Their destination is Windsor, where they propose to take possession of a portion of the great royal park, build cottages and farm the land which surrounds the castle of the king.

The demonstrants hope to obtain their desires peaceably, and on arrival before the castle they propose to send in a petition to King Edward, asking him to give an example to the land owners of the country by granting them the use of fifty acres of the park for experimental purposes. Unless the police interfere, the travelers hope to reach Windsor tomorrow.

Secured a Big Contract.

Botz & Sons, publishers of the Sedalia Journal, secured the largest contract of any printing firm at the meeting of the state fair board this week. A dozen out-of-town houses submitted bids on various classes of work, but Botz & Sons were the lowest bidders in nearly every instance and were awarded a very clever contract.

THE "BALLOT OR DEATH,

THIS BATTLECRY WAS GIVEN BY MEMBERS OF WOMAN'S FEDERATED CLUBS.

ARE IN SESSION IN NEW YORK CITY

Ladies Contend That They Have the Equal Rights of Men and Are Entitled to Vote in Land of the Free.

New York, Feb. 7.—"Give us the ballot or give us deat-t-h!"

This battlecry of liberty resounded today in the parlors of the Hotel Astor, where the fair members of the New York City Federation of Woman's clubs met for the fifth annual convention of that body.

Among the clubwomen assembled there were many who professed no sympathy for the demands of the suffragettes, but the counsel of these was swallowed up in the eloquence of the oratorical exponents of equal rights for all, regardless of sex.

Following this session this morning, a pink tea was held to prepare the ladies for the worldly battles of this afternoon. A ballot was also taken for the election of five directors, two for Manhattan and one each for Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond boroughs.

The crusade against the exclusion of the gentle sex from the ranks of the voters was inaugurated by the English suffragettes now visiting New York, chief among whom is Mrs. Borrman Wells. This lady is now making plans for a great demonstra- on and parade on the streets of the tropolis, similar to those which recently agitated London.

hat we want to do," said Mrs. "is to get all classes of women parade. We want the mem- he Four Hundred who have spirit to come out of their y shells and stand up for wo- s rights, and we want the work- woman.

Ve want to show by open protest we are bound to have our rights. the women in the parade will ch on foot through some of the ipal streets, and we will hold ings along the route at which we advocate woman's suffrage.

milar parades have been held in land with great success. There, ever, where suffrage is popular, e woman went in automobiles and arriages, but here, where it is in its fancy, we must go on foot.

"We will have sectional lines of paraders, one line, for instance, starting from uptown and the other from downtown. The two bodies will meet in one of the parks and a big meeting will be held there. We will secure the permission of the police, and the columns of women will be headed by bands, which will play national airs."

THE GREATEST FIGHTER

MR. JAMES J. CORBETT ACCORDS THE HONOR TO JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

THE 'TERRIBLE TURK' OF THE RING

Once Champion Thinks "Kid" Lavigne, the Saginaw "Kid," Was in a Class All by Himself in His Day.

Ex-Champion James J. Corbett talked most entertainingly last night, discussing the great boxers of the past and present, says the St. Louis Star-Chronicle. Dozens of questions were submitted to him and he had a clever answer for all. The most interesting statement made by Corbett was in regard to James J. Jeffries, the retired heavyweight, who left the ring undefeated.

"Say, boys," said Corbett, opening up his line of talk on big Jeff, "do you kno wwhat made Jim Jeffries the greatest fighter that ever lived?" No one had ever got wise to this important question, and, of course, no answer was volunteered.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Jim, settling down in his chair, while his listeners waited with bated breath to learn the great secret. "Jeffries, in the first place, was the biggest man that ever wore the title, but his one advantage was the left hand with which he has won so many battles. You see, Jeff was naturally a left-handed man. He did everything with his south paw that we do with our right hand. This gave him a hunch on all other heavy weights that they never could defeat him."

"What appeared to be the most difficult part of Jeff's anatomy to get to?" some one asked.

"That question is easily answered," said Corbett. "Jeffries was just like a stone wall. You could hit him anywhere and still not hurt him. He was so big and awkwardly clever that it was impossible to make any headway in wearing him down to a point where you might have a chance to put over the knock-out blow.

"I always considered Jeff the 'Terrible Turk' of the prize ring. He was so much bigger than all the others who fought him that his opponents wer so much outclassed in size that they lost heart. Outside of Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons was the best heavyweight I ever met. Peter Jackson was also a clever boxer, and I think this pair stood alone in the class of heavyweights of natural size.

"Fitz was a wonderful fighter for his weight and inches. He was a two-handed boxer, with all the finer points of the game at his finger ends, and that famous shift of his had us all guessing.

"Two of the most scientific I know are Tommy Ryan and Joe Gans. They are master mechanics on a job, and what they don't know about fighting isn't worth learning. I always did say Terry McGovern was the best featherweight I ever saw. He was a real fighting machine and whipped his men while his opponents were thinking of what to do.

"McGovern fought so many good men and whipped them so handily that the public to this day does not fully realize what this boy did when he was champion. Terry's best fighting weight was 120 pounds. At 128 pounds young Corbett was the best in the business.

"I do not think we will ever see Kid Lavigne's equal as a lightweight. He was a fighter, pure and simple, ane none of the presetn day lightweights has reached anywhere near the standard set by the Saginaw Kid.

"Joe Walcott, like Peter Jackson, is undoubtedly one of the most wonderful colored fighters that ever put on a glove. I fought Jackson and would fight him again if I was champion and Peter was still on earth. I never could agree with the fighters who claim the right to draw the color line. Black and white fighters are on an equal when they go into the ring.

"Boxers who pretend to be afraid of getting in bad with society for fighting a man of another color are not made of the right sort of stuff. What has a fighter to lose socially? They are all put in the same class by [illegible] public, and the man who proves himself the best of the lot is called champion and it makes no difference what the color of his opponents may be, just as long as the sports look with favor on the match. In other words, it is better to whip one negro boxer of championship caliber than a dozen white men whom the public does not look upon as worthy of attention."

No Smoke House Needed

The modern method of smoking meat by the application of our Liquid Smoke not only produces better results in every way, but does it at a minimum expense. One quart costing 75c will thoroughly "smoke" 250 pounds of meat and the whole process will not consume an hour's time.

The saving in the shrinking of the meat (often as high as 15 per cent smoke house way), will pay for the "Liquid Smoke" several times over.

If you have not used "Liquid Smoke" as yet, try it on some of your hams this year and notice the improvement.

"WILD BILL" LIKES COBB

THINKS THAT "TY" IS THE VERY BEST BALL PLAYER THAT EVER, ETC.

THE PLAYER IN CLASS BY HIMSELF

He is in the Game All the Time and Plays it Forty Different Ways—Fine Tribute By the Detroit Pitcher.

George R. Pulford, writing from Detroit, Mich., has the following interesting gossip:

Everybody in Detroit knows Wm. Donovan. But when you ask for him you don't say it that way. You must ask for "Wild Bill." Then the puzzled look disappears and a broad grin takes its place.

"Wild Bill? Sure. But you won't find him home until evening. He's over at Windsor watching the ponies run at this time."

I found that the great pitcher was one of a large crowd that makes the daily trip over the Michigan Central to Windsor, where they "watch" the ponies, at the end of a telegraph wire and back their choice with scuttles of long green.

It was in the evening when I finally shook hands with Donovan in the lobby of the Griswold house, where I found him in the center of an admiring throng of fans, many of whom had not seen him since the close of the baseball season.

Donovan is a benedict, having led one of Detroit's most beautiful young women to the altar, thus putting a check rein upon the palpitating hearts of other fair ones who gazed upon the manly form of the Tigers' star pitcher with admiration every ladies' day.

"I take things easy during the winter," said "Wild Bill." "We live in the city you know, so I can't keep chickens like Frank Chance, or fancy dogs like Buck Freeman. About the only relaxation or recreation I indulge in is to run over and place a small bet on the bangtails once in a while."

Donovan is a modest chap. His 13 years in the big leagues lies lightly upon his broad shoulders. He looks like a great big boy with his happy smile, which breaks out upon the least provocation, like well regulated attack of measles. The original member of the smile club is "Wild Bill," shedding sunshine wherever he goes.

As modest as all great men should be, Donovan does not talk about his wonderful performance of last season, when he led the American pitchers. It's hard to get him to say anything about himself, although he will rattle along like a runaway engine when speaking of the other Tigers.

He'll tell you Hugh Jennings is the greatest manager that ever lived; that Ty Cobb has the goat of every player wearing spikes; that Schaefer and O'Leary are unbeatable—in fact, if you let him alone, Bill will convince you that the Tigers are the big noise in baseball. But all the time he isn't saying anything about Donovan.

After considerable persuasion I did get this masterpitcher to say that "Jennings knew his business when he let me loaf during the cold weather and turned me loose when the sun was shining on both sides of the fence. Maybe if other managers had thought of this I would not have earned the name of 'Wild Bil.'"

And that let Donovan out on the personal pronoun proposition.

"But I'll tell you something that you can gamble on," he said. "This Ty Cobb is a little bit the best ball player in the world. There isn't anything to that proposition. I've been playing big league ball now for a good many years, and I have never seen the man in his class. When it comes to playing the game all the time he is there 40 ways. And the best of it is, he is just beginning. He will be better than ever next season, and will continue to improve right along for several years."

HE HAD TWO CONFEDERATE UNCLES

Unable to Attend Senator Taylor's Lecture on "Castles in the Air," but Approved Work Most Wamly.

Washington, Fe[illegible].—In expressing regret at being unable to attend a lecture on "Castles in the Air," to be delivered by Senator Taylor, of Tennessee, for the benefit of the monument to be erected to the memory of Confederate dead at Arlington, resident Roosevelt heartily endorsed the movement for the monument. His approval was expressed to a committee headed by former Secretary of the Navy Hiliary A. Herbert and former Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, representing the Arlington Confederate Monument association. The president said:

"I wish to express my deepest mpathy with the most cordial approval of the purpose and importance f what you are going to do.

"The monument to the Confederate dead which you will raise will commemorate, among many scores of thousands that it will thus commemorate, my mother's half brother and my mother's whole brother, who went down in the Alabama, having fired the last gun fired from that vessel, but was picked up in the escape and lived for many years afterward."

THAW MAY SOON BE FREE

Asylum Authorities Can Recommend His Discharge.

Matteawan, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Doctor Lamb, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, said yesterday that if after thirty days it is his belief that Harry K. Thaw is sane, it will be within the province of the hospital authorities to so certify to the court and recommend his release. A commission in lunacy or other proceedings would not be necessary, he declared.

The physicians at the institution are not making observations of Thaw as yet, as they feel that he has not recovered from the excitement caused by his recent trial for the murder of Stanford White. He is considered a model prisoner by the physicians and on account of his good behaviouh has been allowed certain special privileges.

Doctor Britton D. Evans, the alienist, and A. Russell Peabody, of counsel for Thaw, today visited the patient. It is stated that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, wife of the patient, has become reconciled to Thaw remaining in the hospital for the present. It is said also that it is unlikely that the members of the Thaw family will visit him frequently at Matteawan.

RUMBLINGS OF THE RAIL

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash railroad and the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal railway, arrived in New York yesterday to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the terminal company. It was stated at the close of the meeting that the only matters under consideration had been the figures of the company's earnings for the year, the committee having passed upon the report.

It was declared that the subject of a reorganization for the company has never been considered by the Wabash Pittsburg terminal board. Mr. Delano left for Chicago during the afternoon.

Edward T. Jeffery, when asked concerning the report that P. R. Bush, president of the Western Maryland, was to become one of the managing officials of the Missouri Pacific, said there was no truth in the rumor.

"Mr. Bush," said Mr. Jeffery, "will be left to work out the destinies of the Western Maryland, which is in a flourishing condition."

Rehearing on Stock Shippers' Law.

Acting for the state board of railway commissioners, Attorney General Hadley yesterday filed a motion for a rehearing of the stock shippers' law recently decided unconstitutional by the supreme court.

The motion follows along the lines of the dissenting opinion of Judge Woodson, and contends that the law contemplates that the fare for transportation and the return of the shipper is included in the price charged for the transportation of the shipment by the railroad.

The supreme court decision held that railroads shall not furnish free return trip transportation to shippers of live stock.

Eighteen Cars of Hay Burned.

Eighteen cars of baled hay were partly burned in the Burlington and M., K. & T. yards in St. Louis yesterday.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. Assistant Fire Chief Coughlin thinks it either the work of a tramp or that the hay caught from spontaneous combustion.

The hay was consigned to St. Louis commission houses and was still in a green state. The loss is estimated at more than $5,000.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS

MAN SHOT DEAD IN A SNOW DRIFT

Caught in the Act of Stealing Fowls, Was Pursued a Mile and Fell in His Tracks With 12 Chickens in Sack.

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 6.—Exhausted after a long chase, Isaac Bevan, of Shenandoah, Pa., was yesterday at an early hour riddled with bullets from two revolvers which his pursuer, Anthony Sinkiewicz, emptied into his body as he lay helpless in a snow drift.

Twelve shots took effect, one passing through the heart, causing instant death.

Sinkiewicz had for some time been annoyed by chicken thieves, and he fixed up a burglar alarm. He was awakened by this alarm and he and a boarder at his house armed themselves and gave chase to the intruder by means of tracks in the newly fallen snow.

The chase continued for more than a mile, when Bevan dropped over and was shot to death.

Seven chickens were found in a bag which he carried. He was unarmed.

Sinkiewicz gave himself up to the authorities and has been charged with murder.

TWO LYNCHINGS IN SOUTH

Alleged Murderers Hanged by Florida and Louisiana Mobs.

Delhi, La., Feb. 7.—Robert Mitchell, an alleged negro murderer, was taken from a deputy sheriff by a mob at Oak Grove, near here, yesterday afternoon and lynched. A rope was placed around the negro's neck and he was hanged to a nearby railroad water tank.

Mitchell is alleged to have killed Leon Threlkeld, manager of the Pioneer Cooperage company, two miles west of Oak Grove, yesterday afternoon.

Gainesville, Fla., Feb. 7.—Information has been received here from Newberry, Fla., that Jack Long, accused of murdering John Sapp, was taken from the jail and hanged by a mob of 200 men Wednesday night.

DEFENDS MAN WHO SHOT HIM

Says Friend Lost His Head in Wounding Him Three Times.

Paterson, Feb. 7.—Hilton Sidney was shot three times by his fellow boarder, "Bob" Givens, Wednesday night, but refused to make any complaint against his assailant on the score of friendship.

"He's my friend and lost his head for a moment," said Sidney to the police.

Sidney said he and Givens were arguing, when Givens said, "For 2 cents I would put you out of business."

GREETED AS NEXT PRESIDENT

Bryan Receives Enthusiastic Welcome at Jersey City.

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 7.—An enthusiastic reception was accorded W. J. Bryan at the Majestic theater yesterday afternoon. He was introduced as "the next president of the United States," which evoked applause from the large audience.

The keynote of Mr. Bryan's speech was that democratic principles are growing stronger, while those of the republican party were weakening. After the speech at the Majestic, he addressed the Women's club and later left for Passiac.

DOG TRAVELS 1,500 MILL

Guided by Instinct, Animal Returns to Former Master.

San Francisco, Feb. 7.—The instinct of dogs, which often leads them long distances to their original homes, has again been instanced in Oakland. Sent to the western part of Montana last December, a greyhound appeared at its old home in Oakland, much to the surprise of Michael Ryan, its former owner.

Ryan conducts kennels and last December he sold two greyhounds to a man going to Montana.

Wednesday a travel stained and footsore greyhound appeared at the kennels. Ryan went out to drive it away, but upon seeing him the dog gave an eager bark and leaped to welcome him.

Ryan recognized the greyhound, which had traveled more than 1,500 miles, guided entirely by an animal instinct, and again reached its home.

Maplewood Banker Will Not Help Heretical Bible College.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 7.—An amended answer was yesterday filed in court by Rev. Gustavus Hoffman, a retired Christian church pastor, who is now in the banking business in the suburb of Maplewood, in the suit by which the Bible College of Missouri seeks to enforce payment of a note for $5,000 given by Rev. Hoffman as a donation.

In his petition Rev. Hoffman states that his reason for not turning the money over to the college is that the college, in its teachings, scouts the story of the Garden of Eden and the swallowing of Jonah by the whale. He declares that "in view of these facts" he does not want to pay the $5,000, as he "has no desire to indorse heresies."

Officers Baley and Redmond were put on a "bum steer" at the midnight nour last night, when they were sent to a West Broadway residence, where they were told that robbers were attempting to gain entrance. When they returned their informer had disappeared.

HER PETS IN BURNING HOUSE

And the Young Girl Risked Life to Save Them.

Cleveland Ohio, Feb. 7.—Defying the order of Fire Chief Wallace that she remain without the fire lines, pretty 17-year-old Teresa Cornshoot risked her life in the flames which damaged the home of Mrs. David Lane, No. 204 St. Clair avenue, in a successful attempt to save her two pet dogs from death.

The girl rushed back into the burning house, despite cries for her to halt, after her pleas to several firemen to save her dogs met with no response. She came out safely with the dogs under her arms.

Frank Weimer, of engine company 27, was seriously burned when he ran through the flames to rescue Frank McCune, a boarder, and two other men. Weimer was taken to Lakeside hospital, where his injuries are pronounced serious.

SPEND LESS FOR LUXURIES

American Imports From Germany Fall Off 40 Per Cent.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—Exports to the United States invoiced by Alexander H. Thackar, the American consul general, since the beginning of the financial disturbance in America, are from 20 to 40 per cent less each month when compared with the corresponding month of the preceding year.

These statements are roughly paralleled by the reports from the American consulates in the German provinces. From them it is obvious that America is buying fewer articles of luxury in Germany.
